West Bank Peace Talk Turns Sour

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israel-Egyptian peace drive was shaken anew today when Israel announced it is strengthening existing Jewish settlements in the West Bank in apparent pique at the United States — while Egypt said it may recall its Washington peace negotiators for consultations.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan acknowledged that the settlements decision may "make it more difficult" to reach final agreement with Egypt on a peace treaty.

And Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said in Cairo a recall of the Egyptian negotiators was possible. A recall would rule out the scheduled resumption of the peace talks Friday in Washington.

Khalil did not explain why the Egyptian team might be called home for further discussions, telling reporters simply, "I am in consultation with the president (Anwar Sadat) about the possibility of asking them to come to Cairo for consultations."

But he said the possible recall was "not in reaction" to Israel's West Bank decision.

Israeli government officials said the decision to expand Jewish settlements in the West Bank of the Jordan River was made in angry reaction to statements made privately by U.S. assistant state secretary Harold Saunders over the future of the Palestinian-populated zone.

In a closed meeting with West Bank Palestinian leaders last week, Saunders hinted that Israel might evacuate its West Bank enclaves at the end of the five-year transition period envisioned by the Camp David agreements. He also reaffirmed the U.S. position that Arab East Jerusalem, annexed by Israel after the 1967 war, is considered by Washington to be occupied territory.

In Washington, State Secretary Cyrus Vance said the Carter administration is deeply disturbed by the deci-

PILOTS SET STRIKE DATE

TORONTO (CP) — CP Air pilots set a Nov. 4 strike deadline Wednesday after announcing they had reached an impasse in contract negotiations following 11 months of bargaining with Canada's second largest airline.

Don Brown, chairman of the CP Air pilots' negotiating committee, said the two sides are deadlocked on pensions. Eighty-three per cent of the 545 pilots voted in favor of strike action.

It is the first time the pilots, members of the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, have set a strike deadline against the airline.

Parrot Ordered To Retract All Strike Calls

Parrot (centre) is escorted to Supreme Court in Ottawa

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union president Jean-Claude Parrot was ordered today publicly to declare invalid all former strike authorizations to union members or he would be held in jail.

Mr. Justice D. F. O'Leary of Ontario Supreme Court, where Parrot and four others were charged with disobeying federal back-to-work legislation passed last week, said Parrot had shown contempt of Parliament by ordering union members to stay off the job.

Parrot, who announced an end to the illegal strike Wednesday night, was taken to Ontario Supreme Court in a paddy wagon.

Meanwhile, the post office announced that 93 per cent of the 23,000 CUPW members were back on the job. It said embargoes on international surface mail and air mail to the United States are lifted. The embargo on international air mail would last until Saturday.

In Victoria all employees returned to work but tension remained high.

Post office public relations officer Buz Sawyer said postamsters and supervisors have been told to avoid confrontations with employees.

He said priority is being given to several hundred thousand government cheques, the bulk of which will be delivered by Friday.

Although the backlog of mail at the Glanford sorting station is less than 100,000 pieces — a very low volume — Sawyer asked persons with non-urgent mail to wait until Friday to post their letters so government and business mail can be processed first.

On Wednesday night more than half the evening shift at the Glanford station went home after punching in for work.

"They were just in no mood to work," Daniel Stewart, Victoria local union vice president said.

"There was a lot of tension on the floor. Some of the supervisors tried to rub it in that we forced back to work."

But nothing serious developed.

A CUPW member at the main post office on Government said today members are extremely bitter about the outcome of the week-long strike.

"We feel we've been betrayed," he said.

Stewart accused the government of irresponsibility in handling the dispute.

"All the government has done is guarantee the perpetuation of all the problems in the post office," he said.

"They had the opportunity to change conditions and give the postal workers a fair contract. But instead they've

Music Money Assured For Now

Within hours of taking office, Victoria Symphony president Dorothy Frost came through with $49,000 in emergency financing Wednesday.

The amount was guaranteed by her employer, Richardson Securities of Canada, against expected federal and provincial cultural grants.

The orchestra has a $160,000 deficit.

Frost became president of the symphony society Tuesday, and shortly after was on her way to Richardson's head office in Winnipeg. News of the $49,000 guarantee was telephoned here Wednesday afternoon.

Symphony manager Jean Hunter said earlier Wednesday the society could not make its next payroll of about $24,000 due this month.

The symphony is to get a Canada Council grant in November and additional funding is expected from the B.C. Cultural Development Fund.

Hunter said the guarantee will be a psychological turning point for the financially-pressed orchestra.

Hydro Salaries Okayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salary increases for the top 45 executives of British Columbia Hydro have been approved by the federal anti-inflation board.

The board examined the increases after newspaper reports said executives' wages and expense lists for the year ended March 31 increased an average of 25 per cent.

The information, released in Hydro's B.C. Public Bodies Financial Information Act Return showed that senior management were paid a total of $2.278 million, not including expenses, for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Hydro said some of the pay increases included retroactive adjustments as far back as two years that had been waiting for anti-inflation board approval.

The Hydro figures were for a 13-month period rather than a 12-month-pay period and did not give wages for the actual year separate from any retroactive adjustments.

In a news release, the board said it makes decisions on average compensation for a group, rather than individuals.

"In this respect then, an employee or several employees may get larger increases while others get little or none. It is the group average with which the board is concerned."

Taxes Up or Teachers Cut Options For School Board

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Greater Victoria School District's operating budget will increase by at least $1.13 million next year and that means either higher taxes or fewer teachers.

The budget is going up even though the district will lose 1,200 students and cut a minimum of 65 teaching positions.

Salary increases have been temporarily omitted from a $42-million 1979 provisional budget discussed by the school board for the first time Wednesday.

The 1979 provisional budget as it now stands has not increased over this year's operating budget.

When the blanks are filled in, the budget could increase by $3 million or even more, school board chairman Susan Brice said today.

A district staff raise of three per cent this year would mean a budget increase of $1.13 million.

If the salary increase is eight per cent the budget will go up $3 million — a five mill hike for local taxpayers.

And if salary increases now being negotiated with the Greater Victoria Teachers Association (GVTA) and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) exceed eight per cent, the mill rate increase will be even higher.

Trustees will decide in camera on a figure to include in the provisional budget due Nov. 15.

The figure will be adjusted in January after contract settlements have been reached with the GVTA and CUPE.

Brice said increasing class size is one way of combating rising costs.

But she said even with fewer students, the district will never defeat inflation.

"It's like the hounds chasing the electric rabbit: the faster you go toward it the faster it's snatched away from you."

Elimination of the 65 teaching positions from the present teaching staff of 1,289 will be accomplished mainly through attrition.

But she said the staff reductions have been going on for years and will soon reach the point where they can no longer be achieved through attrition.

"We're getting to the point where we are going to have to — as many districts have already had to — get into the area of releasing teachers with tenure," said Brice.

She said in Toronto, school districts are holding lotteries to determine which teachers will be dismissed.

Declining enrolment will be a problem facing Victoria for another 10 years, Brice estimated.

GVTA president Trevor Calkins said today the problem of fewer students and spiralling costs has placed the district in a dilemma.

But he said increasing class sizes will reduce the quality of education.

Some of the best and most experienced teachers in the province will be sacrificed, Calkins said.

The best way to fight the problem of declining enrolment is to decrease class size, he said, even though it will mean higher taxes.

"It seems to me if the board wanted to make a committment to reducing class size slightly to even approach the provincial average, attrition would solve the problem and you wouldn't have any teachers on unemployment."

Calkins also said the provincial educaton ministry should pick up a larger share of public school system costs.

Taxpayers contributed 55 per cent of the school district operating budgets in 1977 and 60 per cent in 1978.

The slice of the education pie given to the public school system has dropped from 20 to 15 per cent since 1964, Calkins charged.

GRANDPA PORTRAIT VALUED AT $40,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — To John Napier-Hemy it was an old oil painting of his stern-looking grandfather that had been in his family's home as long as he could remember.

He was shocked to learn this week that a local art gallery had appraised its value at $40,000.

Neil MacMillan, who appraised the painting, said the portrait's whereabouts had not been known since the painting was exhibited at the Royal Gallery in London in 1927.

Napier-Hemy said he realized the painting was valuable but had no idea it was worth $40,000. It was appraised at $10,000 three years ago in Victoria.

He plans to keep it in the family and pass it on to his 20-year-old son, who he says looks much like his great-grandfather. Selling it is out of the question, although he would like to share it with others.

More ICBC Rivals

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least nine private automobile insurance companies will be permitted to compete next year against the Insurance Corporation of B.C. for such things as comprehensive, theft, collision and additional liability coverage, an ICBC spokesman said Wednesday.

Don Anderson, acting deputy superintendent of insurance, said the number allowed to compete with ICBC could increase by even more by the end of the year.

The nine firms include Royal — in competition with ICBC last year — Fireman's Fund, Zurich, Commercial Union and All-State which decided to enter the market this spring.

Anderson said another firm is the Guardian Insurance Co. of Canada but he could not name the other three because his secretary is on holidays and those replacing her are not familiar with the files.

Hydro Corridor Chosen

B.C.Hydro has decided on the final route for a $315 million power line link between Vancouver Island and the Mainland's Cheekye substation.

The transmission corridor, selected from six possible routes, will see overhead and submarine cables reach the island at Dunsmuir, a site north of Qualicum Beach, via the Sechelt Peninsula, Nelson Island, Malaspina Strait, Texada Island and the Strait of Georgia.

The lines will miss Lasqueti and Hornby Islands, where residents were in an uproar over the possibility of transmission corridors passing near their homes.

Another controversial area was on the Sechelt Peninsula, where residents formed vocal protest groups.

A Hydro map showing the final route choice has a bulge in the Sechelt area indicating that the corridor placement in that region has not been fully worked out.

A Hydro press release states a broader range of route options should be maintained in that area until more-detailed studies can be completed.

The first circuit off of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line is scheduled to be in service by 1983, with the second circuit to be completed three years later.

Construction has already begun on a multi-million dollar 'backbone' line that will link Victoria to the Dunsmuir substantion, via Duncan and Nanaimo. That line will be in service by 1979 with a parallel set of transmission lines to be built on the same right-of-way during the 1980s.

Crackdown Following UIC Mess

OTTAWA (CP) — In the wake of a report citing $142 million in undetected unemployment insurance overpayments last year, the government plans new measures to crack down on error and fraud.

Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell said in a report Wednesday that he estimates the government did not detect $142 million paid to claimants who were not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits.

In response, senior officials announced plans to examine company rolls and establish a country-wide hiring registration program in a new effort to deter and detect abuse, error and fraud.

In the annual report of the employment and immigration department, Macdonell said his $142 million overpayment estimate was based on reviewing a small sample of the 2.5 million persons who received about $3.9 billion in benefits in 1977.

Macdonell's estimate was in addition to $67.8 million over-payments which the government did detect. All but $6 million of that was recovered.

Also, his estimate was higher than the $95 million in undetected 1976 over-payments he unearthed last year, blaming inadequate accuracy and security in the government's computer system.

Larry St.-Laurent, director of the unemployment insurance program, said the following measures will be implemented at a cost of about $3 million to reduce over-payments by $15 million in the coming year:

—Through an agreement with the revenue department, unemployment insurance investigators will get access to company payroll information. These facts will be cross-checked with information supplied by employees and employers to unemployment insurance officials processing benefit claims.

The main aim will be to verify employment records — to catch employees or employers who falsify insured earnings or length of work. Training of investigators to use the payrolls in suspicious cases will start next Tuesday and the measure is to come into effect on Nov. 30.

—A country-wide hiring registration program will be established midway through the 1978-1979 fiscal year. About 600,000 employers would register with government computer centres the name, social insurance num-sion to strengthen existing Jewish settlements on the West Bank.

West Bank Issue Blurs Peace Talk

Dayan told reporters Israel had only pledged at the Camp David summit last month not to build new settlements in the West Bank during the three months planned for the negotiations with Egypt.

President Carter had urged the cabinet to accept the draft treaty, but Egypt will also be asking for some changes and Dayan said it had always been known that he and Weizman would have have to bring the draft back for cabinet approval before arrangements could be made to sign the document ending 30 years of war.

In a related development, Syria and Iraq, after a long and bitter feud between their rival factions of the Socialist Baath Party, signed a "charter for joint national action" today to confront the Camp David peace accords between Egypt and Israel.

The formal reconciliation after a decade of deep mistrust and occasional bloody incidents followed three days of talks between presidents Hafez Assad of Syria and Ahmed Hassan al-Bakr, who signed the charter.

Hydro Route Picked

The Cheekye-Dunsmuir line will consist of two 500 kilovolt transmission cables constructed on a right-of-way 400 feet wide. The project will also see a new substation built on the Sechelt Peninsula.

In a report entitled Vancouver Island's Power Supply 1982-1996, Hydro says the proposed interconnect will be the most economically feasible source of future power supply to the Island after 1982.

The report says a nuclear plant (which would cost about $950 million) or a coal-fired thermal power plant (initial cost about $430 million but more expensive than atomic power in the long-term) could provide power on the island but neither could be constructed in time to meet the island's growing power needs.

A nuclear plant could not be built before 1991 and a thermal powerplant would take at least until 1986 to complete.

The report shows that consultants looked at the possibility of reducing the island's power demands through an active energy conservation program, power generation by the forest industry with wood waste and increased supplies of natural gas.

But the conclusion was that the reductions in power demands brought about by such projects would not be substantial enough to forestall construction of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir link.

"This study shows that the Cheekye-Dunsmuir 500 kv transmission interconnection will be the most economic feasible source of uture power supply to Vancouver Island after 1982 . . . is more reliable than other transmission or generation alternatives, and it is the only project far enough advanced it its planning to ensure that all load growth on Vancouver Island can be served with confidence after 1983," states the report.

The document also deals with the environmental impacts, stating that the major problem will be the visual one presented by transmission towers.

"B.C. Hydro recognizes this problem and will take care to avoid such impacts by selecting the least obtrusive transmission corridor wherever it is possible to do so at reasonable additional cost and without significantly endagering the security or safety of power supply.

"Unfortunately, it will be impossible to find a transmission route that completely avoids all adverse environmental impacts."

Stereo Blamed

A malfunction in a component stereo set is believed the cause of a fire that gutted two dormitories at Brentwood College in Mill Bay Oct. 11.

A spokesman for the school said today the set, pinpointed as the cause of the fire by provincial fire marshals, was in a student's room.

The fire caused $200,000 damage, including $25,000 for temporary housing for 58 students who have been displaced while renovations to the building are under way.

Blindness Hits Grannie Before Baby's Birth

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Mrs. Helen Attwooll travelled halfway around the world to see her family in Australia but was blind less than 24 hours after she arrived from her home in England.

"It is heartbreaking," Mrs. Attwooll said Wednesday. "There's no other word for it.

"We had planned this trip since the beginning of the year just to be here with my son and his family while his latest child was being born.

"But I haven't seen the baby. All I can do is hold her and have a few cuddles."

Doctors found her eyes had been bleeding internally, clouding the fluid inside. The condition, reversible in some cases, often occurs in diabetics like Mrs. Attwooll, who is in her 60s.

She and her husband arrived in Melbourne last month. After playing with their other grandchildren Jolyon, 3, and Josephine, 19 months, on the first day of their visit, the couple went to bed early.

When she awoke the next morning, she was blind.

"I didn't know whether it was night or day," Mrs. Attwooll said. "I wondered what had hit me."

"The doctors here have said it is not the end of the world," she said.

"It has nothing to do with the trip. It could have happened anywhere and at any time."

Mrs. Attwooll, who leaves for England on Saturday, said there is no guarantee her sight will return with treatment.

"I am hoping my sight will come back after I have some treatment in England," she said.

"If the family send photos regularly, I will be able to see Katharine then."

Arabs Give Force Six More Months

Times News Services

CAIRO — The Arab League agreed today to extend the mandate of the Arab deterrent forces (ADF) in Lebanon for another six months.

Egypt abstained in the vote, while Syria, Libya, Algeria, Iraq and South Yemen, which oppose Egyptian-Israeli peace talks, did not attend the meeting.

The Arab League Council was summoned to an emergency session attended by its permanent Arab states representatives to consider a request by Lebanese President Elias Sarkis to extend the ADF mandate which was to expire Friday.

In Beirut today, Syrian forces and Israeli-backed Christian militias fought sniping and shelling duels despite a government plan to disarm the rightist militias.

The sporadic fighting went on despite the cabinet's approval Wednesday of a plan of national reconciliation.

The plan called for disarmament of militias, restrictions on Palestinian guerrillas, prosecution of military or civilians cooperating with Israel, and reorganizing the army.

Meanwhile, Lebanese sources said in Paris Wednesday that President Sarkis was planning trips to Paris and Washington to seek help in transforming the Lebanese army into a force that could enforce domestic tranquility.

Sarkis' decision to take the trips appears to reflect a determination by the president to enter a more active phase in the search for solutions to his country's problems. He has been criticized by Western diplomats for playing an inactive, passive role as his country was torn apart by warring elements.

Sarkis received a formal invitation Wednesday from French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing to visit Paris, and he is expected to come here in a few weeks.

For Sarkis to go directly to Washington to see President Carter without going to Paris first would have run the risk, one Lebonese source said, of being interpreted as Lebanon joining the Camp David peace front of Egypt, Israel and the United States.

West Strives To Forestall UN Sanctions

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Western members of the UN Security Council sought today to avert moves to impose economic sanctions against South Africa, which diplomatic sources said would almost certainly kill hopes for UN-supervised elections in Namibia (South-West Africa).

The African group of states has called for an urgent meeting of the council and is expected to press for economic sanctions after South Africa's decision to go ahead with unsupervised elections in the territory in December.

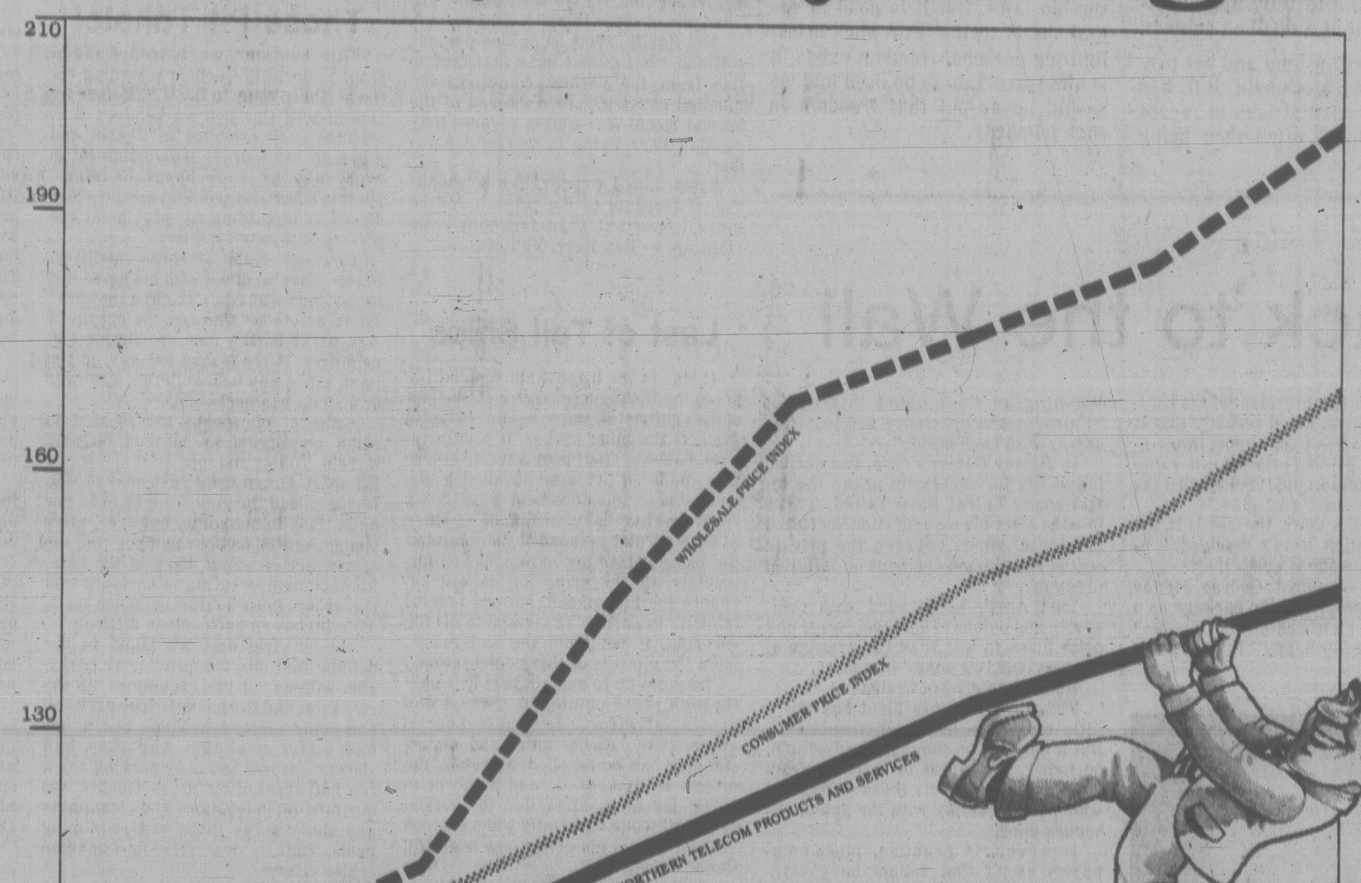
Following talks with the United States, Britain, Canada, France and West Germany in Pretoria last week, South Africa said it would do its best to persuade the winners of the December election to co-operate with the UN independence plan.

Although the Western powers have rejected the December voting in advance as null and void, they still regard plans for UN-supervised elections in Namibia next spring as on track and want to give Pretoria a chance to co-operate.

Meanwhile, the South-West Africa People's Organization's (SWAPO) rejection of the Western plan for Namibia did not surprise Canada, External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson told reporters Wednesday.

"It isn't a complication we didn't take into account in devising this particular approach," he said of an election compromise worked out by Canada and four other Western countries with South Africa last weekend.

A lot of Canadians insist there has to be some way to keep prices in line. We've got a track record that says they're right.



We all know how it works. Prices go up. Wages go up. Prices go up again. It's called inflation. And if you think something should be done about it, we couldn't agree with you more.

At Northern Telecom, we've made it our business to keep price increases in line. And we're succeeding.

Since 1970, wholesale prices in Canada have risen an average of 10.5 percent a year. Northern Telecom price increases have been held at an average of only 5.7 percent a year – little more than half.

We have consistently delivered improved, technologically advanced products below the level of inflation – products that provide our customers with a greater return for their money.

The secret lies in a corporate-wide commitm[illegible] to improving productivity. Over the past seven years, we've improved the productivity of Northern Telecom manufacturing operations at a rate more than twice that of the Canadian manufacturing industry as a whole.

As Canada's largest supplier of telecommunications equipment, we work closely with telephone companies across the country to determine the real needs of the market and to search out the most cost-efficient ways to supply those needs.

We've concentrated on developing a continuous stream of innovative systems that have solved communications problems in Canada and have helped us also to penetrate foreign markets. In turn, our success in offshore markets has enabled us to lower unit costs to telephone companies here at home.

The real winner, of course, is the Canadian telephone subscriber. Our ability to provide superior equipment at price increases substantially below the level of inflation has made a significant contribution to the Canadian telecommunications industry's record of operating one of the world's most efficient and lowest-cost telecommunications systems.

At Northern Telecom, we're proud of that track record. And we're determined to maintain it.

Neighborhood Power

Have neighborhood groups become too powerful for the good of the whole community?

The question is posed after a number of local controversies over development proposals in the Victoria region. In most of them, neighborhood groups held sway, bringing their members out in force to demonstrate overwhelming public opinion against the changes proposed for their cozy little neighborhood.

Saanich council voted 8-1 against an industrial park for the Interurban area of the municipality, when dozens of residents showed up at the public hearing to express near-unanimous opposition to the development.

The same body almost defeated a plan for a condominium and luxury home subdivision out behind Cadboro Bay, on Minnie Mountain, and residents were livid, some almost hysterical, with rage that their wishes were not respected by the majority of aldermen.

It seems to be the accepted philosophy of all neighborhood groups that municipal democracy means neighborhood veto, that local residents are the supreme arbiters of what is tasteful and proper for their area. The few dozen residents of the Cadboro Bay-Ten Mile Point district were apoplectic that what they wanted was rejected by Saanich council. Never mind that the property was vacant and disused, that the developer was not exactly planning an instant slum, that what was built there would be invisible from most of their homes. They didn't want any change at all in their neighborhood. They got theirs, Jack, now pull up the drawbridge and prepare to fend off invaders.

It is a nasty selfishness at bottom, is it not? Neighborhood preservation in some recent cases is a code phrase for no change, at any price, not ever.

Perhaps it is time that someone draws to their attention that ownership of a piece of property entitles one to pay taxes, vote at election time, and offer advice from time to time. It does not confer dictatorial powers on a taxpayer or neighborhood.

Victoria's rejection of an architecturally prize-winning condominium development for James Bay, after strenuous protests from local inhabitants, is another case in point.

Our population is growing and people keep moving here. Even without this natural pressure for new development, change will happen. New buildings will go up here, decrepit ones will be demolished or turned to a new use. Change can't be stopped, only channelled.

The Right to Choose

British Columbia's director of film classification is to be commended for putting more trust in the tastes and critical abilities of the public than our elected representatives seem prepared to allow. In her recent call for an end to film censorship, Mary-Lou McCausland cut through a misleading fog of morality to an issue that involves a basic freedom we expect in this society, but are still denied.

A position against censorship is not a stand for obscenity or pornography, however they might be defined. Rather, it is a guard against arbitrary control or restriction by government of what adults may read, or listen to, or watch. It is not a comment on morality or immorality, however they might be defined, but a demand for the fundamental right to make a choice.

The memory of book-burnings in this century is still fresh enough that no one could rationally support an arbitrary or heavy-handed government control over our libraries and bookstores. And certainly few people would like to be told what music or concerts they may or may not attend. But in the field of cinema, we are still subject to the whim of bureaucrats and judicial authorities whose guidelines are so nebulous that any decision amounts to little more than a guess or personal opinion.

Too many recent cases have demonstrated how destructive those whims can be. It was not many years ago that Alberta banned the showing of the film Tom Jones, which children can watch on television these days. Early this year, the Supreme Court of Canada voted 5-4 to uphold the right of the Nova Scotia censor to ban Last Tango in Paris, a film by a respected European artist hailed by critics the world over. And just recently, Ontario's censor forbade showing of Pretty Baby, a tasteful and beautiful treatment of a difficult subject.

Under McCausland and her predecessor, Ray McDonald, B.C. has made impressive strides in recent years and more often than being banned or eviscerated, films today carry the classifier's description of what the viewer can expect to see. But some films are still withheld and any movie may be banned at the discretion of the classifier. And even under McCausland's enlightened administration, there is still room (as we saw this summer with the artistic, though explicit, In the Realm of the Senses) for the police to step in under the obscenity provisions of the criminal code and close down a film with nothing more than an opinion.

McCausland knows that even if she were to get provincial authorities to go along with her, there would remain a problem with federal laws, and despite recommendations by government commissions, Ottawa does not appear ready to redefine or eliminate censorship laws. But it is good to see that she is trying. For when a law limiting personal freedom exists, it is almost certain to be used and we should never put that freedom in such jeopardy.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Carter's Back to the Wall

WASHINGTON — Along with the energy bill and massive tax cuts, President Carter's package of "voluntary" wage and price guidelines rounds out his administration's prescribed therapy for the troubled U.S. economy.

Yet even though the polls show that most Americans would welcome hard-nosed presidential action to curb inflation, the Carter program outlined Tuesday night offers little hope of dramatic success.

The most optimistic of White House strategists say that the package, an appeal to labor and business, will probably not trim the inflation rate, now at about eight per cent, by more than half a percentage point.

At best, they say, it will reverse the trend. At worst, it will fail and set the stage for what nobody seems to want but what many feel is inevitable: mandatory controls on wage increases and price hikes in the marketplace.

Some businessmen see the guidelines as "a very familiar milepost on a very familiar road" that lead to mandatory curbs.

What If It Fails?

Although Carter is opposed to this extreme action, he may have no alternative if the nation does not rally around his program. Should voluntary action fail, a senior White House official warned recently, the "cruel choice" would be between controls or recession.

In the inflexible equation of economics, unbridled inflation leads to tighter credit, high interest rates and high prices. This dampens the economy, and can lead to a recession.

Politically, the president seems to have his back to the wall. Recent public opinion polls show that Carter is widely perceived as a poor manager of the economy.

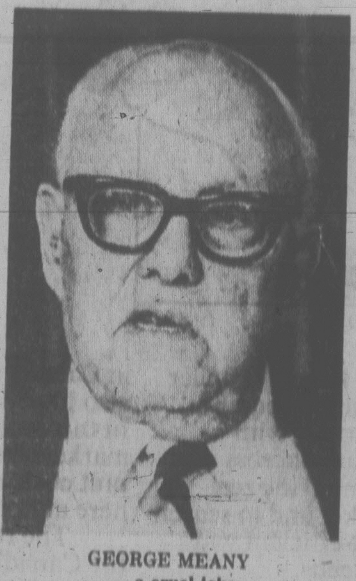
Some ingredients in his new package — notably, the use of government contracts as a carrot to companies to comply — will be welcomed by the public. So will the White House threat of public censure of businessmen who resist the guidelines.

But the greatest hurdles are likely to come from the unions. Recent agreements for coal miners, postal and railroad workers suggest that holding the line on wages could be an impossible undertaking.

Douglas Fraser, president of the United Auto Workers, noted recently that if the guidelines don't get almost immediate results in holding prices down, rank-and-file workers would rebel against the program.

"Six months down the road, if the rate of inflation hasn't declined," he said, "the package is dead."

AFL-CIO president George Meany has already described the package as a "cruel joke" on workers since business will be "only too happy" to hold down wages.



GEORGE MEANY
. . . a cruel joke

Big business also takes a bleak view of the practicability of voluntary guidelines. Executives say the White House may succeed in forcing big, visible companies to moderate prices — like President Kennedy did with steel in 1962 — but this would result in profit squeezes and reduced investment.

Also, companies that resist the guidelines would be harmed by the publicity, while rebellious union leaders would be hailed as heroes by their rank-and-file.

No president has every achieved a national consensus for wage and price restraint, at least in peacetime. As The Washington Post noted this week: "Fairness and efficiency are too often at war with each other."

In Jimmy Carter's case, two earlier initiatives to voluntarily crimp the inflationary spiral have failed. Three months after his inauguration, he called for consultations between the private sector and the government on inflation problems.

Last April, he pleaded with companies and unions to hold their wage and price hikes to less than the average of the previous two years' increases.

Both those efforts fizzled out.

This time, the president has put a little muscle in his recommendations. But it may not be enough. For example, on paper, the threat to blacklist from government contracts those companies which don't comply with the guidelines sounds good.

However, in practice, most companies aren't that reliant on government purchasing. In electronics, chemicals and lumber, for example, federal contracts make up a tiny part of the market.

Act Now, Or . . .

And when it comes to big contracts like military aircraft or big construction projects, the government often has little choice among private contractors.

If he is to have any hope for success at all, President Carter will have to convince business and labor that in return for their belt-t[illegible], the federal government will also trim its sails.

Carter has said that he plans to reduce the government's deficit by 25 per cent, to $30 billion next year, and he will likely impose an almost total freeze on government hiring. There will doubtlessly be pressure for even greater cutbacks that the U.S. congress, sensitive to the taxpayer revolt, will likely not challenge.

One surprising sidelight to the Carter package is how cautiously it is being presented. Nobody, not even his closest advisers, are saying it will deliver a death blow to inflation. With some sacrifice and good faith, they contend, inflation can be nudged off course.

As Barry Bosworth, one of Carter's chief inflation fighters, told the national economists club last week: "You either act now, or it's going to be too late."

Sure, a Gimmick

Mr. C. Tolman (Don't Be Fooled; Times, Oct. 21), shows his vast expertise on communism. Oh yes, the threat of communism is a gimmick.

It was a gimmick in the 1950s when Russian tanks barged into Hungary and slaughtered thousands of civilians who wanted only one thing: freedom from communism.

It was another gimmick a little later in Czechoslovakia, when the Soviet tanks rolled to another "glorious victory" over the dead bodies of freedom lovers.

And certainly the threat of communism is illusory in Vietnam and Cambodia, where hundreds of thousands have been dispatched because they had the guts to disagree with the dictatorship. The hundreds of thousands who have managed to escape to the west from those two countries in the past while are also illusory.

And the guerrillas and terrorists being trained by the Soviet block to slaughter civilians in the free world — and leaders like Italy's Aldo Moro — are "just one of those things," I guess.

And finally, some 50 million persons (official UN figures) have managed to flee from the various communist-dominated countries since the end of the Second World War simply because they couldn't bear living in workers' paradise.

Sometimes I wonder, like Solzhenitsyn, if freedom of the press is indeed more important than freedom from claptrap. — Ray Kerr, Victoria

Last of Tall Ships

It was to me a most unexpected joy to see the Portuguese Sagres II, the last of the visiting tall ships, to add old world grace to the Inner harbor. It is unfortunate, however, that poor advertisement was made of its arrival, though the enthusiastic announcement by a CFAX reporter Thursday morning of its entry at Ogden Point persuaded me to attend the noon welcoming ceremony. Unfortunetely, the lingering fog did not enchance the attendance, but one federal minister in particular seemed to lift the covering, if not from the sail masts, from the motives of these celebrations.

He went on to explain that it is only through these combined federal and provincial efforts for these special events that national unity and understanding can be reached. Morever, the efforts to make B.C. and Victoria in particular more attractive to tourists are worthwhile especially when eastern visitors cannot get over "how beautiful Canada really is."

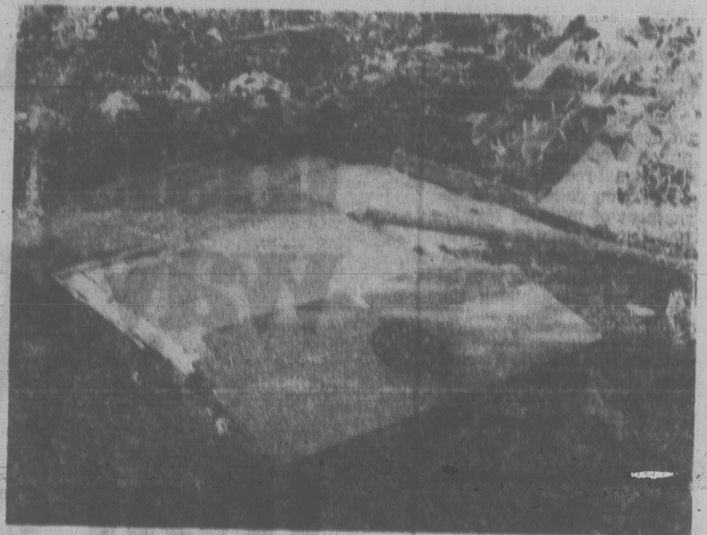
Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf, too, emphasized these tall ship visits were not only for the tourists, but to point out to Victorians what can be and has been done to the Inner Harbor, and how much more is possible. I don't think anyone can disagree.

Last but far from least, the naval cadet band deserves high praise for a performance that colored the welcoming, both in sight and sound. — Nancy Griffin, 2231 Arbutus Road.

Selfish Stupidity

When we received notice of the new family allowance procedures, I told my husband: "I bet there are a lot of dumb people in this country who will kick up a stink about this. They won't understand that they actually get more." (Unless, of course, they are already quite well off). Sure enough, in the paper there was a picture of people protesting at Parliament Hill for just this reason.

Are we Canadians incapable of simple addition and subtraction? Perhaps we are so stingy we don't like to lose a few dollars even to those who need it more. I hope the attitude of these people is not representative of Canadians. I would hate to think we were that stupid or that selfish. — Doranne Demontigny, 2312 Wark Street.



B.C. park facilities don't measure up across the country.

Those Pit Toilets!

This summer we toured Canada from Victoria to Quebec, returning via the northern route in the U.S. Before we commenced this trip we believed B.C. was the only province to live in and although our journey was delightful in every way we were happy to return. However, we also feel that our province should be upgrading our provincial and private campsite facilities.

First, get rid of all those smelly pit toilets. They went out with the horse and buggy. And why can't we have showers? There are those who say the charm of B.C. parks is that they are simple and primitive. After a long hot day on the road, especially with children, a shower or a swim is a necessity.

Some of our parks are located in some mystifying areas with difficult terrain. Toilets and taps are too few and far apart. Green Lake Park near 70 Mile House raised the rate from $2 to $4 per night. It is immaculate, however, after you get settled on your pad you find the only water is a mile back at the gate. Another item — trying to back a travel trailer into those narrow entrance roads with ditches on each side is difficult.

On our trip east we found to our delight that all the provincial parks, and, with one or two exceptions, all the rest stops had flush toilets. The parks all had some electric hookups and a few had water hookups. And they had showers, ample and easy parking and a few had areas of cut grass. Quebec was outstanding in locations and cleanliness and some parks there had swimming pools. Ontario was free to Canadian senior citizens.

Private parks to us seem to be a big rip-off at current rates. Some on the Island are very seedy indeed. With American friends we camped on the Island at two that were "approved." One had no outside water and the showers were too dirty to use. The other had a lineup to register and offered four toilets in a dinky wash house for about 200 campers.

A European couple wondered why they were charged for a map of the Island at the provincial tourist bureau when they had obtained free ones from New York state to here. Their comment was that our p[illegible] the [illegible]er north you go.

One last swipe at the toilets — the portable fibreglass ones at the pull-outs. Why can't they at least be clean? It's a wonder that one in the Bowser area hasn't ruined our tourism program forever.

A true horror story. North of Williams Lake there is a pullout that looks like the city dump and the pit toilets were so full it was not possible to use them. We are dismayed but what of our visitors? — W. A. and J. Y. Coultan, 1310 Craigflower Road.

Estuary Industry

Not enough has been said about the control of industry which is now operating, or may be given permission to operate, in the Cowichan estuary, over strong objections.

One reason given for even considering it there is that it will be controlled, or monitored. This is an "out" for people who would allow more industry.

I started engineering in 1921, was consulting on my own in 1937, had five years aeronautical engineering in the RCAF then worked in an executive capacity for consulting engineering companies from then to retirement in 1970, latterly covering overseas countries. This experience covers operations, and construction on large projects, including harbors, docks, ship loading, mass materials handling, and mines.

All the above is mentioned because, even with all this, I cannot think of any way in which industrial plants in environmentally sensitive areas can be prevented from fouling up the environment.

Horrendous fines might help, but they will not prevent accidents. They are after the fact. An accident in the estuary could be very bad indeed.

Controls would have to be supervised 24 hours a day at several points all year round, with authority to stop plant in the event of trouble, not just report on such matters next day, after the damage was done. This calls for a large staff and much money and is not practical.

Conclusion: plants which can and undoubtedly will foul up their surroundings should not be put in such sensitive areas. Don't lead the bull into the china shop, and expect it to stand still. — D. H. Sharp, P.Eng., 4505 Chestnut Road, Cobble Hill.

Levesque 'Evens Odds'

By JOHN WILDGUST

QUEBEC CITY — The Parti Quebecois' major shift in referendum strategy has thrown Canada's constitutional future once again into the realm of uncertainty and touched off a mini-wave of discontent within PQ ranks.

At a time when there appeared to be little hard support for the PQ's policy of sovereignty-association and defeat of the referendum looked certain, the reshuffle of policy by Premier Rene Levesque has destroyed all those best-laid plans.

Instead of asking Quebecers in late 1979 or early 1980 to vote for or against a mandate to create a sovereign Quebec which would try to negotiate economic association with the rest of Canada, Levesque has announced his government instead will seek simply a "mandate to negotiate" with Ottawa and English Canada.

Borrowing on the same strategy which helped the PQ come to power in the 1976 election — a vote for the PQ was not a vote for independence since there would be a referendum — the Levesque government now is promising not only that it will take no unilateral action if the referendum result is yes, but also that sovereignty and association are inseparable.

Few protests

Thus, Quebecers could vote yes in the referendum without giving the government a mandate to do anything more than go on a "fishing expedition" to Ottawa for more powers.

This breaks clearly with the PQ program which states that if negotiations failed Quebec would unilaterally declare independence. But there has been little railing from hard-liners within the PQ ranks.

Pierre Bourgault, former leader of the Rassemblement pour l'Independance Nationale, which merged with Levesque's movement in 1968 to form the PQ, has merged with three other originators of the independence movement to protest the change. Speaking at a 10-year birthday party for the PQ last week, Bourgault said Levesque and his chief referendum strategist, Inter-governmental Affairs Minister Claude Morin, had painted the PQ into a corner.

If the rest of Canada refused to negotiate, there would be no sovereignty without economic association.

Initially, at least, the strategy switch appeared to have the desired effect on the federalist parties. Michel Gratton, a Liberal member of the national assembly and a founder of the pro-federalist Quebec-Canada Movement, admitted it would be difficult to oppose Levesque's referendum call simply to negotiate and see what sort of constitutional changed could be won for Quebec.

Instead of deciding the issue clearly with the referendum expected in late 1979 or early 1980, Levesque now suggests that a referendum victory could lead to at least two years of negotiations, taking his generally-popular provincial government through a general election which must be held sometime before the end of 1981.

Levesque told supporters at the PQ birthday party that in "five years, Quebec will be free."

One indication of the improved PQ chances in the referendum comes from a former Liberal member of the national assembly, defeated in the 1976 election. Requesting anonymity, he admitted in an interview: "Deep down in their heart of hearts, I'm sure that most Quebecers would like to have their own country, but only if they thought they could do it without losing their standard of living."

With his step-by-step approach, Levesque appears to be attempting to get the ball rolling in that direction. First it was the word "separatist" which the PQ banished from its vocabulary several years ago, suggesting to reporters that if they wanted cooperation in getting interviews with members of the Parti Quebecois, they should use the word "independence" instead.

Then, after the PQ won power in 1976, "independence" was banned in favor of "sovereignty-association." Those who still refer to independence in the presence of some PQ members are treated to a mild tongue lashing.

Similarly, the PQ program was modified in November, 1974, to introduce the idea of a referendum which would be held after a Parti Quebecois government was elected.

Although that program still promised that if negotiation failed the PQ government would go ahead unilaterally, there was sharp division at the party's annual convention that year. The vote was 630 in favor and 353 against the new policy. Among those opposing the watering down of the independence policy were a dozen stalwarts who went to the convention podium to denounce the decision.

One was Rev. Louis O'Neill, then a defeated PQ candidate from the 1973 election. He subsequently quit the Roman Catholic priesthood, married and is communications minister in the Levesque cabinet which has approved the latest switch in policy.

Poker player

Levesque allows that the "mandate-to-negotiate" policy may require a change in the party's official program. But he says he is convinced the "political maturity of the party ... will adjust itself now to the evolution ... and will accept that certain things be better explained or better adjusted to this evolution of facts."

The party's reply to Levesque will come this spring at the next annual convention.

Levesque's argument for the change, while he does not refer to opinion polls indicating that a mandate for independence would be rejected by Quebecers, is that the government has simply evened up the odds.

Levesque allows that a mere mandate to negotiate would not carry quite the same weight as a threat to separate unilaterally should the negotiations fail. But he says nevertheless that a yes vote in the referendum will be a clear expression of Quebecers' desire to have a referendum on independence.

Levesque is a poker player, and in that game, as in politics, the idea is to win, even if you have to bluff.

'Stop Forest Waste — The World Needs Our Wood'

By DAVID RITCHIE
Washington Post

When King Solomon was building his palace, he wanted the best timber available, so he sent to Lebanon for cedar from that land's famous forests.

Today Solomon's buildings are gone ... and so are the forests, destroyed by overcutting. Nor is Lebanon's experience unique. India and North Africa are just two other places where overzealous logging destroyed forests and turned woodlands into wastelands within a few generations.

Today that destruction goes on, with no end in sight. As the world's population increases, so does its demand for wood, for lumber, paper and other products. And in areas where population is growing most rapidly, such as Africa and Latin America, forests are melting away like ice cubes in summer.

Unfortunately, those forests are also the Third World's main source of fuel. A recent study by SRI International (formerly the Stanford Research Institute) says that roughly a third of the world's population — primarily in the developing nations — relies almost entirely on wood for its fuel supply. And that supply is shrinking fast.

At the same time the high price of petroleum (up some 300 per cent since 1973) discourages the Third World from switching from wood to gas and oil. So the developing nations may soon find themselves running out of their only practical source of energy.

Could destroyed forests be replenished somehow in time to prevent disaster? It's not likely. A cut forest loses much of its topsoil to erosion, and prospects for replanting the eroded earth are poor.

And in tropical regions, where much of the Third World's population lives, a cut forest is generally gone for good. Tropical soils are rich in metals, and when a tropical forest is cut, the exposed soil quickly dries and bakes into a bricklike material called laterite. Trying to plant seedlings in laterite is like trying to plant them on a battleship's deck; no forest will grow there again.

Here's where timber producers in our hemisphere might help, and get some political leverage in the Third World besides. Why couldn't the United States, Canada, the Soviet Union and [illegible] major timber-growing nations form a timber exporters' cartel, on the model of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, to supply much-needed wood fuel to the underdeveloped nations?

That idea isn't as far-fetched as it sounds. Canada already exports a good percentage of its timber harvest every year, and the United States might increase its net production enough to do the same.

With that goal in mind, here are three steps we might take, adapted from a 1974 Nader Study Group report on the U.S. national forests:

- Make better use of our domestic wood now harvested. In 1970, more than 1.6 billion cubic feet of wood was simply left to rot on logging sites. Sawmills discarded another billion cubic feet of bark. Secondary manufacturing plants wasted almost another billion cubic feet of wood residues.
- Recycle more paper products. A 1971 Bank of America study found that the United States could recycle more than a third of its annual paper consumption. Japan and some Western European nations recycle 25 per cent or more of their paper, so why couldn't we?
- Put unused lands to work growing timber. U.S. Forest Service figures indicate there are perhaps half a billion acres of suitable land, in the hands of individuals and private groups outside the timber industry, that could be farmed intensively for timber. The government could surely find ways to put all or part of the land into timber production.

Of course, no one should think the United States, Canada and other timber-producing nations could supply all, or even most, of the Third World's demand for firewood. But the billions of pounds of wood we now waste every year could go a long way toward relieving the coming fuel crunch in the underdeveloped nations — and give us some valuable political muscle in future confrontations with the Third World.

And unlike OPEC's oil, our timber supply need never run out. With proper management, a pine forest can be replenished about as fast as it is harvested.

Wouldn't it be a delightful irony if we found ourselves selling fuel to the Arabs when their petroleum is gone?

The Saga of Gus Piltz

By PAUL ST. PIERRE
The Vancouver Sun

BIG CREEK — There are three monuments to Gus Piltz in this country — the Sky Ranch, Piltz's Peak and the Piltz Foundation. To those who met the man only occasionally and casually, finding him just another dour old rancher, they may each seem oversize. Yet there they stand, monuments.

Of them, the greatest creation is Sky Ranch. It is a carpet of grass laid in a shallow pass between the Gaspard Creek ranges of the mighty Gang Ranch and scattered wild hay meadows of the Big Creek country. It is a mile high, higher than any ranch has a right to be at this latitude.

People used to say it was the highest ranch in the world. You may be sure this is untrue. So are almost all other claims about ranches which are the biggest, the wettest, the farthest north or south or the richest. People just like to say such things about ranches.

What is true is that Sky Ranch consistently produced prize-winning lots of cattle at Williams Lake and that at one time it ran 500 head of stock, a very large herd in a country designed for grizzly bears and swamp moose.

Sky Ranch was built by the tenacity, the drive, the determination, perhaps the genius of one man, who devoted one lifetime to it.

August Martin Piltz came to Canada from a German colony in Czarist Russia. His own family couldn't get out of the Ukraine until later and Gus was smuggled in on the passport of a family named Wersh. He had to teach himself to read and write English and in the great new land we were then he was apparently fitted for nothing more than labor. He began cowboying here in 1912 for Joe Tretheway of Chilco Ranch.

In 1917 he settled on the piece of ground which was to become the Sky Ranch. At that time it was called Big Swamp. He trapped, bought a few heifers [illegible] and, in [illegible], began 40 years of ceaseless work. He drained the swamp.

First he channelled it, hoping the water would run away down Coopering Creek. It didn't. If Gus was dismayed, he was also undaunted. He cut a ditch around the entire perimeter of the swamp, carrying away the mountains' runoff before it could reach the flat land. That worked, but it took more than most men have the muscle or the mind for.

The toughness of Gus Piltz has nourished more yarns in these parts than the man would have had time to live. One will do for example.

Riding back to his little cabin one night on a half-wild cayuse (all the Piltz horses were half wild) he galloped into a wire clothes line, took out all his teeth and rearranged half the bones of his face.

He was unconscious for some time. When he got off the ground he went to the cabin, examined his wrecked face and tucked together the broken bones by hand as well as he could. Then he fainted again.

He revived, caught another horse and rode, all that night and much of the next day, almost 80 kilometres to the first aid post at Alexis Creek. Being Gus Piltz, he left a note on the Church Ranch gate, 30 kilometres from Sky Ranch. He had been feeding cattle for Church that winter. He wanted them to know that the cows would be untended for a day or two.

For the first several long years he worked alone, cutting and stacking hay by hand before he got his first horses, digging the long ditch, building snake fence a panel at a time until they stretched for miles.

Cariboo 'monuments'
Keep the memory
Of tough old rancher

Later he hired help. They seldom stayed long. He was demanding, irascible, sometimes plain mean.

To have lived om moosemeat and huckleberries through the Hungry Thirties was one thing. To hired help of the 1950s it was less understandable that the man who raised prize beef felt he could not afford to have both butter and jam on the table at the same time.

When I first visited him in the '50s he served a hot rum. I should have been satisfied that it was not his other favorite drink, which was whisky and Cherry Heering mixed in equal parts. I asked if he had any sugar for the rum. "You'll drink it that way," said Gus.

A nephew, Leonard Gildner of Portland, worked for him in 1945. "I got away from there as soon as I had a stake enough to get. He was a hard man to work for. But, then, he is my uncle, my own flesh and blood. He is me and I am him."

Gus never married. He courted the beautiful Hattie Hance, but she chose Frank Witte. For the rest of his life Gus had a particular love for Hattie's children and he was a regular Sunday visitor at the Witte's Circle A ranch on the creek.

That was another Piltz characteristic. He never worked on Sundays. Neither did any man or woman in his employment. It wasn't for religious reasons because he had little if any religious faith. It was the Piltz way.

He read avidly and liked discussing politics and all the other ideas of educated men. But he never undertook guiding, packing or other sidelines by which the district ranchers padded their thin incomes. He was a rancher only.

Oddly enough, although singlemindedly good as a rancher, he was never considered a good cowboy. He rode recklessly, but without grace or style, people said, and he broke many bones.

The last bunch were broken by a horse in 1957. He sold the ranch and moved into Williams lake.

Suddenly, Gus Piltz found himself with what was, for the 1950s, a modest fortune.

Singlemindedly, he set out to give it away. He provided a few bequests for relatives and friends and had almost $100,000 left. With this he created the Piltz Foundation which gives annual grants to children seeking the education that Gus never got.

With alarming speed he lapsed into senility. Some said it was because the new owners had run an air strip across one of the best hay meadows on Sky Ranch.

He lived on for dim years in a private hospital and finally died Jan. 23, 1967.

The Piltz Foundation money still goes out, year by year. This fall there were 53 applicants. The income from the $100,000 fund provided grants for 22.

Gus is buried at the lake.

He had told his nephew that he was to be buried on the mountain behind the ranch. It was all written down, he said. But when he died there was nothing written down that could be found.

That mountain is Piltz's Peak on our maps. It rises, green timbered at the base, bare grey rock at the top, above what used to be called Big Swamp. It is not particularly high nor graceful, but it is solid, unchanging, enduring.

All 15 of the most active NYSE issues declined, with seven falling by a point or more. Boeing, the volume leader lost 2⅝ to $56⅞.

Gold

LONDON (AP) — Closing gold prices Thursday, in U.S. dollars an ounce: London, 234.75; Paris, 235.39; Frankfurt, 234.14; Zurich, 233.375; Hong Kong, 229.82.

Among speculative issues, Queenston Mines was up two cents at 52 cents with 10,000 shares changing hands.

London

LONDON (CP) — Concern over the government's pay policy and the United States economy sent the London stock market sharply lower today near the close of active trading.

The Financial Times index of 30 industrials closed at 484.4, off 5.3.

HBMS Merger Plan

TORONTO (CP) — A merger plan has been proposed that would give Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. of Toronto and Minerals and Resources Corp. Ltd. of Bermuda full control of a United States copper mining operation.

If approved, the plan would result in the merger of Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co. of Morristown, N.J., with its holding company, Inspiration Holdings Inc. Inspiration operates a major, open-pit mine in Arizona.

The U.S. company is wholly-owned by Hudson Bay Mining and the Bermuda company. Inspiration shareholders will be asked to vote for the merger at a meeting of stockholders Dec. 14.

Hudson Bay Mining and Minerals and Resources currently hold about 75 per cent interest in Inspiration. About 20 per cent of the shares are held by Atlantic Richfield Co. of California.

The merger will be sought largely through an exchange of shares. However, Hudson Bay Mining and Minerals and Resources have the option to redeem class A preferred stock it does not own at $33 a share by Feb. 1 or March 1, 1979.

Cut KVOS-TV Ads, CRTC Urged

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commercials on a Bellingham television channel should not be aired in Canada because Canadian firms are taking much of their advertising revenues to the station, the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) has been told.

Daryl Duke, president of the independent CKVU-TV of Vancouver, urged the CRTC Tuesday to immediately institute the random deletion of commercials from KVOS-TV as a condition of all Vancouver-area cable licence renewals.

Duke said advertising time on Canadian TV stations is not completely sold out.

He said KVOS has no right to compete for advertising in the Canadian market. He said it undermines advertising rates for Canadian stations in the Vancouver area and injures channels that provide Canadian television service.

He said KVOS is selling advertising at half the price of Vancouver-area stations to make up for the effect of Bill C58, which prohibits the tax deduction of advertising expenses on U.S. channels by Canadian firms.

CRTC vice-chairman Charles Dalfen said the CRTC agrees in principle with the random deletion of commercials but has temporarily suspended implementation of the policy until the effectiveness of Bill C58 has been investigated.

The Association of Lower Mainland Cablevision Operators (ALMCO), which groups the major Vancouver-area cable operators, said random deletion would be aggravating to their subscribers.

ALMCO secretary David Smith said KVOS would schedule their ads so that random deletion would be ineffective in blanking out major Canadian commercials on the station.

Delta Cable Television Ltd., supported by 64 group and individual submissions, made a bid for the right to provide its 17,000 viewers with the same lineup of U.S. stations available to 95 per cent of Greater Vancouver subscribers.

Delta is the only cable system in Greater Vancouver lacking official sanction to bring in KSTW-TV, the independent Tacoma, Wash., station.

W. Stanley Thomas, Delta president, challenged the regulatory agency's interpretation of the Broadcasting Act and its jurisdiction in proposing a Canadian cable-carrying limit of four U.S. television stations, one less than what Delta Cable now carries.

"Our subscribers are deeply alarmed, indeed deeply incensed, that their choice of TV viewing is to be arbitrarily limited in this way," Thomas said.

"Nowhere in the Broadcasting Act do we find any specific instruction to the CRTC to impose this formula of four U.S. stations — three commercial and one public.

Thomas said that if the CRTC denies his request for equality with other cable companies, then all the companies should be refused permission to carry KSTW-TV Tacoma.

"We submit that the question of Canadian culture as related to foreign broadcasting is irrelevant," he said. "Canadians don't watch U.S. television to develop a culture but in order to watch the best TV programming available.

ALMCO backed Delta's application and urged the CRTC to adopt the criteria that any signal received off-air in the licensed area should be permitted on the cable system and that any signals previously licensed should not be denied at renewal time.

They also said that carriage of independent U.S. stations offering substantially different programming should not be denied because they exceed the commission's" general rule" regarding a limit of four U.S. stations.

"If the commission considers any of these points to be unacceptable, then we hereby request that a public hearing be held, in order that any proposed policies involving these important matters can be debated in a public forum," said ALMCO chairman Garth Pither.

He told the CRTC that, pushed too far by commission red tape, householders might begin moving back to the old individual aerial system and away from cable.

The Delta application was opposed by Donald Smith; of British Columbia Television, who said the five-per-cent addition to the Canadian viewing audience of the Tacoma station could have a significantly negative effect on the industry in B.C.

No Recall For MGBs

TORONTO (CP) — MGB sports cars sold in Canada will not be affected by a recall issued in the United States.

Max Wickens, public relations manager for British Leyland Motors of Canada Ltd., said no recall is necessary because models sold here use a different emission control system than those sold in the U.S.

The U.S. environmental protection agency said 50,000 cars are being recalled to repair defects which may have caused the emission controls to leak pollutants.

The recall covers 1975 models built for sale in California, all 1976 and 1977 MGBs sold in the U.S. and some 1978 models.

In 1981, this Mercedes-Benz will likely command nearly 90% of its original price.

A Mercedes-Benz holds its value for the very same reasons that make it a valuable purchase in the first place: Performance. Engineering excellence. Safety. Comfort. Timeless styling.

Right now, the average resale price of a three-year-old Mercedes-Benz is nearly 90% of its price when new. Even after five years, which is not long in the life of our cars, a Mercedes-Benz still commands over 60% of its original price.

What is true now, will be true tomorrow. Because a Mercedes-Benz is built to be here today—and here tomorrow.

Which gives you one more reason to consider a new Mercedes-Benz: Its investment value.

Muzzle Of Port Foes?

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government has decided against presenting two briefs opposing expansion of the Roberts Bank port before public hearings, federal government task force co-ordinator Mike Romaine said Wednesday.

The two briefs, from the environment and fisheries ministry, contain criticism on technical, economic and biological grounds, of a $350,000 environmental impact study paid for by the National Harbors Board (NHB).

The hearings on the Roberts Bank expansion, south of here, are being held this week in nearby Richmond and Delta.

Federal Environment Minister Len Marchand Wednesday denied he ordered Pacific Region officials to remove two of five briefs scheduled for the hearings.

However, he said that travelling orders in his ministry are to stick to matters of the environment and that some passages in some of the briefs may not have been relevant.

Beak-Hinton Ltd. of Vancouver took a subjective approach to the environmental study it conducted and failed to adequately consider alternative West Coast port locations, said the federal task force from the department of fisheries and the Environment.

The task force called for a two-year investigation of alternate port sites and questioned the economic need for Roberts Bank.

Romaine said Wednesday re-drafting of all input, prepared over several months, was ordered by senior management.

Marchand denied charges that he had been pressured by Transport Minister Otto Lang to muzzle the environment ministry's comments on Roberts Bank.

Mushroom Pickers Fined

COURTENAY (CP) — Three Calgary men and a Mackenzie man were fined $300 when they pleaded guilty Wednesday to charges of possession of psilocybin, the hallucinogenic chemical in psilocybe mushrooms which grow wild in fields during the fall.

They were arrested along with three others as they picked mushrooms early Wednesday morning. Psilocybin is restricted under the Food and Drug Act.

Fined were David Calbury, 26, Mark Andre Gorieu, 18, and David Lloyd Wertin, 21, all of Calgary, and Charles William Fuller, 17, of Mackenzie.

Calvin Robert Lane, 23, of Victoria was released on $500 bail until he enters a plea Nov. 9.

Brit Rydberg, 20, of Norway, and Phillip Lee Cartier, 22, of Calgary pleaded not guilty and were released on $500 bail until trials set for Feb. 5.

Safety Man Blamed for Ski Collision

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Manning Park ski patrol member whose job was to enforce skiing safety was found liable Wednesday for crippling injuries to a young skier he crashed into April 8, 1976, in Manning Park.

Justice K.E. Meredith ruled that Larry LaCasse was negligent in becoming airborne when he sped over the crest of a hill and ran into Teresa Taylor.

Miss Taylor, 14 at the time, was left a spastic quadraplegic.

The B.C. Supreme Court case will resume Feb. 5 when damages will be assessed.

Court was told the girl was crossing Gibson Pass with Ankenman when LaCasse soared over the crest above her as she was getting up from a fall.

Justice Meredith said LaCasse "was well aware of the fact that jumping or becoming airborne on the crest was prohibited for the safety of the jumper himself and of those who might be injured by him."

"The accident did not occur out of clumsiness or lack of skill," he said. "The accident occurred by reason of a tragic though momentary lapse in judgment."

Gas Storage Costs B.C. $334M a Year

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia is serving as a vast underground reservoir for natural gas on behalf of the Northwest Pipeline Corp. of Salt Lake City, Utah, an official of the B.C. Petroleum Corp. told the National Energy Board (NEB) on Wednesday.

"B.C., the producers, and Westcoast Transmission Co. have done everything in their power to serve the United States Pacific Northwest with its gas requirements," said Don Rawlyk, manager of natural gas for the B.C. Petroleum Corp.

It now is up to Northwest Pipeline to live up to its bargain and to "take it or pay for it," he said.

Northwest Pipeline signed a contract in 1974 to take 809.2 million cubic feet of gas a day, or 281.4 billion cubic feet a year, up to Oct. 31, 1989, on a "take-it-or-pay-for-it" basis.

However, the NEB — responsible for gas export licensing — later rescinded the take-or-pay provision and Northwest Pipeline has not been obliged to take all the gas it contracted to take.

As a result, Rawlyk said gas in the ground in B.C. is really being stored for whenever Northwest Pipeline chooses to take it.

He said this is costing B.C. an estimated $334 million a year through the shortfall in exports to the U.S. company.

Norman Gish, chairman of the B.C. Energy Commission, backed up Rawlyk's argument.

"The removal of the take-or-pay provision is creating havoc in B.C.," he said. "It should be reinstated and if Northwest Pipeline can't take it, we in B.C. should make alternative arrangements (for exporting the gas)."

Gish also asked the NEB that when it considered applications from Alberta for that province to export more gas to the U.S., "the board ensure that such sales do not adversely affect markets for B.C. gas in the U.S. Pacific Northwest."

Westcoast Transmission Co., which pipes gas to Northwest Pipeline Corp., said it favored short-term exports of surplus gas as long as this did not involve construction of new facilities.

Skeletons Positively Identified

Two skeletons found in an abandoned mine shaft near Nanaimo Saturday have been positively identified as those of two brothers last seen alive in March, 1969.

RCMP identified the brothers as Terry and Darryl Wayne Brown who were 16 and 19 respectively when last seen by their parents before a weekend outing.

Their remains were found sitting close together in the Furnace Portal Mine, abandoned in the late 1940s. Three local teen-agers made the discovery while exploring the shaft which runs 450 metres into a hill about seven kilometres from Nanaimo.

The identifications were traced through a social insurance card found near one of the body's and corroborated by bone studies. A Nanaimo Rod and Gun Club badge for a club event March 29, 1969, was also found near the bodies.

The boys' family has since moved from the area. Their mother lives in Kelowna and the father in Surrey.

The youths who found the skeletons Saturday said they had walked for about an hour in the abandoned coal mines, using only flashlights to illuminate the pitch-black tunnels. Then they stopped for a rest.

"We were just sitting around and we found a wallet," said Jim Getman, 16. "I stood up and about three feet away I noticed a body. It was mostly a skeleton."

He said he stepped on it accidentally, then noticed the skull.

"We shone our flashlights on it, then we took off right away and went to the police."

While it took an hour to reach the spot where they found the bones, Getman said it took the trio only half the time to get out. "We were going pretty fast, we crawled really fast."

4-Year Term

100 MILE HOUSE (CP) — Ivor Squalian, 26, of Alexis Creek, was sentenced in provincial court Wednesday to four years for manslaughter in the stabbing death last spring of Teresa Billy of Redstone.

Squalian was originally charged with second-degree murder but pleaded guilty Tuesday to the reduced charge.

Airport Extension

CASTLEGAR (CP) — The City of Castlegar said Wednesday it is willing to operate the local airport for another five months until a suitable arrangement with Transport Canada can be found.

City officials announced in July that, because of a lack of attention by Transport Canada and the potential liability resting on taxpayers in the event of an accident, the city was giving up its airport administrative duties Oct. 31.

However, council in this West Kootenay centre has decided that the city will not operate the airport past March 31, 1979, and will be free of liability during the temporary period of operation.

Meier Gets Bail, Hearing Dec. 1

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Meier, a former aide to billionaire recluse Howard Hughes, was granted $50,000 bail with two $25,000 sureties in a county court hearing Wednesday that smacked of international intrigue.

Meier, a resident of the border community of Tsawwassen, is fighting a United States application for extradition based on fraud charges.

Judge Ray Paris said bail conditions included Meier surrendering his Canadian and any other passports he held, reporting three times a week to police and surrendering at the courthouse on Dec. 1 when the extradition application will be heard.

At one point during the day-long hearing, the judge excluded the public for 35 minutes while evidence was given concerning a telephone call to a U.S. law enforcement group.

John Taylor, Meier's lawyer, asked that the hearing be held in secret while Edward Hameluck, testifying on behalf of Meier, related what the call was about.

Taylor said Hameluck — a retired RCMP officer with four years experience with British Columbia's Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit and now security director for Meier's Bank of Tonga — said he believed publicity would endanger Meier, himself and government security.

Judge Paris said there didn't appear to be any precedence for the request but agreed to exclude the public. After the closed portion, the judge said he had agreed the evidence should be withheld."

In arguing against bail, Paul Halprin, a lawyer representing the U.S., asked the judge to consider Meier's past. He said a cablegram from Scotland Yard in England revealed there was a British arrest warrant for Meier for attempting to get a British passport by using false papers.

Halprin also said that in 1974 Meier forfeited $100,000 posted as bail in Nevada after he was arrested in August of 1973 on income tax charges.

"He's not a person that is likely to appear for a hearing," Halprin said. "It wouldn't matter how much money is posted."

Taylor argued that the cablegram gave the date of the alleged offence as being in 1978 at a time Meier was in Australia fighting extradition proceedings launched there by the U.S.

Taylor also said an action was launched Sept. 8 this year contesting the $100,000 forfeiture on the grounds Meier was sick in England and couldn't travel to the Nevada trial.

Halprin called two RCMP witnesses to show that Meier had attempted to escape through the back door when police arrived at his Tsawwassen home Friday.

Taylor suggested the RCMP didn't identify themselves immediately and that Meier and his family were frightened because they believed American agents had been watching the home during the previous week.

In arguing for bail, Taylor said Meier now is a Canadian citizen and has roots here. There also was no other place he could go.

"If he (Meier) cannot, in Canada, defeat this extradition, then he can't do it anywhere in the world . . . . He appears as a Canadian to seek release on reasonable bail."

Meier, born in New York in 1933, became a Canadian citizen last year. He has worked for companies then owned by Howard Hughes and from 1966 to 1970.

N-POWER PUSHED

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia will have to commit itself to a nuclear power program by the mid-1980s, a nuclear power specialist from Ontario said.

P.A. Ross-Ross, president of the Canadian Society for Mechanical Engineering, also said that nuclear power will be the mainstay of electrical generation in Canada "until the end of the century at least."

Shellfish Ban Partly Lifted

The federal fisheries department has partially lifted a ban on the harvesting of shellfish imposed earlier this month in the Strait of Georgia and Juan de Fuca Strait, a department spokesman said Tuesday.

Ken Jackson of the fisheries inspection branch said most of these areas now are open to the harvesting of oysters, clams and other bivalve molluscs.

Jackson said samples taken since the ban indicate that most of Georgia Strait is essentially free of the shell poison, but harvesting in three areas remain closed.

The areas are:

— A section in the northwest part of the Georgia Strait and Johnstone Strait, with a southern boundary from Willow Point to Francisco Point to Churchouse and a northern boundary from Tuna Point and Brasseau Point.

— An area in Johnstone Strait with northern boundaries between Boyles Point and Dillon Point and the southern boundary from Domville Point to the shore of Vancouver Island.

— The shores of the Greater Vancouver area from Point Atkinson to the United States border which are closed because of sewage contamination and red tide.

Company's Name Weird But Chemical 'a Wonder'

Its name is funny but the world won't be laughing if the Victoria company can end pollution of the seas.

The firm calls itself jAenon Chemical Industries Ltd., for no particular reason, and starting in December says a company spokesman, it will be making a wonder chemical which separates oil from water.

The chemical can be used to fight oil spills and to reduce the amount of waste oil dumped into the ocean.

If it works as well as president Jim McGhee believes it will, it should be a bestseller.

The chemical is to be tossed into bilge water and ballast to collect the oil which would then be retained on the ship. The water can then be tossed into the sea without adding to pollution.

"B.C. Ferries is interested in this along with the Canadian government and the U.S. navy wants us to rush them some for testing," McGhee said.

The company goes into business Nov. 1, in leased premises at the former Ste.Michelle winery on Quadra, and the first chemicals will be produced by mid-December.

Staff will be 10 to begin with growing to 30 within two years if all goes well.

"We could need a lot more people if this really takes off," McGhee said.

As for the name jAenon: "It doesn't mean anything in particular; we just wanted to be different."

jAenon is a division of Teglon Holdings Ltd., which McGhee also owns.

McGhee has been active in product development in the Victoria area for years, specializing in marketing of new computer technology.

Meeting experts in the chemical field diverted his interest to the new product, which was developed in Victoria.

The company is helped by increasingly-strict regulations about oil dumping. Various filters have been tried, which reduce oil content to 100 parts per one million gallons of water.

McGhee said his chemical should be able to reduce this further to one part per million gallons.

He said the federal government's oceanographic institute at Pat Bay has expressed interest and wants to conduct tests.

jAenon will also manufacture a non-toxic, non-explosive cleaning chemical for airplanes.

McGhee said chemicals are imported from the U.S. and the company could buy them at about 50 per cent of the cost if it operated in Seattle rather than Victoria.

"But I've lived here for years and I want to stay. Barry Mayhew (the industrial development commissioner) was also persuasive and helpful in finding a site for us in Victoria."

An application by the CN to abandon a spur railway line to the Quadra site could prove troublesome, McGhee said.

But the application may have been made without knowing about jAenon's plans to go into business there.

"Our costs will be much higher without that rail line. We are hopeful the CN will see its way clear to continue the service."

Ed and Donna are going to Fred and Mary's place.

Administrators' Plea For More Pay Rebuffed

Education Minister Pat McGeer Wednesday said his ministry has little sympathy for public school system administrators who say they don't make enough money.

The ministry will not support education administrators across the province who want higher allowances, McGeer told the annual conference of B.C. principals and vice-principals.

He was responding to a charge by one of the conference-goers gathered in the Empress for the three-day event, who said school administrators are being shafted by inadequate remuneration.

Some public school administrators get paid more than the deputy minister of education, said McGeer, whose 8 p.m. appearance opened the conference.

More than 100 administrators already make more than the deputy minister, who is responsible for running the public school system and post-secondary education.

The provincial government plans to hold the line with the taxpayers' money and plans no major salary increases for its own employees, McGeer said.

He also said limited tenure for adminstrators is another way of saying they are all teachers by profession and should never be strangers to the classroom.

McGeer was a University of B.C. professor before becoming education minister.

TWO SEARCHES UNDER WAY

Two searches — one for a missing plane and the other for an overdue fishing boat — are being carried out today.

A spokesman for the Pacific Rescue Co-ordination Centre at CFB Esquimalt said a Twin Otter aircraft from CFB Edmonton, as well as a Buffalo aircraft and two Labrador helicopters from CFB Comox, are searching for a single-engine aircraft that left Langley at 3 p.m. on Monday with one person aboard en route to Williams Lake.

The name of the pilot is being withheld pending notification of next of kin.

A search centre has been set up at Abbotsford with Capt. Dusty Rhodes of CFB Comox as searchmaster.

The overdue fishing vessel is the 28-foot troller Neptune which left Port Hardy on Saturday afternoon with three people aboard. The boat was to return to Port Hardy that evening after fishing on a route through Christie Passage to God's Pocket on the northwestern tip of Vancouver Island.

An Argus long-range patrol aircraft and a Tracker from CFB Comox were taking part in the search.

Names of the three fishermen are also being withheld.

FOUR SURVIVE SINKING

SEATTLE (AP) — A 20-metre fishing vessel sank within four minutes after a collision with a 357-metre U. S. Ocean Survey research ship, but all four persons aboard the smaller boat were rescued, the U.S. Coast Guard said today.

The names of those aboard the fishing vessel Welcome, which sailed from Friday Harbor, were not immediately available.

The collision occurred five kilometres northeast of Foulweather Bluff on the northern tip of the Kitsap Peninsula. The area is off the southwest corner of Whidbey Island.

Rehabilitation Equipment Presented

Three specially-designed pieces of children's rehabilitation equipment worth $4,233 have been presented to Queen Alexandra Hospital for Children by the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League.

President Mrs. Nancy Black officially presented a Mulholland prone stander, worth $633, and two Mulholland growth guidance chairs, each costing $1,800, to D.C. Field, vice-chairman of the board of trustees.

The league is marking its 40th year of service to the hospital.

Expert's Touch To Amity Concerts

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The pair of concerts being presented this week by Amity Singers clearly shows that this Victoria ensemble's professional aspirations are well founded.

Opening its season with candlelight performances at the Empress Hotel Wednesday and again tonight, the musical expertise and the care and dedication with which the program has been prepared under musical director Jon Washburn places the group's achievement on a high level.

The concert was delayed 10 minutes while extra tables and chairs were put in place for the overflow audience which crowded the ballroom and spilled into the adjoining lounge. But while it is true that this professionally-oriented ensemble is deservedly popular, a subsequent ticket count revealed that about 50 people who had tickets for tonight's repeat performance turned up Wednesday night.

There is considerable literature for chamber-size vocal ensembles like Amity-but from it Washburn must choose that which best suits the particular blend, strengths and weaknesses (mostly tenor) of his group. Even so, one sometimes wishes that the literature could be a little more widely explored.

Washburn has an esoteric taste for the remote past and for a contemplative-spiritual kind of music that is in itself lovely and which he is adept at conjuring beautifully from his singers.

Still, however much one admires such delicate, perfectly controlled performance, there is a tendency to verge on the insipid and to find that the style and concept waters the pallet for other kinds of song.

The present program reveals this. It begins with a group of 16th and 17th century madrigals in which the choir achieves an exquisitely fine-spun texture of sound, an effect of tone that, while being well supported, floats like thistledown held lightly in a web of rhythm.

Lute songs from the same period follow. These highlight choir soloists Susan Westmacott, Edgar Samuel and Nancy Holmes. Denis Donnelly from the bass section is the lutenist and Washburn exchanges his invisible baton for a bow, adding the viola da gamba to the ensemble. The general mood, as Washburn himself says, is of lament "because that's the way the Elizabethans liked it."

A suite of five songs by contemporary American composer Ned Rorem, settings of poems "from an unknown past," carry the prevailing style and mood on to intermission. All the while one is admiring the fineness, delicacy and discipline of the performance but hoping for a change of mood as well as of pallet.

This finally comes with the Romancero Gitano, (Gypsy Stories) by Mario Castelnuovo-Tedesco, a set of five Spanish songs set to guitar accompaniment, the latter supplied by guest artist Denis Olsen. Here there is a distinct style change and a clear delineation of mood with a hint of the ensemble's more virtuosic potential, though the colors are somewhat watery.

The potential though is better established in the final group, three negro spirituals done with fervor, vitality, superb attack and splendidly scaled dynamics.

Development of the program's second half, which begins with a delightful presentation of J.S. Bach's Lute Suite No. 3, by Olsen, a most gifted and sensitive performer on this rare instrument, is well conceived and satisfying.

Two elements that tend to detract from complete enjoyment of the event are the hide-and-seek visibility of the performers from all but the front rank of tables and the intermittent but insistant thump-thump of disco sound from the hotel's lower region.

Premier Up At E&N Bat

Premier Bill Bennett, confident the province will win a court case to keep the passenger service on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, today requested an extension of the line's Dec. 13 closure date.

The Canadian Transport Commission has given CP Rail, the E&N's parent company, permission to discontinue its two Budd-Dayliner passenger cars after that date.

In a telegram to CTC president Edgar Benson, the premier requested an extension of the discontinuance date pending the Dec. 4 federal court of appeal case.

Reksten Eyes Council

A heavier hand with municipal budgeting is advocated by heritage writer and adviser Terry Reksten who announced Wednesday she will seek one of three Oak Bay council seats at the Nov. 18 elections.

Reksten, a founding member of the Hallmark Society and author of numerous articles on heritage buildings, recently published her first book on the life and works of architect Francis Rattenbury.

She was narrowly defeated in a bid for council five years ago.

She has been a been a member of the Oak Bay police board since 1974.

Mika To Seek Re-Election

Saanich Ald. John Mika said today he has decided to seek re-election next month, primarily because he is concerned about the "organized real estate lobby" which he believes is gaining momentum in Saanich.

He said the lobby isn't just bent on reviving the Royal Oak industrial park issue, although that's probably the major focus of interest right now.

"I think the lobby feels there is too much consideration being given to the concerns of residents and not enough consideration being given to the opportunities for profits for the developers," he said.

"Naturally, in that kind of situation, I expect there will be a fair amount of money spent on certain candidates because it is an investment for them (the property industry) to get their representatives on council.

"There certainly is not the same availability of funds for those who are just concerned with the needs of the residents themselves."

Mika, chairman of council's environment committee, was elected in 1976. In the public eye he is identified with the anti-development group on council, although he insists he's not an anti-development advocate.

He has described himself as a small-c conservative favoring a slow and cautious approach to the job of building the community.

Earlier this week Ald. Ian Cass attacked without identifying certain council members who, he claimed, had tried to destroy the municipal process by taking up council's time with personal feuds and political posturing.

Mika said Cass should name names rather than deal in innuendo.

Microwave Cooking
Fast
Convenient

Many people know that microwave cooking is great for cooking roasts, heating hot dogs and defrosting foods quickly.

But few people realize [illegible] can be microwaved to perfection. From plain dishes like scrambled eggs and bacon, scalloped potatoes and meat loaf, to fancy gourmet recipes like Duck a l'Orange, Lobster Newberg, Paella and Veal Scallop Florentine. You'll even make velvety smooth Hollandaise without a double boiler, right in the serving dish. (Less dishes make clean-up a lot simpler too.)

Foods can be reheated without further cooking, so meals can be prepared in advance, even for special guests.

With a Microwave Oven only the food gets hot so there's no danger of anyone, even a child, getting burned by a hot stove.

Foods taste better. Microwave cooking saves nutrients and natural flavours. And foods are better for you.

Unemployed Cost $3.9B

OTTAWA (CP) — The annual report of the ministry of employment and immigration, tabled Wednesday in the Commons by minister Bud Cullen, says unemployment benefits in 1977 cost the government $1.7 billion.

The remainder of the $3.9 billion outlay was paid through contributions from employees and employers who pay premiums based on salary levels.

The report said benefits increased in every province and in the Northwest Territories but decreased in the Yukon to $6.7 million from $7.3 million.

A regional breakdown of benefits paid in order of amounts: $1.482 billion in Quebec; $1.011 billion in Ontario; $448 million in British Columbia; $216.8 million in Newfoundland; $192.9 million in Nova Scotia; $113.7 million in Alberta; $99.1 million in Manitoba; $71.5 million in Saskatchewan; $38.4 million in Prince Edward Island; $6.7 million in the Yukon; $3.8 million in the Northwest Territories.

About $3.4 billion was paid because of regular unemployment circumstances while the rest was paid in training, fishing, sickness, maternity, and retirement benefits.

Other highlights in the report:

—In the 1977-1978 fiscal year, $570 million was spent under the manpower training program, providing industrial and institutional training for about 300,000 adults.

—About $335 million was spent creating jobs for 75,200 persons in Canada Works projects. In the similar youth program, Young Canada Works, $46 million was spent creating 30,500 jobs. The majority of these jobs are temporary but some lead to permanent positions.

—The summer job corps program cost $8.5 million for 5,300 jobs. About $532,000 was spent in five communities under the emergency-response program to prevent dislocation because of massive layoffs.

—About $10.5 million was spent on mobility grants for nearly 50,000 persons moving to search for work or to take jobs.

—Immigration decreased by 23 per cent over 1976. Last year, 109,274 immigrants were admitted and 45,045 of them joined the labor force.

ber and hiring date of all new employees. It would amount to between six million and seven million registrations annually.

This program has been tested since last February in six cities and officials say only one or two of up to 300 employers who participated opposed the plan. It is aimed at deferring abuse by showing persons who are claiming benefits while working. It will require the government to hire about 175 new computer operators.

—Officials who process insurance claims will be under closer supervision so computer errors, mistaken judgements and sloppy work will be caught.

—The government will continue other controls, including comparison of new and old claims from the same persons, random interviews of claimants, reviews of individual cases and special investigations into certain industries or regions.

In addition, St.-Laurent estimated that unemployment insurance benefits paid in 1978 will total $4.7 billion.

CUPW WORKERS RETURN

done everything they could to crush the union. They've made more enemies than friends. The staff relations are worse now than ever were before."

Stewart said the union agreed to order the members back to work because it became obvious the government was willing to go to any extreme to defeat it.

He said the union could not win its struggle with the government without massive support from the labor movement.

"We got a lot of verbal support, donations and encouraging words," Stewart said.

"But that wasn't enough. We had to have other unions prepared to take job action."

He said the Canadian Labor Congress will have to answer why it wasn't more supportive.

Stewart warned there could be further job action if the government proceeds with charges against the five union executive members charged Wednesday.

"We're not ready to stand by and see our national president go to jail. That would be pushing us a bit too far."

The union and its leaders were charged under a section of the Criminal Code making it an offence to disobey an act of Parliament, in this case the back-to-work legislation passed a week ago.

As Parrot was making his back-to-work order public at an Ottawa news conference, it was announced that 31 union members had been charged in provincial court in Vancouver for contravening back-to-work legislation passed last week in Parliament.

They were charged with committing an offence under the Public Servant's Staff Relations Act, a court spokesman said.

The Vancouver union members charged are to appear in court on various dates next month.

It was the threat of mass firings in the post office, rather than the back-to-work legislation, which persuaded the union to return, Parrot said.

Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne had said that workers not returning to their jobs by 12:01 a.m. today would be be fired and unable to appeal the action.

Parrot and four unnamed members of CUPW's national executive committee appeared in Ontario Supreme Court here today, charged under section 115 of the Criminal Code with contravening a statute of Parliament.

A spokesman for Justice Minister Otto Lang said Wednesday night warrants had been issued for the arrest of the leaders. However, Parrot said he understood there would be no arrests as long as the five showed up in court.

Lang told the Commons that he would procede with charges even if the postal situation was cleared up. He said he would not withdraw charges in exchange for a return to work.

Earlier Wednesday, the RCMP raided CUPW headquarters in Ottawa and its offices in Halifax, Toronto, Vancouver and Montreal.

'You have, what you say,

asked the concerned Portuguese officer

Rookie in the Rigging

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

FIRST Lieutenant Joao Martins peers down at me from the second crowsnest platform and warns me to be more careful now because the next stage of the rigging ladder will move a bit.

I take a breather and glance down to the rolling deck of the Portuguese sail training vessel Sagres II some 30 metres below.

That was a big mistake. So I look up again where the toes of Joao's running shoes peek over the edge of the solid platform, a tantalizing three metres further up the foremast.

But what an infinitely long three metres.

To get there I have to negotiate a rope ladder which runs from the mast to the outside edge of the overhead platform putting the angle of the climb well past the vertical.

Until that point, the climb hadn't been too difficult.

"You have, what you say, a little bit dizzy when you go high?" Joao had asked me earlier.

"Nope," I had replied confidently, probably because of the lingering effects of an after-lunch bagaco, a liquor distilled from the bottom of a wine cask after the wine is siphoned off.

Bagaco is crystal clear like water, but burns with a deep blue flame when touched with a lighted match.

It also produces fire in the belly and stokes up courage.

So Joao and I mounted the rail of the 90-metre barque and began clawing our way up the rigging to the first station of the 45-metre foremast.

It was easy going. The angle of the climb couldn't have been any more than 60 degrees, the cable rigging firm and the wooden rungs solid.

We rested about 15 metres above the water, surveying the sparkling clean ship below.

After a few minutes Joao began ascending the second and much steeper set of rigging. I followed another 15 or so metres to the point where I came to grips (no pun intended) with that overhead dangling ladder that was my ticket off the rigging to the second platform.

And although hard-pressed to exactly describe how it was accomplished, a few seconds later I was somehow standing on the tiny crowsnest beside Joao.

BELOW and to the horizon, stretched the panorama of sun-bathed Gulf Islands as the tall ship sliced the seas of Plumper Sound.

Joao saved me the agony of deciding whether to go to the very top of the mast by saying it is not permitted.

Joao is not usually at sea. He is a physical education instructor at the Portuguese Naval Academy in Lisbon — a job to which he will likely return once the 10-month around the world cruise of the Sagres — pronounced SHARGH-rays — is finished next April.

The visit of the Sagres last week to Victoria and Vancouver marked the end of the tall ships that came to help B.C. with the Capt. Cook bicentennial festivities. She was the first Portuguese naval vessel to visit B.C.

After a couple of days in Victoria she sailed on the 24-hour run to Vancouver.

The skipper of the Sagres, Capitao de Fragata Jose Fernandes Martins e Silva, who has served on the vessel three times with three different ranks over the past 15 years, says a sail vessel is the best possible training for officer cadets.

About two days out of Acapulco, the Sagres encounterd Hurricane Norman with 80-knot winds.

She was outfitted with a single Man diesel engine that became an important training ground itself.

The between-war German navy was not allowed to build diesel powered ships, but the rule was ignored for the seemingly harmless cadet sail trainers.

But the Man diesel was to be the one that powered the German submarines a few years later. Many a U-boat engineer received his training in the engine room of the Sagres and her sister ships.

So well-built and looked after, the original engine still punches the Sagres along at nine knots.

(And if further testimony to the sunny Mediterranean clime is necessary, the 41-year-old sails are all originals, too. Eat your hearts out, mildew-plagued West Coast sailors.)

After the war the Sagres went to Brazil before being purchased by Portugal in 1962.

But because the Brazilian navy is dry, the first thing the Portuguese navy did was to install a 17,000-litre wine tank in the hold.

Officer and regular seaman alike are treated to wine at every meal in the Portuguese navy.

And although only a vin ordinaire in the home country, the full-bodied dry red from the Lisbon area would be a special treat on a B.C. dinner table.

The officers in the wardroom were as willing to share with us their special supplies of bagaco as they were their stories of their part in the 1974 socialist military coup that overthrew the 42-year dictatorship of Antonio Salazar.

New Harbor Plan Includes Room For Conventions

The provincial government's plans for the Reid site have been substantially overhauled to make room for limited convention facilities and a new Maritime Museum building, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf announced Wednesday.

The government originally wanted to have a large food retail centre on the site, but that plan has now been abandoned apparently because private developers wouldn't get behind the scheme.

The food retail building was to have been constructed by the private sector, but after months of advertising the government had no satisfactory offers.

At a press conference Bawlf said that after getting input from the business community and other sources it was decided to suspend the original proposal and to revise the plans.

The entire project will cost $5 million or more.

The new Reid site proposition calls for:

— A 16,000-square-foot trade and exhibit centre which will be capable of holding up to 1,800 people and could be used for conventions, concerts and trade shows. (The space will be leased for five-year terms by the yet-to-be-formed Victoria Trade and Convention Bureau.)

— Some 45,000 square feet of retail space in which seafood, fresh produce, and specialty food stores will be located. (This was the focus of the original proposal.)

— A 250-car underground parking garage to be built at a cost of about $1 million and operated by the city.

— An acre of open space consisting of roof gardens, promenades and plazas.

— A separate 1,800-square-foot building on the south end of the site to house the Maritime Museum, now in Bastion Square.

Bawlf said that after Victoria's city council has endorsed the proposal the plans will be tendered for bids from private developers.

"It will be up to the developer to finance, build, and manage the complex except for the city's parkade and the museum premises, which will be purchased from the developer upon completion at a pre-negotiated price," said the minister.

Bawlf said the province's contribution to the multi-million dollar development will be the land and the old Maritime Museum quarters which is to be redeveloped for commercial use.

Asked if he thought the private sector would respond favorably to the revised proposal Bawlf said: "I certainly hope so. I've put a lot of time into this."

He added that the main problem with the orignal plan was a shortage of parking space. Initially, room was to be left for only 170 cars.

Mayor Mike Young, who attended Bawlf's press conference at the Malahat Building, seemed impressed by the plans.

"This proposal has a lot of merit," said Young. "The uses are in my opinon acceptable."

Cleaner Saves Hotel

An alert cleaning woman early today averted what could have been a serious fire at the Tudor Hotel, 533 Admirals.

An Esquimalt fire department spokesman said the woman spotted smoke coming from an electrical outlet at 4:21 a.m. and turned in the alarm.

When firemen arrived they cut open the wall near the plug and flames burst out. The fire, caused by faulty wiring, was quickly extinguished.

"We were fortunate. If the cleaner hadn't been in the right place at the right time, it could have been serious," the spokesman said.

IS SAANICH ASKING FOR BAD LUCK?

Crow Shooting to Backfire, Says Sam

Shoot crows and look for woes.

After Saanich council bylaw enforcement committee recommended Wednesday a controlled shoot to get help rid the municipality of surplus crows, Sam told the Times bad luck will dog the killers.

Sam said as an environmentalist he sees the crow population increase as part of a normal cycle.

Sam said the the fish crow — the local species — has co-existed with man since the beginning of time.

"I feel quite certain when the crow goes, so will man," he added.

Another band member, Dave Elliot, said native people never harmed crows.

"They have as much right to live as we do," he said.

Ald. Ian Cass told a committee meeting that anyone with a sincere interest in the environment has to be concerned with the crow population.

"They have been responsible for decimating the song bird population in Greater Victoria," he claimed.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said he welcomes any approach to reduce the crow population.

Student Fizzle on Quiz Biz Puzzles Their Professor

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

One student in four couldn't name all 10 provinces.

More than 60 per cent couldn't identify the head of state of Canada.

And well over 70 per cent hadn't a clue what level of government has the power to levy income taxes.

An elementary school grade? A class of new Canadians?

In a recent general knowledge quiz, more than three quarters of the students flunked, unable to answer what Morley considers fundamental questions about how government, mainly in Canada, works.

Not once in the past four years have his students achieved an average passing grade in the quiz he gives his class prior to starting the course.

The results this year were the poorest yet.

The class average was 35 per cent, ranging from a low of 12 to a high of 69. Last year the average was 38 per cent.

Morley says he isn't really surprised by the results.

But he thinks some of the students should have done better, particularly since his seven-year-old son took the test and got a 33 per cent score.

Morley said he doesn't expect everyone to get 100, but a grade of 60 to 70 per cent wouldn't be unreasonable.

The test showed a number of students had never heard of Stalin and some of those who had, confused him with Lenin. Hitler was better known but one student put him down as a former communist leader of Germany.

Morley said the most shocking revelations were on matters pertaining to Canadian history.

Only 72.5 per cent of the students could name all 10 provinces and only two of the 70 who wrote the test could name them in the order they came into Confederation.

A lot of students thought the North West Territories and the Yukon were provinces.

"I can see an American not being able to provide the names of all 50 states, but here we are in Canada with only 10 provinces and more than a quarter of the students can't name them all. It's really quite shocking."

He said he was equally aghast that only 39 per cent of the students were able to name the Queen as the head of state of Canada. Some thought the answer was the Prime Minister; others the Governor-General.

Morley said well over 70 per cent of the students didn't know the federal and provincial governments both have the power to levy income tax, a basic question for which he felt every person who has the vote should know.

Morley said half the students couldn't name more than three of the nine prime ministers in this century.

And fewer than five per cent understood the formal procedure for amending the Canadian constitution.

Only a handful of students were able to come up with Stuart Smith's name as the leader of the opposition in Ontario. A few got Claude Ryan as the leader of the Liberal party in Quebec but practically no one named Michael Cassidy as the leader of the New Democratic Party in Ontario.

Another question asking for the names of two justices of the Supreme Court in Canada and the United States was a complete disaster. Morley said. In past years students have generally known more U.S. justices than Canadian ones but this year students drew a blank on both.

"Clearly the basic information is being neglected in the high school system," he said.

"It's a problem for us in university. We're taking in students as bright if not brighter than ever before but what they've been exposed to in the way of challenges has been really pretty feeble."

He said the test results point out a lack of interest among young people in history or current affairs. More than 70 per cent of the students never read newspapers and even those who watch television do not follow the news regularly, he said.

Before the Judge

A 22-year-old man was remanded for a psychiatric report after appearing in provincial court Wednesday on three charges.

Gary Howard Grant, 228 Edwards, was put over by Judge William Ostler until Nov. 20 for pre-sentence and psychiatric reports after pleading guilty to mischief causing wilful damage, common assault and failing to comply with a bail condition.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said the charges were in connection with two incidents.

On the mischief charge, Mulligan said, Victoria Fire Department crews and equipment were dispatched at about 10:50 p.m. Oct. 3 to put out a car fire on the top storey of the Yates Street carpark. Mulligan said the car was destroyed.

Victoria city police approached Grant four days later, Mulligan said, and Grant admitted opening the rear door of the vehicle and lighting a match to it. He told police he felt something was wrong with him and he needed help.

In connection with the other two charges, Mulligan told the court police were called to Grant's residence regarding a domestic squabble Oct. 13.

Grant had accused his wife of having an affair and assaulted her, punching her twice in the face and threatening to kill her, Mulligan stated.

Mulligan also said Grant violated a bail condition set previously to keep the peace and be of good behavior.

Richard William Stewart, 31, of 855 Ellery, was denied bail after being charged with breaking and entering Aaronson's Pharmacy, 1089 Fort, Tuesday night.

Stewart was remanded until Oct. 30 for election of trial method.

A Montreal youth, convicted of theft twice while on a two-year probation, was given a seven-day jail term for shoplifting $3.95 worth of meat and fish Tuesday afternoon from Safeway at Town and Country shopping centre.

Michel Lionel Joseph Lafleche, 17, who pleaded guilty, placed the articles under his coat and when questioned by police said he took the items because he was hungry.

Lafleche was convicted Sept. 2, 1977, in Ontario of theft and given a suspended sentence and placed on two years' probation.

Ostler handed out a suspended sentence but ordered a 36-year-old man to make restitution of $115.72 which included $80 costs for cleaning up his blood.

John Glen Poirier, 912 Catherine, pleaded guilty to mischief causing wilful damage.

Court was informed Poirier broke a rear window of Norwich Union Life Insurance Society, 1162 Fort, shortly after 1 a.m. Tuesday morning, injuring a hand in the process.

Mulligan said cleaning staff found Poirier asleep on a couch inside the offices at 7:15 the same morning and called police.

Mulligan said the window damage came to $35.72 and the cleanup costs were $80.

Ostler placed Poirier, who has a lengthy criminal history, on six months' probation and ordered him to perform 75 hours of community service work as well as attend the Drug and Alcohol Rehabilitation Society for counselling.

Is Saving a Child's Life Political? Asks McCarthy

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy Wednesday fired back at NDP critics of her use of lottery funds to build a footbridge in Coquitlam.

The $100,000 footbridge across the Coquitlam River was considered following the death a year ago of a 13-year-old youth who was swept away while trying to take a shortcut to school across a shallow spot in the river, McCarthy said.

"If building a footbridge — which may save children's lives — is political, then we know where Mrs. Dailly's priorities lie," McCarthy said.

She was referring to suggestions from Burnaby North NDP MLA Eileen Dailly that the lottery money was being used for political purposes.

Dailly had discovered the Socred MLA for Coquitlam, George Kerster, requested the $100,000.

Dailly suggested Kerster is in politicial trouble and needed the footbridge to boost his standing in the constituency.

McCarthy said Kerster's concern for students in his constituency is human not political.

She added that the government is within its rights to use the funds for such a project because of recent amendments to the Lotteries Act expanding the types of projects available for lottery funds.

She said Kerster had exhausted all other sources of revenue for the footbridge before coming to her for lottery funds.

Meanwhile, Dailly said she is less than satisfied with the response she received from Auditor-General Erma Morrison on her request that the use of lottery funds be investigated.

Morrison said earlier the allocation of lottery funds is one of the areas her department will be investigating but that she will not speed up the investigation just because of Dailly's request.

Dailly said today she recognizes the limitations on the auditor-general's office, but feels B.C. residents are becoming increasingly disturbed about the way lottery funds are distributed.

Dailly said she wants a complete list of who has received money and how much they received.

McCarthy reminded Dailly that it was the Social Credit government that instituted the auditor-general and said she would be pleased to have Mrs. Morrison look into her ministry.

Husband Only Intended to 'Get Even'

A man accused of attempted murder told a B.C. Supreme Court jury Wednesday he went to his wife's office to "geteven," but he did not intend to kill her.

Jeo Robert Lipcsei, 43, said he had "very strong reason" for going to where his wife worked last July 18, but if he were going to murder someone he would not go to a crowded place at 3 in the afternoon.

"I'm not mad," Lipcsei said.

"I knew as soon as I struck Martha I was wrong. It was an impulse, an emotion . . ." said the accused, who is charged with attempted murder by striking his wife with an iron bar.

Lipcsei said he struck his wife three blows, holding the bar in his right hand, and asked how she liked being beaten.

He said he did it shortly after being beaten up by three unknown men who confronted him just outside his apartment door at 1655 Chambers, a few blocks from his wife's office in the law firm of Stevenson, Doell and Associates.

"All I am telling you, ladies and gentlemen, is I did not intend to kill my wife," Lipcsei said.

The accused said what happened in the office was a dramatic 15 seconds that differed from what previous witnesses described.

"I want to tell what happened. I know what happened because I was there."

He said he had asked himself why he had been beaten and concluded "what is good for the goose is good for the gander . . . no ifs, no buts."

"To get even," the accused replied.

In further cross-examination, Lipcsei said he was not sure that he had taken with him the iron bar entered as an exhibit. It was possible the bar was his, part of a weightlifting set, but the Crown had not proved it, Lipcsei said.

He did not recall carrying the bar to the office and didn't know how it got into his possession, or that it was indeed the same bar.

Then he denied taking the bar to the law firm, and denied striking his wife.

Lipcsei said he did not recall striking his wife: "I may have, I may not."

"Do you recall hitting your wife at all?" Birkett asked.

"No."

"Don't you remember saying in this court you hit your wife three times?"

"What I said was that I was fed by my counsel for three months," Lipcsei replied.

He said he remembered neither Darrel Woods nor Robert Doell, previous witnesses, coming into the office to help Mrs. Lipcsei.

Earlier, the trial was delayed several hours when Lipcsei discharged defence counsel Malcolm Macaulay and was given an opportunity to reconsider. Macaulay said there were reasons why he could not continue, that he wished to withdraw and that Lipcsei was prepared to carry on himself. The accused said he could not continue with the trial as indicated earlier by Macaulay and he elected to remain silent.

Mr. Justice J.A. Macdonald adjourned for lunch, but when court resumed Lipcsei indicated a change of heart and asked for Macaulay back. There was further delay while the Crown contacted Macaulay, who indicated his position had not changed. Lipcsei then agreed again to proceed.

Addressing the jury, Lipcsei said he had arrived in Canada 21 years ago, unable to speak English or to get a job, but he had become a Canadian and believed in the process of law, "that if you do something wrong you should be punished."

He also said guts and backbone make a man.

When he began describing the attack at his home, Lipcsei was told he would have to do so from the witness box and be subject to cross-examination by the Crown.

Lipcsei said he had no fear of being cross-examined or crucified.

He said one of the three men asked if he was Bob, and when that was acknowledged, struck the accused on the head with something like a pipe.

"It felt like the whole roof caved in on my head," he said.

A second blow fell across his cheekbone, a third over his forehead, knocking him down. There were more blows on the head and kicks to the face and groin, the last delivered with the words, "That's for Martha," the accused said.

Lipcsei said he crawled into his apartment, became ill and tried to clean himself up. It was then he saw the iron bar and asked himself why he had been beaten.

Mail Gets Through And Nails Couple

WHITEHORSE, Yukon (CP) — While Canadians were putting up with the just-ended postal strike, a United States couple is serving four months at Whitehorse Correctional Insititute because the mails got through only too well a couple of weeks ago.

David Nelson and Lauri Anne Tibbitts, both 28, of Illinois, were sentenced in magistrate's court Tuesday after pleading guilty to possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

Court was told the couple arrived here from Anchorage, Alaska, about two weeks ago and went directly to the post office to pick up a parcel waiting for them. They were arrested by RCMP on the eve of their wedding.

The package, labelled cameras, had been opened by suspicous customs agents who discovered the cameras buried in five bags of marijuana.

After being contacted by customs, the RCMP substitued peppermint leaves for marijuana, resealed the package and sent it through the postal system.

RCMP estimated the Colombian marijuana had a street value here of between $5,000 and $8,000.

Wayne Improves; Still Gets Lesson

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

In horse racing, as in most sport, winning is everything, and that goes for trainers as well as owners and jockeys.

And, in that regard, Victoria's Wayne Isbister is happy enough in his chosen profession. And for good reason.

Because since he went out on his own three years ago, he has done nothing but improve. And you can't do much better than that, not as a young man in a game of mostly veterans.

For Wayne, each of the past two years has been better than the one before with his third-place finish in the trainer standings at Exhibition Park this season as the highlight.

Isbister had 34 wins at Ex-Park and was in second place for a long time before being overtaken by Allan May near the close of the meeting. May finished with 38 with George Cummins taking leading honors with 44 wins.

That was nine better than in 1977 when Wayne had 25, plus six at Sandown, whereas in his very first season he managed only 11.

In money earned for his horses that works out to about $100,000 each of the past two seasons.

"I guess I've been lucky," he said Wednesday as he awaited the start of activity at Sandown where he had three runners going. "I have managed to hit the conditions just right," he added in partly explaining his success. (The "conditions" are the terms of the race as outlined in the small type above the names of the horses in the program).

So a trainer needs a break or two as well as a jockey, but Wayne's story probably deserves a little more than that.

For example, he claimed Teddy Bear D earlier in the season for $2,500 and Teddy Bear D repaid the favor by winning six up to an including a $6,250 claimer.

He also had Alderbug, a $3,200 claim, who went on to win four in a row.

He figures he has a Vancouver Island Derby candidate in the Earl Of Bon, who will run in Saturday's Derby trial.

He started the present Sandown meeting with 13 horses but has lost two to claims—Ballycraigy and Derek Green's Pickle Pie.

Isbister is second in the trainer standings at Sandown with four. Eric Garcea has the lead with six, winning one Wednesday.

Wayne credits his interest in his vocation to his beginning with Bill McMeans of Seattle several years ago and then a further apprenticeship under Fred Dyson.

And it was Dyson who showed him the old master still has a couple of tricks left on Wednesday, lest Wayne get out of hand.

As Isbister was blanked with Iron Plains (fourth in the fourth), Local Boy (fifth in the fifth) and Seenya Shaska (last in the sixth), Dyson was winning a pair including the feature.

The four-year old bay gelding Flyability, ridden by jockey Robert Stein, came from off the pace to edge longshot Forty Jewels by a neck and take the featured Uplands Purse over 6½ furlongs. Flyability returned $10.70, $5.50 and $4.70 as the favored Ole Par finished third. The exacta returned a whopping $226.60.

Dyson's other win came with the three-year old Town Prowler ($4.60) in the third. Stein was in the saddle for that one too.

Garcea picked up his win with Win Key ($5.90) in the sixth. It was Win Key's second win plus a third in three outings here.

Leading rider Mark Walker had two wins to go with Stein and now has a leading 11 for the meeting. Walker was up on Win Key and Vixen Lass ($6.00) in the eighth.

Quinellas will be held on the first four races and exactas on the final five. This pattern will prevail the remainder of the meeting with quinellas on the first four races and exactas on the others.

Weights for Saturday's Times Handicap and the accompanying Derby Trial were announced.

Saucy Verdict, winner of the opening day Colonist Handicap, drew high weight of 124 for the Times with Kimbob second at 119 and Moonbird next at 118. Others are Earl Of Bon 114, Teddy Bear D 112, Woodland Shadow 116, Lee's Craig Seven 116, Barbie Baby 114, Lord Hubert 114 and Hallelujah Point 112.

Friday's feature is the Capital City Commercial Club Invitational Handicap for fillies and mares.

Wednesday's crowd was 1,873 and the mutuel handle $142,706, an increase of $28,068 over last week.

SEYMOUR, Wis. (AP) — Donald G. Neal, a 15-year-old high school football player who collapsed during practice Tuesday, died of a hemorrhaged lung, Outagmaie County coroner Bernard Kemps said Wednesday.

High-Scoring Sutter Drops Old Goon Image

By Canadian Press

When Brian Sutter joined St. Louis Blues as a brash 20-year-old rookie midway through the 1976-77 season, he spent most of his time exchanging pleasantries with the enforcers of rival National Hockey League clubs.

In his first 103 NHL games he had a grand total of 13 goals and 205 minutes in penalties.

In his next eight, since the start of the current season, he has scored 10, a league high, while spending a relatively modest 22 minutes in the penalty box.

The left winger from Viking, Alta., and his linemates, Bernie Federko and Wayne Babych, scored two goals apiece Wednesday night in a 6-6 tie at Pittsburgh with Sutter and Federko shocking the Penguins with two goals in the last minute of play.

Three other NHL games ended in ties Wednesday as Boston Bruins had a 2-2 split at Minnesota, Toronto Maple Leafs drew 4-4 with Montreal Canadiens and Washington Capitals shared a 2-2 stalemate with Chicago Black Hawks.

New York Rangers hammered Vancouver Canucks 6-2 and Detroit Red Wings staved off a late Colorado rally to defeat the Rockies, 5-4.

The Blues, trailing 5-4, lifted their goaltender with more than a minute to play at Pittsburgh and appeared to be dead when George Ferguson's shot found their empty net at 18:59.

Sutter scored at close range 33 seconds later to narrow the gap and Federko poked home the tying goal in a goalmouth scramble with 11 seconds remaining.

The Bruins, playing their fifth road game in eight nights, started Jim Pettie in goal and the little-used netminder kicked out 36 Minnesota shots, 16 in the second period alone. Defenceman Gary Doak's long shot with 5:27 remaining gave Boston the tie.

Yvon Lambert's power-play goal midway through the third period pulled the Canadiens level at Toronto after Dan Maloney's second goal of the game had given the Leafs a 4-3 lead.

Washington rookie Paul Mulvey, whose older brother Grant was on the ice for the Black Hawks, disappointed the Chicago fans by finishing off a three-way passing play with Guy Charron and Bob Girard at 17:22 of the final period as the Hawks blew a 2-0 lead. Chicago remained unbeaten with three wins and three ties in six starts while the Capitals ended a four-game losing streak.

Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson, the Rangers' expensive Swedish acquisitions from Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association, turned in their most impressive game in New York uniforms as each accepted a pass from linemate Pat Hickey to contribute to a four-goal burst that finished off the Canucks in the first period.

A match penalty to Wilf Paiement of Colorado for breaking the nose of Detroit forward Denis Polonich in a stick-swinging duel was costly for the Rockies as the Red Wings scored four times while they held the edge in manpower. Andy Spruce contributed two goals to Colorado's four-goal rally in the third period.

SALE AGREEMENT REPORTS DENIED

Bassett Wants Argos Back

TORONTO (CP) — John Bassett, former owner of Toronto Argonauts, confirmed today he has had serious discussions about re-acquiring the Canadian Football League club.

And Argos' majority owner Bill Hodgson, while angrily denying reports that an "agreement" had been reached with the millionaire broadcaster-publisher to buy the team, said: "The team is not sold, it's not being sold at this time, it's not for sale.

"I haven't even made up my mind yet whether I want to sell it . . . Bassett did ask me if I would sell the club to him, but he's just one of a dozen guys who have asked me if I was interested in selling the team. I told him, as I've told the others, that if I make up my mind after the season to sell, I'd let him know."

"No final agreement has been reached," Bassett admitted. He sold the Eastern Conference club to Hodgson for $3.3 million after the 1973 season.

Bassett, president of Baton Broadcasting Ltd., said reports to the effect an agreement in principle had been reached with Hodgson were "incorrect."

And reports that Bassett's son, John F. Bassett, would take an active role in the operation of the Argonauts were dismissed by the younger Bassett as "absolute baloney." John F. owns and operates Birmingham Bulls of the World Hockey Association.

Hodgson still owns 60 per cent of the team and stands to make a substantial profit if the sale goes through at the end of the current season. Carling O'Keefe brewery, which owns the other 40 per cent, would remain a majority shareholder.

Shatto Accepts Blame

TORONTO (CP) — Dick Shatto, a former Toronto Argonauts great now in charge of running the Canadian Football League team's affairs, shoulders the blame for the club's downfall this season.

The Argonauts general manager said Wednesday of major concern to him was the firing of head coach Leo Cahill in mid-season. Shatto said he should have waited until the end of the year to make a coaching change.

In the second year of a three-year contract, Shatto also said it bothers him to hear about internal strife on the Argonauts, last in the Eastern Conference with a 4-10 record.

"As the general manager I have to assume the blame for what's going on," he said. "There's no room for infighting. I feel negligent for having allowed it to go on."

However, with just two games remaining in the regular schedule, Shatto said all he could do is hope the coaching staff will put aside any differences to work at getting the team into the playoffs. Toronto trails third place Hamilton Tiger-Cats by one point.

Cahill's firing was announced by Argos majority owner Bill Hodgson—after consulting Shatto—following a loss to Montreal Sept. 10.

Offensive co-ordinator Bud Riley was named to replace Cahill despite an obvious conflict of ideas with assistants Jim Rowntree and Chuck Dickerson. Rowntree was fired the following day after advising Shatto he couldn't commit himself to Riley.

Dickerson thought he could work out any differences, but apparently the rift continues. Earlier this week Dickerson criticized the numerous changes in personnel made by Riley in the last six weeks.

Shatto, however, refuses to accept any blame for dissension among his coaching staff.

Habs Won't Air Lafleur Money Deal

MONTREAL (CP) — Irving Grundman, managing director of Montreal Canadiens, refused all comment Wednesday on a published report that superstar right wing Guy Lafleur intends to quit the National Hockey League team unless his long-term contract is renegotiated.

"I have absolutely no comment on the matter," Grundman said. "You can ask me the same question eight different ways and I still will have no comment.

"It is not and never has been the policy of the Canadiens to discuss player contracts or salary matters with the press, as much as we respect them. We have nothing to say about the matter."

A report Wednesday said Lafleur's agent, Jerry Petrie, had issued an ultimatum to the team that unless the 27-year-old star had a new agreement by midnight Wednesday night he would sit out future games. The Canadiens met the Maple Leafs at Toronto on Wednesday night.

Petrie was to meet Grundman on Wednesday morning, but the managing director's secretary denied that a morning-long meeting was with Petrie.

Grundman later consented to a between-periods television interview in Toronto and said it was team policy not to discuss players' contractual agreements.

When asked by interviewer Dave Hodge whether there was a clause in Lafleur's contract which would allow the right winger to renegotiate his contract, Grundman replied: "I think that's a very clever question. But by the corporate policy we have set, I must say 'No comment.'"

The Canadiens executive added that he has every reason to believe the matter will be resolved very soon.

Lafleur has been reported to have six years remaining on a 10-year, $1-million contract. He now apparently feels he is grossly underpaid relative to other lesser players.

He was said to have been ready to skip the team's trip to Atlanta last Friday, where the Canadiens lost 7-5, before being talked out of that action.

A magazine story on player salaries published last summer was believed to be the prime source of Lafleur's discontent. It cited the salary of the centre Butch Goring of Los Angeles Kings as $200,000 a year, double what Lafleur, a three-time NHL scoring champion, is reported to receive.

Another report Wednesday put Canadiens goaltender Ken Dryden's salary at $325,000 a year. While Dryden is widely believed to be the highest-paid player on the team, he was generally thought to be making about $200,000.

Lafleur said he hoped everything would be resolved today.

"I never said I deserved the most money," he said. "Like my manager said, I want to be paid like they value me. That's all I want, you know."

Soccer Vikings Have a Target

This is the first season the Canada West University Athletic Association has had a league schedule instead of a tournament in soccer, so perhaps that's why UVic Vikings are anxious to finish No. 1.

Or it might be that the Vikes want to duplicate something no other UVic team has managed — win a Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union championship. The only CIAU pennant hanging in the McKinnon athletic complex was put there by the 1975 soccer Vikings under coach Brian Hughes and assistant George Smith, both still guiding the team's destinies.

In any case, Vikings can wrap up the league title and a trip to Montreal for the CIAU championship tournament Nov. 10-12 if they can beat University of Alberta Golden Bears this Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Vikings lead the Canada West league with four wins, two ties and a loss.

Alberta, always tough, faces a stiff test against UVic goaltender Ted van Waes of Nanaimo, who will be gunning for his fourth shutout of the season. He's had a lot of help in that regard from star defender and team captain Danny Lomas.

Game time Saturday is 2:15 p.m.

Two-Year Pact For Fryman

MONTREAL (CP) — Veteran left-handed pitcher Woodie Fryman, 38, has signed a two-year contract with Montreal Expos through the 1980 National League baseball season.

Fryman, acquired from Chicago Cubs on June 12, was 5-7 with a 3.60 earned-run average in 19 appearances with the Expos in 1978.

Hoop Openers Like Homecoming

It will be a little like homecoming weekend when Victoria's four major basketball teams get their initial taste of action this Friday and Saturday at McKinnon Gym.

UVic Vikings meet Victoria DataTech while the Vikettes play Victoria Home Lumber, making a return to women's senior "A" ranks after a one-year absence. Jack Lusk, who coached Home Lumber to the Canadian championship two years ago, is back at the helm.

He'll have Carol Turney and Shelley and Leslie Godfrey, three top stars who helped Vikettes to the national college finals last March, in his lineup. But Lusk will be missing three other top prospects, Bev Gait, Karen McComber and Sandy Lewis, all in Vancouver this weekend for training sessions with the provincial team scheduled to compete in the Canadian Winter Games in Brandon in February.

UVic guards Jane Boa and Tracie McAra also had chances with the provincial team but opted to play college ball this season.

Kathy Shields, moving up from assistant ranks to replace Mike Gallo as head coach, basically has a young Vikette team but boasts a couple of proven performers in Luanne Hebb, a Canada West conference all-star last year, and Michele Belanger, a transfer from the Canadian women's college championship Laurentian Vees.

Michele pulled a back muscle in workouts last week but has since scrimmaged and is expected to play in the Friday and Saturday encounters, both starting at 6:30 p.m.

Ken Shields, Kathy's husband who guided the Vikings to the Canada West men's title last spring, has several outstanding newcomers, including brothers Gerald and Greg Kazanowski from Nanaimo and Kelly Dukeshire and Ken Kirzinger, both from Oak Bay. But he'll be without Oak Bay guard Craig Higgins, who has been unable to recover from a knee inflamation.

Vikings face Billy Loos, their star from last year who has joined the Walt Burrows-coached DataTech team. Another big newcomer with the Senior "A" club is six-foot-eight centre Varrick Cutler from Philadelphia. Cutler played last season for Laurentian Voyageurs in Sudbury after four years at Maryland and LaSalle University in Philadelphia.

Also with DataTech are guards Bob Burrows, Brian McKenzie, Dave Morgan and Brent Mullins and forwards Jim Duddridge, Mike Gaines, Brian Brumwell, Chris Hall and Dave Mulcahy

Shields also is on the DataTech roster but won't suit up for the weekend games, starting at 8:30 both nights.

Gymnastic Team Misses Delesalle

STRASBOURG, France (CP) — The Canadian men's team labored under the absence of Commonwealth Games gold medalist Philip Delesalle of Victoria at the world gymnastics championships Wednesday.

Suffering from influenza, Delesalle was scratched from of the championships earlier this week.

"The team wasn't nearly as high today as it was in the compulsory," Canadian coach Keith Russel of Ottawa said following the optional portion of the competition. "We pulled Philip just a few minutes before the competition on Monday and the team really rose to the occasion."

The Canadian squad stood 13th Monday and just missed joining the 12 countries that advanced to the championship finals of the tournament which were held later Wednesday.

The favored Japanese took the team gold for its 10th consecutive world championship with 579.85 points. They were also Olympic champions in 1964.

The silver medals were won by the Soviet Union, with 578.95 points, while East Germany grabbed the third-place bronze with 571.75 points.

Rounding out the top 10 were the United States, 568.70; West Germany, 566.90; Hungary, 566.30; Romania, 560.85; France, 556.35; Czechoslovakia, 551.65, and Switzerland, 550.75.

The Canadian men finished second to Bulgaria in the preliminary morning competitions and were likely to be listed at least 14th in the world. They had been ranked 17th prior to the tournament.

"Without our top man today we didn't have the support of the audience," Russel said. "When the crowd is cheering all the competitors around you it has a profound effect.

"If Philip had been there I think the other boys would have scored two points higher and Philip would have added another six." The Canadians finished Wednesday's competition with 272.85 points to 279.8 for the Bulgarians among the six countries competing in the morning.

Best individual Canadian performance again was turned in by Warren Long, a Montreal native now living in Berkley, Calif. He compiled 56.05 points from six option exercises. Long also had the best single mark, a 9.6 for a double somersault with a twist vault on the long horse.

Owen Walstrom of Victoria, at 25 the oldest member of the Canadian team, provided the other Canadian highlight of the day. His flying horizontal twist on the high bar brought the one prolonged cheer for the Canadians Wednesday.

"It's not something I like to do very often," said Walstrom. "I did it here today, but I had a lot of trouble with my routine after." The judges gave him a 9.2 mark and he finished with 54.05 points for the day.

Second was Jean Choquette of Montreal, with 55.15 points. Pierre Cavel, also of Montreal, scored 53.7 while another Montrealer, Pierre Carrier who replaced Delesalle, scored 53.3. Nigel Rotherwell of Windsor, Ont., finished with 48.9 points.

The Canadian women's team, which ranks eighth over all after the preliminary events, will compete in the optional exercises today.

World Team Tennis Loses Its Apples

NEW YORK (AP) — With no star players signed for the 1979 season and the flagship New York Apples franchise apparently folded, World Team Tennis is in a precarious position.

Sol Berg, owner of the Apples, told members of the Apples staff last week that he was suspending operations for the team after losing nearly $1 million a year since he bought it in 1974.

He might have carried on with that situation, but he learned two weeks ago that no name players were in line to play WTT next season. That apparently was the last straw for Berg.

In addition, the Boston and New Orleans franchises have been reported to have disbanded, leaving just seven survivors in the five-year-old league that never quite caught the fancy of the ticket-buying public.

"Ironically, the Apples had already sold more season tickets than last year," said a WTT source. "But Sol felt that the rest of the league had not kept pace.

"Sol was very upset. He loves the Apples and has enjoyed the exposure. He said he was going to make good on his debts and take care of his staff."

No one was in the Apples office this week except a receptionist.

Berg has been unavailable for comment and his staff has been silent at his request.

The Apples owner told his employees that the league would make the announcement of the team's demise, but WTT commissioner Butch Buchholz said in St. Louis: "Boston and New York have not dropped out. We have received no notification in this office.".

The owner of the Boston Lobsters released a statement Monday calling reports of his franchise's death "unfounded." But he left the door open, adding that "the situation could be altered . . . in 24 hours or the near future."

Buchholz said there would be a league meeting later this week, after which he would make a statement.

But signs indicate that such 1978 WTT attractions as Chris Evert, Martina Navratilova, Ilie Nastase, Billie Jean King, Vitas Gerulaitis and Virginia Wade will be making their dollars while playing for themselves full time next year.

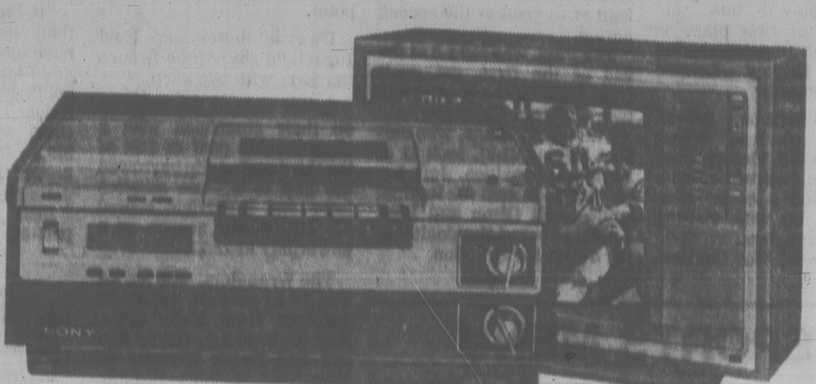
....BETAMAX from SONY



With Sony's new Betamax SL-8600 you can have the best of both worlds. We all know that the TV networks compete for we viewers, so as often as not when the Saskatchewan Roughriders are playing the Edmonton Eskimos or the Montreal Alouettes are playing the Hamilton Tiger Cats, there's a super movie on the "other" network. With the Sony Betamax, you can watch both, because while you're watching the game on one channel, the Betamax is taping the movie on the other… for you to watch later.

And with super features, like built-in timer with LED readout, one touch recording, and remote pause button, the Betamax SL-8600 is easy and enjoyable to use.

Remember too, if you're out when the game or movie is on, you can set the Betamax to record it for you…so you can watch it when you get home and with the new L750 videocassette, you can record up to three hours of programming so you can record the "Epic" without having to change cassettes.

DISCARDED LAU JOINS YANKEES

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Charley Lau, Kansas City Royals' batting coach who was not rehired, has signed a multi-year contract with New York Yankees, published reports say.

The Times said today that Lau had signed with the Yankees. The Wichita Eagle-Beacon earlier said he was about to sign with the World Series champions.

Lau, who joined the Royals' staff in 1971 and worked with it through last season with the exception of about three months, will be reunited with Bob Lemon, the New York manager.

All's Sweet for Lemon

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — New York Yankees' dramatic drive to the championship was one of baseball's most spectacular comebacks, but even that pales in comparison to manager Bob Lemon's personal reversal of fortunes this year.

Only a few months ago, Lemon was managing Chicago White Sox, a team that seemed destined to go no where. Things grew even more bleak for him when he was fired on June 30.

Three weeks later, the Yankees hired Lemon to replace Billy Martin.

"I was let go by Chicago and really down in the dumps; then all of a sudden I find myself managing in the World Series," said Lemon, named American League Manager of the Year on Wednesday by The Associated Press.

Lemon edged Milwaukee manager George Bamberger 149 to 142 in balloting by a national panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

No other manager was close in the race. Whitey Herzog of the Western champion Kansas City Royals finished a distant third with 24 points. Don Zimmer of Boston Red Sox was fourth with 18, followed by Baltimore's Earl Weaver (7), Jim Fregosi of California Angels (6), Ralph Houk of Detroit Tigers (4) and Gene Mauch of Minnesota Twins (1).

Lemon said following the Yankees' six-game victory over Los Angeles Dodgers in the World Series that it would take a while for him to fully realize what's happened.

He still hasn't.

When Lemon took over the Yankees, they trailed Boston by 10½ games in the American League East. Under his guidance, they caught the Red Sox, then finally won the one-game showdown when the two clubs finished the season tied.

The Yankees went on to beat Kansas City in the AL playoffs. Then, achieving a feat unprecedented in the 75-year history of the World Series, they bounced back to win four straight games after losing the first two.

Prices Hiked

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — California Angels will increase their top ticket price for the 1979 American Leafgue baseball season, raising the cost of field and club level tickets to $5 from $4.50.

Substitutes Pay Off For Northern Ireland

By The Canadian Press

Northern Ireland manager Danny Blanchflower made two vital substitutions Wednesday that earned his club a 2-1 victory over Denmark at Belfast in the European soccer championships.

The victory left Northern Ireland with three points in Group One play, the same as England and Republic of Ireland who played to a 1-1 tie at Dublin.

In other championship games, Ian Edwards scored four goals to lead Wales past Malta 7-0 in Group Seven at Wrexham; Romania scored three times in 13 minutes at Bucharest to beat Yugoslavia 3-2 in Group Three play, and Scotland edged Norway 3-2 in a Group Two contest at Glasgow.

Five minutes later Derek Spence replaced Sammy Morgan in the Ulster lineup and within seven minutes had scored the equalizer. After playing only 12 minutes, however, Spence went off limping.

The outcome of the England-Ireland game was a disappointment for England manager Ron Greenwood, who saw his side completely outplayed by the unfancied Irishmen.

Everton striker Bob Latchford gave the English a lead after only seven minutes, but Gerry Daly evened the score at 26 minutes. Irish midfield player Liam Brady was easily the outstanding player in the game, his accurate passes a constant menace to the English defence.

ALL-BLACKS TRIP WALES

SWANSEA, Wales (Reuter) — New Zealand All Blacks' Rugby Union team outclassed a powerful West Wales side Wednesday, leading 7-0 at halftime and going on to win a robust match, 23-7.

The Welsh, fielding 11 internationals, produced a typically fiery performance, but the All Blacks provided all the pressure.

The manner in which the All Blacks achieved their victory suggested they could well complete their 18-match tour of the British Isles undefeated. This was their third win and they are living up to their boast of playing 15-man rugby.

Bonspiel Triumph

WINNIPEG (CP) — A rink skipped by Rod Hunter collected the $10,000 first prize in the Association of Competitive Curlers $25,000 bonspiel, defeating Mike Riley 5-2 in the final.

GOALIE MASKS RATED UNSAFE

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says mould-fitted masks, which are used by most professional hockey goaltenders, have been declared unsafe by a committee of the Canadian Standards Association.

The newspaper says a report by the association's 12-man committee on protective equipment for hockey and lacrosse players endorses the wire or "birdcage" mask worn by Don Edwards of Buffalo Sabres and Glenn Resch of New York Islanders as a safer alternative.

The report is being reviewed by a steering committee in Ottawa for final approval, The Globe and Mail says. It was compiled last month after two years of tests and observations of players wearing the masks in actual games.

The newspaper says the report also urges that masks be affixed firmly to goaltenders' helmets and that protection be extended to the collarbones.

It recommended that no part of the frame of the mask be closer than half an inch from the face.

While the assocation has no enforcing power, its guidelines generally are followed by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and other hockey organizations in Canada.

Granny Flats Aid Elderly

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP) — The Granny Flat, a new housing concept developed in the Australian state of Victoria, is making it easier for old people to stay close to their families.

A Granny Flat is a self-contained, single-storey dwelling with a floor space of about 378 square feet designed for easy installation in an average-sized Australian suburban backyard.

The idea enables old people to maintain their independence and enjoy the social advantages of living near their families. At the same time it eliminates tensions that often arise when persons of different age groups live together in the same house.

The first Granny Flat was built in mid-1975. Since then about 250 have been erected in the grounds of existing houses, with 50 new units being installed annually by the Housing Commission of Victoria.

The idea was conceived by the Victorian Council of the Aged, which discussed it with the housing commission, a state government authority with special responsibility for building homes for low-income families and for the aged.

To qualify for a Granny Flat, parents or elderly dependents of the house owner must be aged pensioners and must not own other property. The housing commission has a variety of flat designs, catering to single pensioners or couples.

The designs are based on timber floor construction and use of modular timber-framed wall units. The modular sections are designed to be easily transported and assembled, regardless of accessibility of the site. Construction, including floor coverings, interior decoration and installation of plumbing and electrical fittings, takes about a week.

The housing commission charges a weekly rent of $13.25 for a single unit, $20.00 for a double. The rents, subsidized by the state government, are similar to rates charged by the commission for pensioner accommodation in multi-storey apartment blocks.

The basic Granny Flat plan includes a bedroom, bathroom-toilet, and living room with annex-kitchen. The ceilings are insulated, and winter heating is from electric heat storage banks. Cupboards, sinks and other fittings are designed for use by elderly people.

The occupants either have small washing machines in the bathroom or kitchen areas, or use the laundry facilities of the adjoining house.

When a flat becomes vacant through death or departure of the occupants, it can be easily dismantled and re-erected elsewhere. The commission undertakes to restore the vacated flat site to its original condition.

Cost of a Granny Flat, with all services connected, is about $15,350.

Canadians have access to some of the largest recreational territory of any nation on earth. Logging roads make lakes, rivers and millions of acres of wilderness available to campers, hikers, hunters, and fishermen. Recently logged areas often provide young growth for teeming wildlife, like moose, deer.

Moose love us

Not to mention deer, partridge, rabbits, grosbeaks, etc. A mature evergreen forest holds little nourishment for wildlife. When the forest is harvested for pulp and papermaking, new tender growth usually springs up, attracting wild creatures galore. Canadians enjoy the benefits of the harvest—the pulp and paper industry provides more jobs than any other. And the next crop of trees will be harvested by our grandchildren.

There is no pretending that a freshly harvested timber tract is a thing of beauty.

Fortunately, nature abhors a vacancy in the forest. In most forest areas across Canada, soon after harvesting, a surprising variety of new growth springs up. Poplar, birch, maples, alders, as well as seedlings of the conifers—spruce, pine, hemlock and fir.

Deer, moose, small animals and birds relish this lively undergrowth. Harvesting is sometimes followed by a mini population explosion of birds and beasts.

But sometimes the forest does not manage to reproduce itself. Time for reforestation.

Reforestation

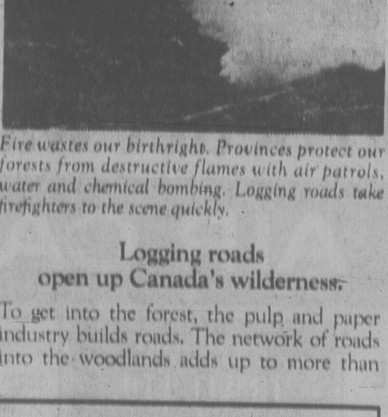
The variety of ways to plant new forest crops is as varied as Canada's weather and landscape: seeds are dropped from planes and helicopters or seedlings from vast tree nurseries are planted one by one, the way you'd plant tomatoes.

The prime responsibility for reforestation rests with our provincial governments, custodians of public forest land. (Only 11% of forest land is privately owned).

On publicly owned land, all wood is measured for government audit and paid for by industry. The money the pulp and paper people pay is called "stumpage". Last year the industry paid the Canadian people, through their provincial governments, more than $110 million. A portion of the "stumpage" is earmarked to pay for assuring the next crop of timber for future generations.

Pulp and paper companies work with provincial government forestry departments in reforestation. They know the land intimately, the way a farmer knows which of his fields are best for corn and which for grazing.

Provincial nurseries often supply the millions of seedlings for reforestation. Some provinces offer seedlings to private citizens. Thousands of acres of land that is useless for farming will produce a healthy crop of trees. Write or phone your provincial department responsible for forestry to learn the specifics. Your plantation of seedlings could grow into an inheritance for your children or grandchildren.



Fire wastes our birthright. Provinces protect our forests from destructive flames with air patrols, water and chemical bombing. Logging roads take firefighters to the scene quickly.

Logging roads open up Canada's wilderness.

To get into the forest, the pulp and paper industry builds roads. The network of roads into the woodlands adds up to more than 12,000 miles—nearly three times the length of the Trans-Canada highway.

Road building costs are staggering—from $10,000 to $125,000 per mile. Keeping them in shape adds further cost. Besides bringing wood to the mills, these forest roads are essential for fire-fighting.

Camping, hiking for nature lovers.

Few countries in the world have so much of their wild, unpopulated open spaces available for recreational use as Canada.

Campers, hikers, hunters, fishermen have the pleasure of millions of acres of once inaccessible wilderness thanks to the logging roads built and kept open by the pulp and paper industry.

Today, Canadian tourists are urged to spend their travelling money at home. Canada's wilderness offers them attractions that surpass the fondest dreams of most nature-loving Europeans.

Many provincial governments and pulp and paper companies supply maps showing driveable roads into the forests. Some have created nature trails and camping facilities for popular enjoyment.

Forest Management

In our forests, covering a third of the total area of our country, is our greatest natural resource. When oil and gas have ended, our forests will still be growing. And as long as people around the world use newspapers, books, packages, our forests will create jobs.

The forest, along with the manufacturing and service industries that depend on it, supports one out of ten Canadian jobs.

Pulp and papermaking itself pays almost five times as much in salaries and wages as the oil refiners. It pays out almost twice as much as car building and a third more than the iron and steel mills.

If you would like more facts about the forests and Canada's largest manufacturing industry, ask for the booklet "About Pulp and Paper". Write: Communications Services, Canadian Pulp and Paper Association, 2300 Sun Life Building, Montreal, Quebec. H3B 2X9

French Wine Lobby Balks at Crackdown

PARIS (Reuter) — The French government is trying to tackle head-on one of the country's most powerful lobbies — wine producers, sellers and drinkers.

Gently and with plenty of warning, the police introduced random breath analysis tests for drivers at the height of the summer vacation season.

Later, police patrols armed with telltale bags began making surprise stops to ensure that the drivers would avoid drinking.

Soon, winegrowers started to find ways to beat the test. Professional tasters in Burgundy even asked for special passes exempting them from the controls.

In the Beaujolais region, wine growers set up pickets well ahead of police check points to warn motorists. Their banners read: "Beaujolais wine is France. The breath-analysis test is a farce."

A Bordeaux wine grower complained on television: "This test will victimize all those who savor our national beverage.

"The rich people, who go to nightclubs and drink noxious foreign concoctions, are able to go home in chauffeur-driven cars."

At Verdun, in northern France, restaurant owner Patrick Lelou set up a car shuttle service to transport his customers past police checkpoints.

Under the law, passed by Parliament last July, police can stop drivers anytime and anywhere for breath tests, even if they have committed no offence.

Drivers found to have a blood-alcohol content higher than the allowed limit can lose their licence, be fined heavily and even go to jail for up to a year if already convicted.

Experts estimate the limit, 80 milligrams of alcohol in a litre of blood, is reached by an average person who drinks an aperitif, half a litre (about a pint) of red wine and a glass of liqueur with his meal. That is the intake of the average expense-account lunch in Paris.

More than 13,000 persons died and 350,000 were injured on French roads last year.

Christian Gerondeau, director of the National Road Safety Committee, said the objective is to reduce the road accident death toll to less than 10,000 a year.

The law met strong opposition from all sides. Before passing it, senators had the bill amended to forbid policemen waiting outside restaurants to stop offenders as they entered their cars.

French Justice Minister Alain Peyrefitte eventually gained the senators' support when he said a man, woman or child died on France's roads every 40 minutes.

But opponents were not deterred. Republican Party Deputy Albert Mayoud, who represents the Beaujolais area, wrote to Prime Minister Raymond Barre to protest that he called "an attack on individual liberties."

France's confederation of hotel, restaurant and cafe owners also protested: "This propaganda campaign tends to incite motorists not to drink at all, whereas they should be simply informed what the 80-milligram-level actually means."

About 4½ million Frenchmen earn their living making or selling alcohol.

But not everyone is complaining: "After all, if people can't drink outside their homes, they will order more wine directly from us," said the chairman of an Alsatian wine producers' co-operative.

Ryan Asks New Look At Housing Project

Because of high unemployment in the building trades, Victoria city council should reconsider its rejection of a James Bay housing development, Ald Larry Ryan said today.

Ryan said the townhouse project Daon Development Corp. proposed for a 1.5-acre lot at Boyd and Luxton should be reconsidered in light of representations from unions in the city.

John Schibli, secretary of the Vancouver Island Building Trades Council, urged council Tuesday to take another look at the Daon plan because it would mean jobs for the building trades in Victoria.

Schibli said the vacancy rate in most trades is 40 to 50 per cent and many workers are being forced to leave the city to look for jobs elsewhere.

He said the situation is getting desperate.

"I think they (the unions) have a very valid point and I would be in favor of reconsidering our decision," said Ryan.

He said he will discuss the matter with the mayor to see if the Daon proposal can be brought back before council.

Council rejected the Daon proposal because of complaints from area residents that the development would be too dense for the neighborhood.

Camsell Under Survey

Damage to the Canadian Coast Guard icebreaker Camsell is being assessed by a federal transport ministry survey team here this week.

She was damaged by ice in Queen Maude Gulf, east of Cambridge Bay, on Sept. 10.

First to be inspected will be the electric motors and wiring in the engine room.

23,500 Visited Sagres

A Canadian armed forces spokesman said today 23,500 people visited the last of the Tall Ships during her stay in Victoria and Vancouver as part of the Captain Cook bicentennial.

In it he said his crew would take the Captain Cook spirit with them on their around-the-world trip.

"We take you with us in our hearts and we hope to be back again some day," he said.

Hot Dog! Good Eating And Nutrition to Boot

If you are concerned about the nutritional quality of the entire meal when hot dogs are served, here are a couple of recipes you'll want to try. Along with the hot dogs are included good quality ingredients — onions and celery, corn, cheese, cream soup, rice.

When put together with the proper seasonings and just the right amount of liquid, the results are extra special. Your family eats the hot dogs they like, and you can rest more easily knowing the meal is also good for them.

MEXI-DOGS

1 cup chopped onions
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (16 oz.) chili without beans
⅓ cup water
3 cups cooked rice
1 can (8¾ oz.) whole kernel corn with liquid
¼ cup sweet pickle relish
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 package (12 oz.) frankfurters
1 cup grated Cheddar cheese.

Saute onions in butter until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients except frankfurters and cheese. Heat. Pour into a greased shallow 2-quart casserole. Cut 3 diagonal slits, about ½ inch deep, in each frankfurter. Arrange on top of rice mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Sprinkle with cheese and bake 2 to 3 minutes longer. Makes 6 servings.

HOT DOG SPECIAL

1 cup each, chopped onions and celery
1 package (12 oz.) frankfurters, cut in 1-inch pieces.
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1 can (10¾ oz.) condensed cream of celery soup
¼ cup mayonnaise
¼ cup sweet pickle relish
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
¼ cup diced pimentos
3 cups hot cooked rice.

Saute onions, celery, and franks in butter until onions are soft. Add remaining ingredients except rice. Heat thoroughly. Serve over beds of fluffy rice. Makes 6 servings.

MEAT CUT NAMES TO END CONFUSION

TORONTO (CP) — Confusing names that make cuts of meat sound good but do not inform the consumer of their quality will end Jan. 1, a spokesman for the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs says.

Neil Helm, a meat specialist, told the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Retail Grocers that the department has drawn up a list of acceptable, understandable names for 300 cuts of beef, pork, veal and lamb and 250 varieties of sausage.

Helm said North American supermarkets use more than 1,000 names for the 300 cuts of meat, creating confusion for consumers and grocers.

He said that as of Jan. 1, supermarkets will be required to label all meat to make it clear which animal it came from, as in the case of pork or veal.

The exceptions are beef — meat is assumed to be beef unless labelled otherwise — and products such as bacon that come from only one animal.

Existing regulations on fraudulent or misleading labelling and advertising will continue to apply, he said.

Integration Veto

BLOEMFONTEIN (Reuter) — South Africa's Dutch Reformed Church rejected racial integration Wednesday when a synod turned down a resolution to bring church members of all races under one umbrella organization.

Eating Habits Often Traced to Parents

By DR. JEAN MAYER and DR. JOHANNA DWYER

The ancient Greek orator Demosthenes had a unique way of teaching grammar: Whenever a child made a mistake, he struck one of the parents, on the theory that the error was of parental origin. Although today's educators would scorn this approach, there is some truth in Demosthenes' basic theory of parental blame, at least when it comes to poor eating and health habits.

Studies over the past few years have found strong parental influences in obesity, alcohol abuse, smoking and various nutritional deficiences among young people.

Teenagers, of course, are quite capable of creating problems of their own. Many are so obsessed with their weight and appearance that they starve themselves into extreme emaciation. Others adopt fad or overly restrictive diets.

Some young people are particularly attracted to "natural" or "organic" regimens. Others risk malnutrition by following a highly restricted diet, such as a macrobiotic regimen, for religious or philosophic reasons. Still others, especially runners and swimmers, follow a strict (but unbalanced) diet in the hope of improving their athletic ability.

Contrary to what many parents think, youngsters do not get into poor eating habits simply to irritate their elders. With thought, planning and a real effort to set a good example, parents and teenagers alike can find a diet that meets their needs and still fits their lifestyles. Some practical pointers:

Look at our diet and exercise habits. Too often, parents find their children are chips off the old block. If the parents are overweight and sedentary, chances are their children are, too. If the parents drink to forget their problems, it's not surprising that their children take to the bottle. Teenagers who smoke tend to be the children of smokers.

If you would like more information on how to get started, we can suggest several good books. These include a new one by Drs. James M. Ferguson and C. Barr Taylor entitled A Change for Heart: Your Family and the Food You Eat, published by Hawthorne. It provides a step-by-step guide for switching to healtheir meals.

Two other books that are especially good for teenagers are Dr. Joan Gussow's The Feeding Web and Ronald Deutsch's Realities of Nutrition. Both are published by Bull Publishing Co. And there's Dr. Mayer's A Diet for Living, published by David McKay and Pocketbooks.

One final bit of advice: Parental example is a powerful force in fostering good health habits among young people. But the reverse also can be true. A well-informed young person can set a good example for his parents.

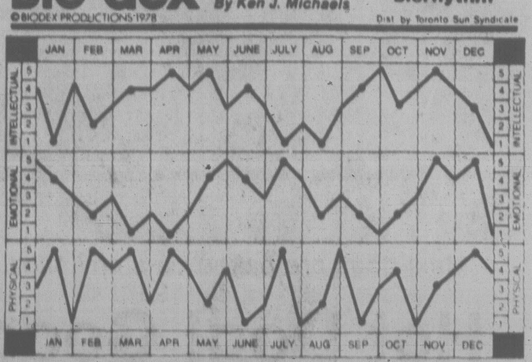
Bio-dex

Oct. 27/78
By Ken J. Michaels
Your computerized biorhythm
©BIODEX PRODUCTIONS 1978
Dist. by Toronto Sun Syndicate



HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle	Hang on to your money. It may not bring you happiness but it can sure save you from misery.
6-10 Neutral Cycle	Even though your overall levels are neutral, a high emotional readout may start a new friendship.
11-15 Positive Cycle	You can achieve your ambition if really determined. Make this your "day of decision".

As we start another "weekend" have you ever wondered why we work, and relax, on a weekly pattern? I'm sure you have experienced the ill-effects of working two or three weeks without benefit of a day off. To my way of thinking, it's just another example of how our minds and bodies function in regular "cycles". We ignore these patterns at our peril, since our health and well-being depend on being in harmony with the natural rhythms of life.

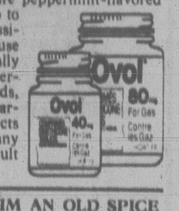
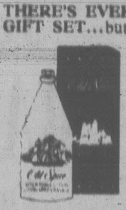
WHEN GAS IS A PROBLEM, reach for fast-acting, extra-strength OVOL 80 mg tablets. OVOL 80 mg tablets are peppermint-flavored chewable tablets that go to work right away to dissipate the pockets of trapped stomach gas that cause bloating and flatulence. So if you're occasionally troubled by gas discomfort as a result of over-eating, eating too quickly or too many spicy foods, remember that OVOL 80 mg tablets (and regular-strength OVOL 40 mg tablets) are the only products available for the relief of gas alone. As with any medical product, should symptoms persist, consult your family physician.



THERE'S EVERY REASON TO GIVE HIM AN OLD SPICE GIFT SET...but for this Christmas who really needs a reason? No man, however difficult to please, can resist the attractively pac[illegible] Sets — Original, Lime or Musk — in combinations to suit his every need. Choose from the classic collection of limited edition decanters, like the authentic looking Ship's Lantern or Telescope. Maybe someone special on your list would love the Old Spice Lighthouse Decanter or the new Captain's Tankard Decanter. Great gifts for the man in your life. If he's a traveller, you must see the handsome Old Spice Travel Set. He'll love you for it.



YOU DON'T HAVE TO COMPROMISE ON QUALITY TO SERVE INEXPENSIVE NUTRITIOUS MEALS. Take advantage of food specials, particularly soups. I find soups useful to make dishes that can be prepared ahead of time...an easy relaxed way to entertain. Here's a favorite of mine: 1½ lbs. lean stewing beef; 1 pkg. dried onion soup mix; 1 can mushroom soup (undiluted); 1 soup can dry red wine (or ½ wine, ½ water); 1 medium chopped onion. Place beef "as is" in a large casserole — do not brown. Mix all other ingredients and pour over the raw beef. Cook 2 hours in a 350° oven. Serves 6. The sauce turns brown, somewhat like a Stroganoff sauce. Serve with rice or noodles and a salad.

Water trickling constantly in a toilet tank may not need a plumber to stop it. A new rubber tank ball may be all that's necessary. The ball is attached to a perpendicular rod and is forced down into the outlet when water's flushed. But when the ball drops, it can hang onto the side of the outlet and let water continue to escape. A new rubber tank ball costs less than $1. The old one unscrews easily from that rod.

Ask the drycleaner if your a-bit-too-tight shirt, skirt, dress or sweater can be pressed a bit larger. Many knits can be, and this way, you save the garment for another season's wear. Don't try to press it larger yourself.

Risks Must be Balanced Against the Advantages

By L.L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I'm just about to enter my change of life. I've never been so mixed up and confused before. Since most of my friends are having the same problem you can imagine how often we talk about it. Some say their doctors recommend hormone injections, others say their doctors refuse to give them because it's too dangerous. What does a poor lay person do? — Mrs. AL.L.

Dear Mrs. L.:

The very first thing that a "lay person" should do about this is to recognize that menopause is a very private problem, to be handled only by one's own family doctor or a gynecologist. Trading symptoms can always be hazardous. Although it may seem to you that "a menopause is a menopause," it is not true. Each woman has her own individual characteristics which must be carefully evaluated before the doctors makes a decision about the form of treatment.

Your confusion undoubtedly is compounded by the many, many articles written in newspapers and women's magazines that highlight the danger that might possibly be associated with hormone therapy. Nothing makes better headlines than scaring the wits out of people already terrified by information they cannot assimilate.

Now, what is the actual story? It is estimated that about 30,000,000 women are now in some phase of premenopause or menopause. Not everything is known about the hot flushes and the complex mechanism that causes it. But much is known about the hormone changes that accompany this period of a woman's life.

There is good and sufficient evidence that the use of estrogen, the female sex hormone, can relieve some of the unpleasant symptoms associated with the "change of life." It is also known that estrogen therapy can be beneficial in those cases where excess calcium is absorbed from the bone during menopause. This condition is known as osteoporosis.

It has also been established that estrogen may be responsible for a higher frequency of breast and uterine cancers in experimental animals.

Now, where does that leave you? Dr. John McLean Morris, professor of gynecology at the Yale School of Medicine, says, "Carefully monitored hormonal replacement to relieve symptoms of the menopause may be important for the health and wellbeing of some menopausal women. The risk of cancer has received much more emphasis than the great risk of bone fractures due to osteoporosis . . . the quantity as well as the quality of life may be improved by hormone therapy . . . estrogens have an important place in therapy for the menopausal patient."

All of this adds up to the fact that the risks must, as always, be balanced against the advantages. Each person must be individually evaluated by her own doctor and carefully followed during the course of treatment.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: Fred and I have been married 14 years — if you can call this a marriage. Fred says that marriage is a job, like any other job, and since everybody gets at least one day a week off from his job, a man should get a day a week off from his marriage. So Fred works at our marriage six days a week, but takes Sundays off.

He leaves the house Saturday night, and I don't see him again until early Monday morning. He puts about 350 miles on his car and I don't have the slightest idea where he's been.

I never heard of any other couple with this kind of arrangement. Have you? But the way Fred explains it, it makes sense.

Is he crazy, or am I? — FRED'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Marriage is a seven-day-a-week job, and there's no time off for good (or bad) behaviour. Fred is far from crazy, but I'm not so sure about you, if you're buying it.

DEAR ABBY: After being a widow for three years, I married a men I met last winter. (I'm 51 and Nate is 59.) You might call it a whirlwind romance, as we had known each other only three weeks. Nate had been divorced for five years.

I had never met any of his family and was looking forward to it. Well, yesterday Nate told me that he had received an invitation to his daughter's wedding, and hoped I wouldn't mind if he went without me.

Abby, I was flabbergasted! I am a lady, and refuse to be hidden away. Nate's family knows he has remarried, so why should they expect him to leave his wife home?

When I told him to tell his daughter that he wanted to bring his wife, he said that his daughter had asked him to please leave me home!

Are second wives supposed to just disappear on such occasions? I know lots of second wives who have attended the weddings of their husband's children by a previous marriage.

Should I insist that if he goes, I go? Or should I tell him that, if he goes, he doesn't have to come back? Or should I swallow my pride and let him go without me? — BURNING

DEAR BURNING: Let him go — alone. A lady goes only where she is invited.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 13. I recently met a 13-year-old girl and I think I'm in love, but I don't think it will last long if she ever finds out I can't dance.

What should I do?

BILLY THE KID

DEAR BILLY: There's no shame in not knowing how to do something. The only shame is refusing to learn. Admit to the girl that you never learned how to dance, and ask her to teach you. Her response will tell you all you need to know.

DEAR ABBY: Just last month I met a very attractive man my own age (60). We met under sad circumstances — his wife was being buried that day. (His wife had been a friend of my sister's.) I have been a widow for several years, but this is the first man who has made me feel "alive" and I can't get him out of my mind.

I don't want him to think I am chasing him, but how can I see him again? I have a feeling he noticed me. All I have to go on is the look in his eyes when we met. He looked into my eyes as if he were reading my mind! And when we said goodbye, he touched my hand quite tenderly. When I walked away, something made me turn back and look at him once more, and there he was — still looking at me. Am I foolish to think he felt something special for me?

I don't wnat to wait too long before making a move because he is so very attractive I fear he won't be alone long.

What do you advise? — THINKING OF HIM

DEAR THINKING: You say that his wife had been a good friend of your sister. Ask your sister to invite this poor, grieving widower to her home for dinner. And you be there. How else?

To name a couple.

But from now on, you'll find our bread in these new, distinctive wrappers.

The ones with the McGavin's name. Although we've changed the package, you'll enjoy the same great quality.

Because McGavin's bread is still delivered to your store the same day we bake it.

Now for that Curious Vegetable, the Cauliflower

Beginning now and for the next several weeks, the vegetable market will be flooded with one of the world's most curious-looking vegetables and one that bears one of the most curious names. Cauliflower.

It has been observed, and rightly so, that if you were to discover for the first time a head of cauliflower, and if it were unique in the world (the same could be said of a live lobster), it should seem far from a thing of beauty but rather a freak of nature. Actually, there is beauty in its familiarity.

craig claiborne

In French cuisine, no one knows at what point in history or under what chef's auspices cauliflower and the Countess DuBarry, mistress to Louis XV, became eternally associated. On any menu, a dish bearing the name DuBarry indicates the invariable presence of cauliflower. If the garnish is DuBarry, it consists of flowerettes of cauliflower covered with Mornay sauce and glazed under the broiler. Creme DuBarry is, of course, cream of cauliflower soup, garnished, incidentally, by broken off bits of the head.

The ultimate or perfect head of cauliflower has the following characteristics: The head sould be snow-white and unblemished. The components of the head should be firm and close and the smoother the better. A rough surface is considered an imperfection, no matter how minor. A head with a rough surface, incidentally, is said to be "ricy."

Within recent years, cauliflower is often served raw with a dip of one sort or another and this is all to the good and quite healthy. Cauliflower, like most members of the cabbage family, has a natural affinity for cheese sauces and makes a delectable dish when covered with a cheese sauce and glazed under the broiler. A whole head of cauliflower may be cooked or it may be broken into flowerettes before cooking. Care should be taken to remove much of the centre tough core before cooking. Great care should be exercised not to over-cook the vegetable for it tends to become mushy quite quickly when cooked. Ideally, when ready to serve it should be crisp-tender. Some people claim that cauliflower tends to darken slightly when cooked. To help remedy this, you might add a bit of milk to the cooking liquid.

CREME DuBARRY
(Cream of cauliflower soup)

1 large or 2 small cauliflowers, about three pounds untrimmed.
3 cups fresh or canned chicken stock.
½ cup raw rice (we prefer Carolina rice for this).
Salt and freshly-ground pepper to taste.
3 cups milk.
¼ teaspoon nutmeg, or to taste.
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper, or to taste.
½ cup heavy cream.

1. Trim the cauliflower of leaves and carve out and discard the centre core. Cut or break the cauliflower into large cauliflowerettes. Place them in a kettle and add cold water to cover. Do not add salt. Cover with a lid and bring to the boil. Simmer about two minutes, no longer. Drain immediately. Set aside about three pieces of cauliflower for garnish when the soup is cooked. Place the remaining cauliflower in a saucepan and add the chicken stock. Add the rice, salt and pepper to taste. Simmer 30 minutes.

2. Pour the cauliflower with broth into a blender. This will probably have to be done in two or three steps. Blend until smooth and as the cauliflower is bended return it to the saucepan. Add the milk, salt and pepper to taste, nutmeg and cayenne. Bring to the boil and add the cream.

3. Separate the reserved pieces of cauliflower into miniature cauliflowerettes. This is to be used for garnish. Spoon the piping hot soup into hot cream soup dishes and sprinkle the top of each serving with a few pieces of garnish.

Yield: Six to eight servings.

CHOU-FLEUR au BEURRE
(Buttered cauliflower)

1 head calliflower.
6 teablespoons butter.
1½ tablespoons chopped shallots.
Juice of half a lemon.
Salt and freshly-ground pepper to taste.
½ teaspoon Worchestershire sauce.
Tabasco sauce to taste.

1. Pull off and discard the green leaves from the cauliflower. Use a paring knife and cut away the inside core of the cauliflower but leave the flowerettes of the cauliflower intact.

2. The preferred method of cooking cauliflower is to place it in the top of a vegetable steamer over boiling water. Cover and steam until crisp-tender. Alternatively, drop the prepared cauliflower in cold salted water to cover. Bring to boil and simmer until crisp-tender. Do not over-cook. It should not be mushy. The cooking time depends on the size of the vegetable.

3. Heat the butter in a skillet and when it is hot, add the shallots. Cook briefly, stirring and add the remaining ingredients. Swirl the butter around until it is foamy. Sprinkle the cauliflower with salt and pepper and pour the sauce over.

Yield: Four to eight servings, depending on the size of the cauliflower.

By Any Name, It's War

BY WILLIAM CAMPBELL

Either way South Africa's Namibia border patrol is a full-scale military operation.

Heavily armed and specially trained troops patrol the Angola border in mine-proof armored personnel carriers that resemble something out of Star Wars.

Helicopter gunships fly low over the dusty Owambo bush looking for anything that might be a SWAPO camp or sniper position.

Unofficial estimates indicate that well over 10,000 combat-ready South African troops are busy along the Namibia-Angola border in a crack military operation aimed at trying to keep several thousand Cuban-trained SWAPO guerrillas out of Namibia.

The army has dug in in Owamboland, a semi-desert range that is a homeland for over 300,000 Owambo tribesmen. Sprawling Owamboland shares a 200-mile border with Angola.

For years guerrillas from Sam Nujoma's South West Africa Peoples Organization (SWAPO) have been recruiting Owambo tribemen and schoolboys for military training at border camps in Angola and then sending the fighters back into Namibia.

During the last five years SWAPO guerrillas have killed at least 25 South African troops, a score of important Owambo tribal leaders and the chief of the Herero tribe. They have also claimed responsibility for a string of industrial sabotage operations deep within Namibia.

"We won't let these terrorists run around the country like they are doing in Rhodesia," a young army officer said. "They are killing their own people, so we are up here protecting the Owambo natives as well as the whites down south."

Many of the Owambo people will admit they are glad that the troops are in the area. A rash of SWAPO operations and landmine explosions that have killed a number of Owambos has frightened tribesmen who don't support the SWAPO party.

"These white men watch us okay and keep the SWAPOs from hurting us at night," one old Owambo mineworker explained. "Some of the schoolboys dont like them but maybe they are SWAPO, too. You don't know anymore who SWAPO is."

But some Owambos feel that the army is there only to protect the Owambos who support the pro-South African DTA party. "The army won't stop a DTA Owambo from hurting a peaceful SWAPO," an Owambo clerk said.

South Africa radio has a special program called "Boys on the Border" where relatives send a request for the army in Owambo.

"And the next song is for Timmy on the border from mom, dad and sis. They say that they are proud of you, be careful and say your prayers."

The army has overwhelmed the Owambo towns of Oshakati and Ondangwa. The Ondangwa airport is now an air force base protected with a 12-foot dirt wall lined with sand-filled 50-gallon oil drums and posted with sandbag machinegun nests.

Every day dozens of Leopard and Hippo mine-proof vehicles loaded with young, sunburned troops leave the Ondangwa area and disappear down dusty roads for base camps along the border.

Six months ago South African troops launched a direct attack against SWAPO training camps in Angola. Since then, reported SWAPO activity in Owambo has been described as light.

But as the proposed South African-backed December elections drew near the army prepared for a new wave of SWAPO activity.

Pro-South African Owambo chiefs are getting full protection from the army. In the past the chiefs have been a main target for SWAPO snipers.

But most observers believe that no matter what happens between the army and SWAPO, the Owambo people will be caught in the middle of a political tug-of-war that may erupt into full-scale guerrila fighting.

"It's a 'damned if you do — damned if you dont' situation for these Owambo people come the December elections," an English mine technician pointed out.

"The night before the election SWAPO will knock off some Owambos and spread the word not to vote. Then the (South African) army will roll into their villages and take them to the polls.

"One thing is for sure. Owambo is going to be a very unhappy place for a long, long time," the old miner said.

Abduction Inspired by Movie

TORONTO (CP) — A movie inspired a youth to carry out a hostage-taking incident Aug. 22, the girl he held hostage said Wednesday.

Jacqueline Belleville, 15, told a coroner's inquest that Paul Reid said he had seen a movie about a spectacular hostage-taking incident and wanted to carry out a similar act.

Miss Belleville was held at knifepoint for seven hours by Reid, 16, before he was shot and killed by a Toronto policeman.

Miss Belleville said Reid listened to radio reports of his exploits while he held a knife to her throat.

"He seemed like he wanted to have publicity about it. He said he'd love to be on television.

"He turned the TV on, too. When the news was on, he was all smiling, like he was proud to have it on the news."

Miss Belleville was held in her father's Toronto home. She said Reid attempted to rape her before a policeman arrived.

Reid kept insisting he had only six months to live, she said, adding that he told her he had cancer and knew he was going to die.

Reid had escaped from an adult training centre in Brampton, Ont., four days before the incident.

Keith Swindlehurst, 21, a fellow prisoner at the Brampton centre, said Reid seemed depressed when he was sent to the centre Aug. 7.

"Later, he opened up a bit. I thought he wouldn't hurt a fly."

Swindlehurst said Reid talked about his death fantasies and said he had nothing to look forward to because life was not worth living.

A few days before escaping, Reid said he would kill himself or be killed within six months, Swindlehurst added.

Bennett Sure PM To Yield

Premier Bill Bennett says he is confident Prime Minister Trudeau will alter his stand on the constitution and allow the provinces to have more say in proposing changes.

Bennett said Trudeau has assured him that B.C.'s proposals will be given the same consideration as proposals from the other provinces.

He said the provinces will have to show a more united front if they are to gain more input. That means, he said, going to next week's first ministers' conference with a positive, rather than negative, attitude.

Bennett said part of the B.C. delegation is currently travelling across the country outlining B.C.'s proposals to the other premiers, and he will be meeting with his fellow premiers this weekend in Ottawa to discuss the strategy to be used at the conference.

"I'm hopeful that the other first ministers will be approaching this conference willing to look at ways in which we can keep a strong Canadian government and at the same time allow for regional representation which has been lacking," Bennett said.

Premiers Get Go-Ahead For Power Shift Talks

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has officially given the 10 premiers permission to begin next week what could be a stormy debate on the realignment of federal and provincial powers.

In a letter to the premiers dated Oct. 18 and made public Wednesday, Trudeau said there will be ample opportunity to discuss power redistribution at a constitutional conference here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

The western provinces are keen to increase their control over mineral resources so they will not continue to run afoul of federal legislation.

Quebec and some other provinces have been fighting for years to assume greater control over communications and culture — two areas the Parti Quebecois believes are essential to the survival of the French-Canadian people.

At a news conference in Regina Wednesday, Saskatchewan Premier Allan Blakeney appeared optimistic that agreements on resources, communications, culture and language rights will be possible.

Blakeney, noting an apparent lack of popularity by the federal Liberals, said Trudeau is showing more willingness to enact changes long sought by the provinces.

However, Trudeau has indicated he is not willing to reduce the over-all strength of the federal government and accuses Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark of selling out to the provinces by demanding the federal government relinquish some of its responsibilities.

The three-day constitutional conference was called largely to respond to proposals Trudeau introduced last June. These proposals, which would amend the British North America Act of 1867, completely avoided the topic of power redistribution, concentrating on changes to the Senate and Supreme Court of Canada and enshrinement of a human rights charter.

Trudeau wanred these changes enacted by July 1, 1979 and revisions to the division of powers by July 1, 1981.

However, he has not yet introduced any proposals relating to the redistribution of powers and said in his Oct. 18 letter than none will be offered before the conference.

Along with the premiers, the commissioners of the Northwest Territories and the Yukon, native leaders, municipal officials and opposition leaders from Parliament and provincial legislatures will be able to attend.

However, only Trudeau, federal cabinet ministers and premiers are expected to speak at the conference, which will be open to the public.

The premiers are to arrive in Ottawa Sunday night for a dinner at the residence of Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger. Tuesday night they dine at Trudeau's home.

Fun Fair Set At Esquimalt

Esquimalt high school is holding a music fun fair this evening open to the public and featuring entertainment by the school choir and band.

Proceeds from the fair will be used to send the band and choir on a trip to the Stratford, Ont., Music Festival.

The fair opens at 7:30 and activites include an auction, rummage and plant sale and a cake walk.

Free transportation will be provided for senior citizens.

Native Land Policy Public

WINNIPEG (CP) — Natural Resources Minister Brian Ransom said Wednesday about 70,000 acres of provincial Crown land will be turned over to the federal government to meet Indian treaty claims.

Ransom, chairman of the cabinet committee on Indian land claims, made the statement in releasing the province's proposed conditions for the transfer.

But the guidelines are not likely to meet the approval of the Manitoba Indian Brotherhood (MIB), whose formula which would have given Indians an additional 530,000 acres.

Under the provincial proposal, land would be granted on the basis of Indian band populations on the date offirst application. The MIB wants the calculation date to be Dec. 31, 1976.

The amount of land to which a band is entitled will be determined by multipying the population either by 32 or 138 acres, depending on the treaty involved.

The guidelines were presented to the MIB Tuesday but there was no immediate response from the organization.

Hugh Faulkner, federal minister of Indian affairs, received a copy of the provincial guidelines Oct. 12. Ransom said he hoped to have Ottawa's reaction soon.

Ransom said the guidelines are the first attempt to put into writing the policy of the provincial government regarding Indian land claims.

Ransom said the province must be careful not to transfer land that may be needed for future public works projects because the federal government has indicated it does not believe in expropriation of treaty Indian land.

374,209 Vehicles Recalled

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal transport department says 374,209 motor vehicles, including 1,991 snowmobiles, were recalled for safety reasons during July, August and September.

There were 47 recalls in all made by 23 companies. They involved 321,527 passenger cars, 50,164 trucks and buses, 527 trailers and the snowmobiles.

Ford of Canada recalled about 99,000 of its 197-76 Pintos and 1974-1976 Mercury Bobcats to install a longer fuel tank filler neck with an improved seal and two plastic shields on the forward side of the fuel tank to improve fuel tank resistance to leakage in a rear-end collision.

Ford also recalled about 15,000 of its 1971-1973 Mercury Capris with windshield wiper arms which could be thrown free of the windshield wiper pivot assembly.

Chrysler Canada Ltd. is looking for 77,284 of its 1972-1973 Plymouth Fury, Dodge Monaco-Polara and Chrysler models to repair the main electrical power feed circuit which could disconnect, leaving the vehicle without power for the engine, lights and accessories.

Charges Vow After Film Nab

EDMONTON (CP) — The publisher of the Journal says the newspaper has asked that charges be laid after prison officials allegedly confiscated film from news photographers following a hostage-taking incident.

"We have no intention of standing by and allowing the goon mentality to surface as an obstruction to those who have every right to report what is happening within our institutions," J. P. O'Callaghan said Wednesday.

The alleged confiscation on Tuesday raised a storm of protest from publishers and brought Solicitor-General Roy Farran a barrage of questions in the legislature Wednesday.

O'Callaghan said the Journal's lawyers have asked for a meeting with the attorney-general's department to see whether charges can be laid.

Tom Walker, one of two photographers involved in the incident, said he managed to switch rolls of film and expose an unused roll in front of prison guards.

The Edmonton Sun photographer kept his photos of a police tactical squad leaving the Fort Saskatchewan Correctional Institute after the hostage-taking incident.

Farran, speaking during the legislature's question period, said a news blackout had been imposed on the hostage-taking.

Justice Worth $26.25?

TORONTO (CP) — The driver of a truck that hit and injured an 11-year-old Toronto girl in Daytona Beach, Fla., in September was fined $26.25 after being convicted of careless driving, the girl's father said Wednesday.

Susanne Seinader suffered a crushed liver and pelvis.

She is out of the intensive care unit, but remains in a Florida hospital, where doctors still do not know if she will recover fully, her father, Hugh Seinader, said.

Seinader said Susanne and his son Stephen, 13, were digging in the sand near their hotel, about 100 metres from the water.

A truck came churning through the soft sand, narrowly missing Stephen and a woman, and struck Susanne, who was kneeling.

1970 Crisis Probe Hot Potato for PQ

By PETER HADEKEL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC — The 1970 October crisis is causing a delicate political problem for the Parti Quebecois government, eight years after many PQ sympathizers and members were rounded up under the War Measures Act.

The PQ government is conducting its own secret inquiry into the kidnap-murder crisis of 1970 which resulted in the arrest and detention of 450 Quebecers without warrant.

A justice department lawyer, Jean-Francois Duchaine, has been working on the dossier since last year. He recently turned in the first part of his report of Justice Minister MarcAndre Bedard.

Bedard and his cabinet colleagues must now decide what to do with the 1,400-page report. One option under consideration is to establish a full public inquiry into the October Crisis.

But the government is reluctant to stir up bad memories of the terrorist scare as its referendum on sovereignty-association approaches. The PQ's image and credibility could suffer through association with the FLQ terrorists.

After it was elected in November, 1976, the government came under strong pressure from members of its own party to hold such an inquiry.

Party militants want the full story told about RCMP activities during the October Crisis and about the political decisions leading up to federal imposition of the War Measures Act.

The War Measures Act was invoked after the kidnappings of Quebec Labor Minister Pierre Laporte and British Trade Commissioner James Cross by FLQ terrorists. Laporte was later found murdered.

After the PQ was elected, sympathizers began sending the government new information on the crisis.

When the government began checking the files in the justice department, it found that the defeated Bourassa administration had made sure nothing was left around on the October Crisis.

So the government began its own inquiry. Justice department lawyer Duchaine was invested with full inquiry powers to subpoena witnesses.

He has interviewed dozens of people including members of the Montreal and Quebec police forces.

But the government is treating the inquiry with extreme discretion. No information has been leaked and no indication given when the report will be made public.

It is clear from Bedard's statements that the report is exhaustive and contains new revelations about the terrorist crisis.

But the justice minister says one gap remains. The federal government has been asked to supply information to Quebec about the RCMP's role and about the decision to impose the War Measures Act.

There has been no official response by Ottawa to Quebec's request, but Bedard says he was assured last year by the Solicitor-General's department that Ottawa would co-operate.

That was before the Ottawa-Quebec wrangle over the Keable commission, Quebec's own inquiry into illegal RCMP activities. The federal government resisted Quebec's attempts to investigate the workings of the federal police force.

Ottawa won a Quebec Court of Appeal ruling last February shutting down the Keable inquiry on constitutional grounds. Quebec has appealed the decision to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Meanwhile, the Duchaine inquiry is continuing, despite opposition objections that it should be turned over to an independent authority.

Justice Minister Bedard said Wednesday that Duchaine is "under the authority but not the control" of his ministry. "He has always had all the latitude and liberty to carry out the inquiry as he likes."

Whether or not the inquiry ever becomes public depends on legal as well as political considerations. If the Supreme Court upholds the ban on the Keable commission, it is unlikely a Quebec inquiry into the October Crisis would be considered constitutional either.

NUMBERS GAME FAVORS WOMEN

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Men outnumber women at birth but do not live as long and soon lose their numerical advantage, a University of Western Ontario medical professor said Wednesday.

Dr. C. W. Buck said that at birth, men outnumber women 105 to 100, but this lead is soon wiped out since men die much younger than women.

The doctor said several factors contribute to men's growing mortality rate.

She said evidence shows that active, daring individuals die sooner than other personality types and these traits tend to be male in Western society.

Men's diets, health care, heavy smoking and use of alcohol combine to take a high toll.

VIDEO-TAPE CATTLE AUCTION

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — Modern media sales techniques came into the barnyard Wednesday as 3,000 head of feeder cattle were sold at an auction — by video tape.

Cattle buyers and sellers jammed a sales barn for three hours and focused their attention on two black video tape boxes, instead of on live cattle in a livestock arena.

Consignments of cattle were filmed by the Ontario Beef Exchange at the farm gate and the boxes showed the video tape on two one-metre-high screens on the wall.

William Stewart, former Ontario agriculture minister, called it an historic event in Canadian agriculture when he officially opened the sale.

"You have to admit, it took nerve," he said, referring to the fact that a farmer rarely buys an animal he has not examined physically.

The beef exchange claims the viewing of cattle for sale on video tape reduces travelling stress on the animals, the possibility of picking up diseases and shipping costs to the owners.

Westerners are going to be interested in the sale because "it has big implications for the western buyers," said Ginty Jocius, general manager of the exchange.

Video sales have been used in the United States for three years. Last year, 20,000 head of cattle were sold in three hours in Billings, Montana.

Fighter Plane Engines' Critics Answered in Ads

OTTAWA (CP) — The engine problems of two aircraft competing for Canada's $2.3 billion fighter contract have surfaced again, helped by full-page newspaper advertisements placed by the engine manufacturer.

United Technologies Corp. of Hartford, Conn., which builds the F100 engine used in the F-15 and F-16 fighters, attacked magazine criticism of the engine in ads this week in several Canadian and U.S. daily newspapers.

The advertisements, which accuse Fortune magazine of distorting the facts, appear just before the federal cabinet is to consider dropping some of the contenders for the fighter contract.

Defence Minister Barney Danson said Wednesday he found the full-page ad incredible.

"I wouldn't have known about the Fortune magazine article if I hadn't read the ad," he said in an interview.

Engine reliability and performance are important factors in the fighter competition, he said. But he doubted if the engine problem was a serious drawback for the F-15 and F-16.

"If our airmen in the evaluation considered that much of a problem they would have brought it to my attention," Danson said. They hadn't.

The engine has been installed in the McDonnell Douglas F-15 and General Dynamics F-16 fighters. Other fighters in the competition are the Grumman F-14, the Panavia Tornado and the McDonnell Douglas and Northrop versions of the F-18.

The F-14, equipped with another engine developed by the same manufacturer, had engine trouble in the mid-1970s. But spokesmen for United Technologies and the three fighter companies say those problems have been resolved.

The Tornado, built by a British-German-Italian consortium, and the two F-18s are at the relatively untried, prototype stage. The Tornado has had some stalling problems and the engine has been adjusted to solve them. The F-18 engine is reported to have had few difficulties.

The U.S. General Accounting Office said in April the F100 engine occasionally stalls in flight. The office considered the F-16 problem more serious than the F-15's because the F-16 is a single-engine aircraft. The other is a twin-engine plane which can continue flying if one engine is out.

The problem was raised again in the latest issue of Fortune magazine, a well-regarded U.S. business journal.

The magazine talked about turbine blades breaking loose and tearing through the engine casing, fuel pump failures and an air crash whose cause has not been announced.

DRUG SENTENCE INFURIATES DIEF

OTTAWA (CP) — Former Prime Minister John Diefenbaker urged the government Wednesday to review the lenient sentencing of Rolling Stone Keith Richardson a drug charge in Toronto, calling it "preposterous and overly-lenient."

Richards was given a suspended sentence and told to organize a benefit concert for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind after pleading guilty to possessing heroin during a Canadian appearance last year.

Diefenbaker, a former criminal lawyer, and prime minister from 1957 to 1963, said the sentence will encourage wrong-doing and drug abuse among young Canadians.

The Commons, however, declined the necessary unanimous consent to debate the Diefenbaker motion so the matter was dropped.

Split Bill, We'll Pass It: Clark

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Joe Clark called upon the government Wednesday to split a bill through which federal officials are seeking Parliament's blessing to borrow $17 billion.

Clark's suggestion came only minutes after Finance Minister Jean Chretien introduced into the Commons a motion that would cut off debate on the bill Friday.

Clark said the present bill, which seeks funds to cover next year's government debt as well as this year's, is "unbelievable, unprecedented and unacceptable."

The Conservative leader later proposed in a letter to government House Leader Allan MacEachen that they would allow speedy passage of $7 billion earmarked for debts incurred in the current fiscal year, ending next March 31, if the bill were divided.

MacEachen replied that the proposal required careful consideration and other items of business in the Commons might have to be dealt with before a complete response can be made.

Clark said in his speech that it is "absolutely improper" for the government to be looking to Parliament to cover a $10 billion debt expected in the coming year without providing any information about federal spending and revenue plans.

The government was looking for a $10 billion blank cheque, he said. The bill was an attempt to operate in secrecy, to keep from the public information about how the money was to be spent.

Clark asked why there was such a rush to get the bill through Parliament that debate had to be restricted. Why not wait for the budget?

Chretien's debate-restricting motion could be debated for two hours today in the Commons unless the government agrees to withdraw the present bill and redraft it.

Wednesday was the fifth day of debate on the bill.

New Racquet Nets a Profit

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sports-minded promoters are trying to turn a small room, a soft black ball and stubby-handled racquets into profits.

They are promoting racquetball, a 20-year-old sport some say is the fastest game in Canada. They say racquetball is beginning to rival the more venerable games of tennis and squash in popularity.

To those in the business of sports equipment and facilities, it is providing a new and, at times, lucrative market. But there is some worry that those who expect to make big money from the boom might be disappointed.

The sport is just making its presence felt here. Until a few years ago, the only places you could play racquetball were in the handballs courts of the YMCA and some community centres.

Since then, a number of investor groups have moved into the market. At least six investor-owned clubs — most offering both racquetball and squash — have sprouted in the Vancouver area. In others, racquetball has taken over the handball courts.

There are currently about 90 racquetball courts in the province.

One operator describes racquetball as the game of the 1970s.

"It is the bash-around, free-flowing way the game moves," said John Chambers, co-owner of of the Supreme Court Racquetball Club in downtown Vancouver.

It is also easy to play, provides an intensive workout and is less expensive then many tennis clubs. Because of this, promoters see racquetball having a much broader appeal than the more difficult games of squash and tennis.

But those same qualities make it the target of many tennis and squash players' distain. They say racquetball is a simple game involving little skill and no style. It is essentially the same as handball, only it's played with racquets.

More than 5.5 million people play the game in the United States, compared with 75,000 in 1970. One financial journal says equipment sales are expected to reach $100 million this year.

Similar growth here would indicate at least 10,000 possible players in the Vancouver area.

"A few years ago, we could barely get 50 people together for a tournament; today we get over 300," said Diane Clairmont, secretary for both the B.C. and Canadian Racquetball Association. "Growth has been phenomenal."

But operators at several clubs say there are no surefire profits to be made. The chances of success depend on the work done prior to the project's launching.

"I get at least one, maybe two calls a week, from someone who says he really likes racquetball and so he'd like to build a club," said George Morfitt, owner of two clubs.

"Like any glamor thing, people with funds to invest are attracted; they look at it as fun thing. But that's very dangerous."

NEW DAILY

MONTREAL (CP) — The city's fifth French-language daily, Metro P.M., appeared on newsstands for the first time Wednesday.

The 32-page tabloid is selling for 25 cents and has an initial press-run of 50,000.

Liquor Vetoed Again

WINKLER, Man. (CP) — Residents of this predominantly Mennonite community have again rejected a liquor referendum, this time by a three-to-two margin.

The referendum result Wednesday marked the fourth time in 21 years that the town, about 130 kilometres south of Winnipeg, has voted to reject the sale of liquor.

A district returning officer said about 45 per cent of the eligible voters went to the polls. The status quo was kept in all four catagories of the referendum.

The catagories called for the sale of beer and wine in restaurants, sale of wine in beverage rooms, sale of liquor in dining rooms and the sale of liquor in cocktail lounges.

About 1,500 votes were cast in each of the four catagories with for-and-against totals similar in every catagory.

For example, voters turned down the idea of selling wine in beverage rooms by 855 to 592.

Bid-Rigs In Wings: Witness

TORONTO (CP) — In 1971, Robert Schneider made it clear that $700,000 he wanted to use to purchase part of Canadian Dredge and Dock Co. Ltd. had been raised through bid-rigging arrangements, a part owner of the company testifed Wednesday.

Jack Nellis Turvey of Vancouver told an Ontario Supreme Court jury at a fraud conspiracy trial that Schneider, the company's former president, had informed him and Hugh Martin that the money came from bid-rigging.

Martin, now the company's chairman of the board, testified Tuesday that Schneider was not clear on the source of the $700,000. However, Martin eventually concluded it might have come from an illegal source.

He said he did not associate it with bid-rigging at the time the purchase of Canadian Dredge and Dock was being negotiated.

Martin and Canadian Dredge and Dock are among 11 men and nine companies charged with conspiring to defraud public agencies of $4.2 million by rigging bids on dredging contracts.

Turvey, also a director of Canadian Dredge and Dock, said both he and Martin were told by Schneider that bid-rigging was a common practice in the industry.

"He told us there were accommodating bids, crooked bids, the whole ball of wax, if you want. But we didn't think our company was involved. We thought the matter was finished."

Turvey said he understood the $700,000 was a credit owing to Canadian Dredge and Dock, or to Schneider personally, as a result of bid-rigging.

Turvey said he was not concerned despite that information. He said Martin had made it clear to Schneider that they would not be involved in bid-rigging or illegal acts and that settled the matter.

After that, he heard no more about bid-rigging.

Former Ministers to Question Higgitt

OTTAWA (CP) — Lawyers for two former solicitors-general won the right today to immediately cross-examine retired RCMP commissioner W. L. Higgitt about his statements that he had told cabinet ministers Mounties were breaking the law.

Lawyers for former solicitors-general Jean-Pierre Goyer and Warren Allmand argued before the McDonald royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing that it would be unfair not to publicly challenge Higgitt's testimony.

They said the reputations of their clients were at stake.

The commission ruled against a request from Higgitt's lawyer, Pierre Lamontagne, that the cross-examination be postponed until the issue of the public release of confidential documents is worked out.

He said these documents were needed to support Higgitt's testimony but that government lawyers Joseph Nuss and Michel Robert had objected to the production and release of some of them.

Raymond Barakett, lawyer for Allmand, said it would be "grossly unfair" if cross-examination were delayed any longer because "the matter will continue to be left hanging."

Yves Fortier, lawyer for Goyer, said the Quebec commission of inquiry into the RCMP had been stopped by court action last February the day before Goyer was scheduled to appear to reply to Higgitt's testimony that he was certain the minister had been told about RCMP illegal acts.

Meanwhile, Solicitor-General Jean-Jacques Blais denied Wednesday that it was ever government policy to protect or indemnify RCMP officers who broke the law in the course of their duties.

"This government . . . will not condone or tolerate any illegal act on the part of the RCMP," Blais told the Commons.

However, Prime Minister Trudeau said the force does not establish its own policy, but follows policy laid down by the government.

Noble Takes Axe to Junot's 'Family Tree'

PARIS — An irate French nobleman took Princess Caroline of Monaco's father-in-law Michel Junot to court Wednesday, challenging Junot's claim to aristocratic descent.

Junot, whose son Philippe married Princess Caroline in June, was sued for $2,500 damages in a Paris civil court for "usurping" the first Duke of Abrantes as one of his ancestors.

The suit was launched by the current holder of the title, 72-year-old Maurice le Ray, sixth Duke of Abrantes, whose claim to the defunct dukedom goes back to an uncle by marriage.

TUPPERVILLE, Ont. — Dr. Robert McClure, former moderator of the United Church of Canada, says people who knock church grants to African liberation groups are uninformed. McClure told a church meeting in this Ontario community the controversial grants are aimed at helping refugees — not buying arms: "They (the guerrillas) don't need us to supply them with military equipment."

ZURICH, Switzerland — The Swiss Chess Federation announced Wednesday it is seeking a re-opening of the world chess championship between Soviet champion Anatoly Karpov and challenger Victor Korchnoi, claiming the rules were violated in the deciding game.

VATICAN CITY — Pope John Paul II has confirmed Jean Cardinal Villot of France as the Vatican secretary of state for an "initial period."

ATMORE, Ala. — Holman Prison officials said Ionan Andronov, a reporter for the Russian language Literary Gazette, based in New York, was given a 45-minute interview Tuesday with Johnny Harris, who is on death row for the slaying of a guard, but claims he is a political prisoner.

GRACE SLICK, 38, lead singer for the Jefferson Starship rock group, was put on two years' probation Wednesday by a judge in San Rafael, Calif., who warned her she would be jailed if she drank alcohol during that period. She had violated probation in a drunken driving case.

Stuntwoman Inches to Peak

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. — Movie stuntwoman Beverly Johnson spent the night dangling from a "bat tent" at the 2,000-foot level of Yosemite's sheer-faced El Capitan monolith.

The 33-year-old experienced mountain climber is inching her way up the same granite wall that claimed the life of a three-man team last May.

If Johnson, now at the two-thirds mark, reaches the top, she'll go down on record as the first woman to solo up the nearly vertical Dihedral Wall of El Capitan, considered one of the most difficult and demanding climbs in North America.

"She's completed the 19th of the 27 pitches it takes to reach the top," said a spokeswoman in ChiefRanger Charles Wendt's office. "She's moving right along and doing just fine."

Each pitch represents about 125 feet, or the usable length of a climbing rope.

Ms. Johnson started her climb last weekend and was expected to reach the summit on Friday.

The treacherous 3,000-foot high "rock" first was climbed successfully in 1958 by a three-man team. Since then it has been climbed numerous times by two and three-member teams and twice by lone men, but never by a lone woman.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

In today's deal, each side had 20 high-card points, and the bidding took on a carnival spirit with both sides pressing on to the game level. The hand came up in the Fifth World Pair Olympiad held this past June.

Neither side vulnerable.

Opening lead: Five of ♡.

If one were to look at all four hands, he would perceive that South has three losers in diamonds and a minimum of one loser in spades. However, declarer fulfilled his contract, and it is difficult to fault the defenders for having permitted him to do so.

After the opening heart lead had been won by dummy's ace, declarer led the jack of diamonds. East, not able to visualize the precise situation, covered the jack with his queen. As can be observed, West was forced to play his ace.

West then led a club, the trick being won by the board's ace. Declarer realized that he probably could not hope to negotiate the contract successfully if the outstanding trumps were divided 4—1, so the queen of spades was played next to keep East from winning a trick. The objective, of course, was to prevent East from cashing the diamond king and then leading a diamond for West to ruff. On the spade queen East played low, as did South. West took the trick with his king. He then led another club, the trick being taken by South's king. The ace of spades now felled East's jack (a stroke of luck), after which a trump was led to dummy's ten, picking up West's remainng trump.

The seven of diamonds was then led, and East captured the trick with the king. South's three remaining diamonds were now all winners. If East had played low on the diamond lead of dummy, South would have done likewise, knowing that West had not more diamonds. In this case dummy's seven-spot would have won the trick.

And so, thanks to East's play of the diamond queen on the lead of the jack from dummy, South's only losers were a trump and two diamonds.

Astrological Forecast for Friday, October 27
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Finish rather than begin — round out views, techniques. Avoid being rushed into "match" that might be premature. You gain "pat-on-back" from experienced persons who concede that you know what you are doing. Libra is very much in picture.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Love, creativity, charisma, personal magnetism dominate. Leo, Aquarius figure prominently. You feel alive. You shake off lethargy. People comment on the way you look — you "glow". Accept change, challenge, variety. Express views — you need not take back seat to any individual.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on security, building on solid base, eliminating wasteful procedures. Follow through on hunch; learn by teaching. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons figure prominently — and so does the number 11.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Highlight versatility, humour, optimism, social activity, confidence, expansion, better relations with close neighbors and relatives. Gemini, Sagittarius individuals figure prominently. Remember resolution concerning your "best weight".

LEO (July 3-Aug. 22): If thorough, you earn money. If slipshod methods are premitted, you lose. The choice is your own. There is no "easy" way. But if you are painstaking, the rewards are abundant. Accent on income, personal possessions, an evaluation of assets.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be analytical. Decide what you want — the odds are you'll get it. This being true, find what will please, benefit, profit, enhance — the sky might be the limit. Member of opposite sex probably is very much in picture. Gemini, Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

LIBRA (Sept, 23-Oct. 22): Family member can aid in unlocking mystery. Key is to ask, to toss aside false pride. Recent misunderstanding will be resolved. Much that occurs is on borderline of acceptance and rejection — be patient, quiet within and discreet.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): What seems firm could require further examination. Know it and make no final commitment. Pisces, Virgo persons could figure in scenario. Some of your hopes, wishes, are subject to revision. Know it and do something about it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Power and authority are featured — the number 8 figures prominently. Investment could pay dividends. Older individual, who can "pull strings", becomes an ally. If not serious about a relationship, you could be in for proverbial rude awakening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Keynote now is to finish what you start — get major points across in dynamic, significant manner. Distance need not be a barrier. Lines of communication will be made available. Aries, Libra — and the number 9 — figure in scenario.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You get answers, but you may not exactly jump with joy. Some requested information points to a relationship that is going to be serious, not merely fun-and-games. Yes, you asked for it — and now you will know (yet again) the meaning of responsibility. There also will be fulfillment.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Emphasis on joint accounts, financial charts, legal terminology. Aquarius, Cancer, Leo persons could be involved in uour scenario. Be a good listener. Save trump card — or direct confrontation — for another time.

IF OCTOBER 27 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY . . . you draw people to you with their problems, aspirations. You, in turn, are attracted to medicine, psychology, counseling, theatre. You are dramatic, intense, a fighter when the cause is right, impulsive in affairs of heart and a basic humanitarian. You exude sincerity. Aires, Libra persons play important roles in your life. September was one of the most significant months of 1978 for you. You make new start in November.

309 IN MEMORIAM

MACAULEY-John Micheal. In loving memory of our dear son, John, who passed away, Oct. 25, 1976

October comes with deep regret,
A month that we shall never forget.
We hold our tears when we speak your name,
But the ache in our hearts remain the same.
No one can know the sorrow we share,
When the family meets and you're not there.
We miss you, John, and aways will,

309 IN MEMORIAM

BOWES- In loving memory of my dear husband Herb, who passed away Oct. 26, 1975.

I am thinking of you today,
But that is nothing new
I thought about you yesterday
And the day before that too.
They say memories are golden
Well, maybe that is true.
I never wanted memories, Herb,
I only wanted you.
-his loving wife Eva.

SMART- In loving memory, husband, father and brother, Alex Smart, passed away Oct. 26th, 1977.

The rolling stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of the one who once sat there.
Remembered always by his wife Marian, and family, Tom, Anita, Norma and Jenny, Albert, Linda, Pat, John and Cassie, Maurice, Shelly and Little Mo.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.

Big Money in These Mushrooms

Marjorie Asano looks over two samples of Armillaria Ponderisa, one of the more valuable mushrooms that sprouts in B.C. during cool, wet weather in fall. Grown near Pemberton, pickers are paid nearly $10 a kilogram for mushrooms exported to Japan. Other mushrooms in B.C. are sought less for money than hallucinogenic effects they produce.

GARDENING

Right-Sized Tools a Help

Most of us have hobbies as well as our gardens. Golf, fishing, hunting, woodworking, metalworking and a host of other diversions help us enjoy our leisure hours.

It is only concerning the hobby of gardening that we hear complaints about hard work. The other hobbies are considered pleasure, but gardening is classified as labor.

Possibly the reason lies in the fact that one cannot golf without made-to-measure clubs, the best golf balls and lessons from a professional. Nor can one work wood or metal without a complete kit of tools, nor hunt or fish without expensive equipment.

But for gardening, a rusty shovel and a rake with a few teeth missing is good enough.

The old saying that a craftsman is no better than his tools applies equally to gardening as to other hobbies, and good tools well cared for can make gardening a pleasure.

To the golfer, the "feel" of a club means everything; to the fisherman and hunter the "feel" of the rod or gun is important; yet the gardener willingly acceps the first tool the salesman hands him.

There is a tremendous difference in the feel of spades, even those by the same maker that look identical, and the same applies to rakes, hoes, cultivators and the same hand tools.

Some are beautifully balanced, others are badly out of balance; some fit the hand snugly while others have handles too large for comfort.

Years ago I was acquainted with a logger who thought nothing of spending an hour or more selecting a new handle for his axe. He explained that the steel in the axe head and the grain of the wood in the handle determined whether felling a tree was work or pleasure.

What a great day it will be for gardening when men and women select their spades and hoes in the same way. We would soon see an improvement in quality, design and finish, for many brands now on the market would have to be improved to meet the standards of discerning gardeners, and who knows, it might even lead to made-to-measure gardening tools.

In the meantime it is worth remembering there is a difference in gardening tools, and it pays to spend the time searching for something that feels near perfect.

A saw will soon shorten a handle if necessary to suit a gardener's height, and a piece of sandpaper will reduce the size of a handle to fit the gardener's hand.

After spending the time to obtain a tool with the right feel, it is a sign of wisdom to keep that tool in good condition, as the golfer does with his clubs, the fisherman and hunter with rod and gun.

The first job is to preserve the handles. This can be done with fine sandpaper then a coat of auto wax.

If a waxed handle is not to your liking, protect it with a coat of paint, yellow for preference so that it can be seen when you forget to put it under cover.

Keep all blades, whether shovel, spade, or hoe, smooth and sharp by frequent touching-up with a file. A jagged or notched blade is a bad as a blunt pocket knife; it just won't cut, and to use it means wasted effort.

Have a five-gallon can of water and an old scrub brush handy for washing all tools before putting them away, and some old engine oil and a paint brush to oil metal surfaces as soon as they are dry.

Even if we never see made-to-measure gardening tools we can at least keep those we have in the best condition to get real pleasure out of using them.

Sadat Aide Named In Bribery

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — An Egyptian electrical engineer who rose to become one of two deputy prime ministers in President Anwar Sadat's government is the individual named in secret court documents as allegedly having taken $332,000 in bribes from Westinghouse Electric Corp., The Washington Post learned Wednesday.

Ahmed Sultan Ismail, Egypt's deputy prime minister for production until Sadat dropped him in a reorganization of his cabinet last month, is alleged in the documents to have received the money in return for awarding $30 million in contracts to Westinghouse to supply electricity plants to Egypt.

Citing "foreign policy considerations," Justice Department spokesmen and the company have refused to name the foreign official accused in the bribery case against Westinghouse, which is being prosecuted in District Court here. The State Department, which concurred in the Justice Department's decision to keep the name secret, declined to comment.

The prosecution comes as Egypt and Israel are in the final stages of negotiating in Washington a peace treaty to end 30 years of warfare and hostility. President Carter, who got the two nations to agree on terms for the treaty at the Camp David summit, has been personally involved in these final negotiations.

Westinghouse had agreed to plead guilty to making false statements to U.S. agencies financing the construction projects. But U.S. District Court Judge Barrington Parker refused to accept the plea-bargain, leaving the outcome of the prosecution unclear.

Parker had objected initially to the secrecy about the country and individual involved, so the firm gave him the details in confidence. After studying the secret data overnight, he rejected the agreement, though he did not specifically cite the failure to disclose as his reason.

Students Shot

IRVING, Tex. (AP) — Two Lebanese students were found shot to death in a shopping centre parking lot in this Dallas suburb, police say. The students, ages 13 and 20 and both enrolled at the University of Dallas, had been shot once in the head with a small calibre weapon.

Laker To Return To B.C.?

LONDON (CP) — Sir Freddie Laker, the high-flying pioneer in low-cost travel, says Canada is a fabulous country and he plans to concentrate on the high-density air routes to Canada in 1979.

"But we are going to withdraw from the less-dense routes, although I think this is wrong," he told the Canada-U.K. Chamber of Commerce Wednesday.

He said his Laker Airways Ltd. will likely pull its charter flights out of Halifax next year and will study the possibility of pulling out of Ottawa and Montreal but he expects to resume flights to Vancouver by the end of 1979.

He described Halifax as an off-beat place which is not overly-attractive to British travellers.

"We're looking at Montreal and Ottawa about pulling back," he said. "We've moved out of Windsor to Detroit because the American regulations are so much more liberal than the Canadians."

Laker said his airline probably will continue to fly the same number of seats to Canada next year but concentrate more on Toronto.

Jaw Pains Often Mistaken

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — Jaw problems, which can cause pain in the ear, face and neck, affect about 25 per cent of all dental patients and may often be misdiagnosed, a dentist said Wednesday.

Dr. Joseph J. Martini of Passaic, N.J., said the condition, known as the temporomandibular joint, or TMJ syndrome, is produced by impaired function of the jaw joint.

Martini, addressing the annual session of the American Dental Association, said TMJ symptoms range from mild or occasional slight discomfort to agonizing and continuous pain that is often misinterpreted as a psychosomatic or neurotic symptom.

However, once the condition is diagnosed, it can generally be easily treated. Martini said he has had a high rate of success by injecting medication directly into the joint.

"With rare exceptions, a series of two injections of indicated medications in both joints — spaced two weeks apart — is adequate for restoration of normal function and relief of TMJ symptoms in the average patient," he said.

"Subsequent periodic visists to the dentist are highly recommended to help prevent recurrence of the dental joint disorder, together with a firm program of simple patient conducted home care."

He said TMJ problems are often caused by premature loss of a molar, which makes chewing one-sided and uneven; an exaggerated vertical opening of the jaws as in a sudden yawn, biting into an apple or an overstuffed sandwich; or injuries suffered in auto accidents or sports.

"It is interesting that the highest frequency of TMJ syndrome occurs in females aged 16 to 25, usually tall and thin, who may have experienced sudden, rapid growth and skeletal expansion," Martini said. "Such growth patterns strain the muscle and ligament cradle of the jaw joints."

Dr. Maurice J. Oringer of New York City told the conference about an electrosurgical technique used in rebuilding tissue support for denture-wearing patients.

This process, he said, helps restore support for dentures.

In another speech, Dr. Leo Ward of Los Angeles discussed new non-metallic materials that he has been studying to make more durable, life-like artifical tooth implants.

Migrants' Rights Violated?

PEKING (AP) — Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo said Wednesday the basic human rights of Mexican migrant workers are being violated in the United States.

Lopez Portillo, who sat in on a Spanish language class at the University of Peking, told the students Mexico must find a way to create jobs to stop the flow of hundreds of thousands of Mexicans across the border into the U.S where they are abused, exploited and shamed.

"Our compatriots continue their painful exodus northward and now they go not only to be exploited but to be rejected," he said.

New PM Lays Down Conditions

LISBON (UPI) — The youngest head of government in Europe began work today with a threat to resign unless he gets co-operation from Portugal's feuding political parties.

Carlos Mota Pinto, a 42-year-old independent, was designated premier by President Antonio Ramalho Eanes Wednesday, in an effort to break a three-month deadlock between the Socialists and conservative Centre Democrats.

Mota Pinto, the youngest government chief in Europe, immediately began attempts to form a politically non-aligned cabinet — Portugal's 10th government since 1974.

But the former law professor and one-time Social Democrat leader warned he would quickly step down unless he gets co-operation from the deadlocked political parties.

He also warned his government would be one of austerity, law and order.

Airport Screening Blamed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Poor passenger screening at foreign airports is the major factor behind a surge of airline hijackings that started early last year and continues unabated, the Federal Aviation Administration reported Wednesday.

Hijackers smuggled weapons aboard at least six of the 14 planes they commandeered during the first half of 1978, the FAA said. In each case, the agency said, the weapons were taken through boarding security checkpoints at overseas airports.

"(The weapons) would have been detected had effective procedures for the screening of passengers and their carry-on luggage been used," the FAA said.

"Inadequate passenger screening at some foreign airports is still the major contributing factor in the continuing high rate of aircraft hijacking attempts around the world," the agency said.

In a semi-annual report to Congress, the FAA said 11 of the 14 air piracy attempts involved foreign airlines. It said four of them — all overseas, and two involving weapons smuggled aboard planes — were successful.

None of the three attempts in the United States was successful, and none included weapons, the FAA said.

There has been only one successful U.S. hijacking since 1973, and it was carried out with fake weapons. The FAA said U.S. airport security personnel have screened more than 1.8 billion passengers, detected more than 16,000 firearms and arrested more than 5,000 people since 1973.

The 14 hijack attempts in the first half of this year compared to 15 in each half of 1977, the worst year for air piracy since 1972. The FAA said the surge of hijackings, coupled with increased co-operation among terrorist groups, makes airport security improvements overseas more important than ever.

Successful hijackings in the period covered by the report included:

—Jan. 18, Quito, Equador; two hijackers with pistols in carry-on luggage took a plane to Cuba.

—Feb. 6, East Berlin; male hijacker, falsely claiming to have explosives, forces Czechoslovakian airliner to fly to Frankfurt, Germany.

—May 10, Prague; two hijackers carrying dynamite force Czechoslovakian airliner to fly to Frankfurt.

—May 16, Torrejon, Mexico; male hijacker, falsely claiming to have explosives, forces Aeromexico plane to fly to Mexico City.

$1M IN ANTI-TRUST FINES

WASHINGTON (AP) — A British drug manufacturer has agreed to pay $1 million in fines to settle an eight-year-old anti-trust suit that charged the company with restricting licensing patents on antibiotics, the U.S justice department said Wednesday.

The department said Beecham Group Ltd. of Middlesex, England, and a U.S. subsidiary, Beecham Inc., of Clifton, N.J., also will be prohibited from making any agreement that would prevent any other company from selling any prescription drug.

The settlement is subject to approval of a federal judge in Washington.

The civil suit also charged Bristol-Myers Co. of New York City with the same violations but Bristol-Myers was not involved in Wednesday's settlement.

Sniper Murders Chief As Shah Marks Birthday

TEHRAN (Reuter) — A roof-top sniper killed the police chief and wounded the martial law administrator of the southern city of Jahrom today after ceremonies marking the Shah of Iran's 59th birthday.

The martial law administrator, Gen. Ahmad Nadvar, was taken to hospital after the shooting, the official Pars news agency said. The sniper escaped.

The Shah celebrated his birthday, during a year of mounting protests against his rule, with quiet family gatherings and a traditional ceremony at which dignitaries presented their respects.

Troops patrolled the streets of Tehran but no major incidents were reported. At least 50 people have died in Iran so far this month in violent protests against the Shah's rule.

Soldiers fired in the air to break up continuing demonstrations in the holy city of Qom, south of Tehran. Qom was one of 12 cities placed under martial law after anti-government disturbances last month.

Qom's main Moslem shrine was surrounded by troops, and pilgrims were able to use only one entrance. Radio Iran said all shops and bazaars in the city were closed.

Outside Tehran University, troops closed off the broad Shah Reza Avenue, one of the capital's main thoroughfares, and patrolled nearby streets in trucks and jeeps and on foot.

Militant leftist and Moslem religious groups have staged demonstrations against the monarch and martial law authorities at the univesity campus all week, but demonstrators dispersed Wednesday night and the army closed university gates today.

Bronze-Age Mead Highly Potent Brew

Written for CP
By NORMAN CRIBBENS

GLASGOW (CP) — A large pottery beaker from the Bronze Age shows that some potent mead was drunk by Britons at that time.

"They drank it in large quantities before going into battle," says James Dickson, a botanist at University of Glasgow.

Investigating a quart-size beaker dug out of a burial site in Scotland, Dickson found traces of pollen from the wild flower meadowsweet and the small-leaved lime trees.

He says both pollen and lime were probably used in honey from which the ancients brewed a "highly potent" mead.

"It could have been the earliest-known alcoholic drink in Britain," Dickson says. "When a Bronze Age man died, his grieving family left a beaker of mead beside the body to help him on his way down the road to the underworld.

"It is also evidence of a thriving drink trade in Scotland. As the lime did not grow in Scotland at that time, the mead must have been imported from England, Wales or even Denmark."

South of the border, in Manchester, glasses were raised to an important piece of boozing history. For the first time in 60 years porter — the beer that was once a national drink — made its re-appearance at the British Beer Festival.

The old-fashioned porter, mentioned often in Dickens' novels (Sam Weller drank it) was brought from the wild Welsh border, where it was brewed by former pilot Martin Griffiths and comedian Terry Jones at the tiny Penrhos Brewery.

The two men started brewing porter as an experiment. The regulars at three local pubs asked for a regular supply and now porter seems to be making a comeback.

It was the most popular ale in Britain until the turn of the century. Stout, a much later development, is still popular.

Beer Steins? Schwartz Has 'em All

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Twenty-five years after he picked up his first beer stein at an antique shop, William Schwartz says he's cornered the market.

At last count, his collection numbered 3,300 steins.

In pursuit of his fancy, Schwartz, 71, said, "I've been pretty much around." But he's given up on the European market because "I've already bought them all."

The steins gleam on the walls of a room Schwartz built for them. A glittering chandelier casts its light on them and a sophisticated alarm system protects them.

Dating back to the early 1600s, the steins are fashioned from such materials as gold, silver, mother-of-pearl and ivory. They depict soldiers, professions, comic characters, political caricatures, revelry and hand-painted portraits of the 12 apostles.

The lid is what qualifies a beer mug as a stein, he explained.

"Back in the 13th century there were such hordes of flies in the beer halls, the ruler made a law that all mugs had to have a lid on them," he said.

It made for a new art form, although Schwartz added: "I don't know if it stopped the flies, though."

Superpower Talks On Arms Sale Ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and the Soviet Union, thanks to an agreement State Secretary Cyrus Vance worked out in Moscow this week, will begin formal discussions later this year on a possible ban on arms sales to the rest of the world.

The most recent round of strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) produced an agreement that representatives of the two countries meet in Mexico City in December to discuss the ban, a state department official said Wednesday night.

There had been an earlier agreement in principle to hold the talks but actual negotiations were not set until Vance was in Moscow this week for the SALT negotiations.

The Washington Post reported today that the Mexico City talks would centre on cutting sales to Latin America where the Soviet Union has few allies and weapons customers.

But a state department official, who asked to remain anonymous, said the talks would not be that specific. He did confirm that the two countries also may be close to another round of talks on banning anti-satellite weapons.

Leslie Gelb, another state department official, told a House committee earlier this month that the Russians had reversed a "totally negative attitude" toward talks about troublesome arms sales, especially to the Third World.

He said the United States first contacted the Soviet Union about a ban on sales last December after European allies of the U.S. said they would not consider cutting arms sales to the Third World unless the Russians would agree to a similar curtailment.

The announcement of the Mexico City talks comes although the SALT talks still have not produced a final agreement for the signatures of President Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev.

Lance's Loan OK, Says Billy

ATLANTA (AP) — Bert Lance "hasn't done a damn thing wrong," Billy Carter declared after testifying before a federal grand jury investigating the former federal budget director's finances.

The president's brother said he was asked Wednesday about loans made by the National Bank of Georgia in 1975 and 1976 to the Carter peanut warehouse interests in Plains, Ga.

"I borrowed from him because he was a personal friend," Carter told reporters. "I did not get any special privilege."

The grand jury has spent 10 months investigating charges that Lance misapplied bank funds while he headed two Georgia banks.

Lance headed the First National Bank of Calhoun and later the National Bank of Georgia in Atlanta before accepting President Carter's appointment as head of the office of management and budget.

He resigned in September, 1977, after his banking practices became the subject of a Senate investigation.

The president's brother said the terms offered by Lance's bank were comparable with the rates of eight other banks he said he also checked.

He said the Carter family's peanut warehousing firm borrowed $1.1 million for construction from the National Bank of Georgia and also used revolving credit that varied from $1 million to $4.6 million to buy peanuts.

All of the loans have been repaid, he said.

"I told them it wasn't any of their damn business," he told reporters.

KILLER VIRUS SPREADING

NEW DELHI (UPI) — A killer virus that doctors say may be encephalitis has killed between 450 and 1,000 persons in three weeks and has reached epidemic proportions in one Indian state.

Health officials said victims of the disease suddenly develop high fevers and may die within a day or two. They said patients were not responding to normal drugs and medicines used to treat encephalitis.

Pan Am Ends Soviet Run

MOSCOW (WP) — After 10 unsuccessful years trying to make a profit in the land of the commissar, Pan American World Airways Wednesday ended its scheduled Moscow-New York air service with the departure of Flight 67, en route to Frankfurt for connection with a New York-bound plane.

Hailed in 1968 when the service was inaugurated as the first step in a process of expanding — and, it was hoped, profitable — contacts between the worlds of capitalism and communism, the Pan Am flights were the only scheduled Moscow service of a U.S. carrier.

But the record of the Moscow operation has been written mostly in red ink, in part because of the hardnosed techniques of the Soviets, who over the years were accused repeatedly by the Americans of unfairly discouraging travel on Pan Am in favor of the Soviet airline, Aeroflot.

The airline's problems were compounded by a lack of market in this country, of sharply restrictive travel practices and by Soviet reluctance to spend hard currency for a flight on a U.S. carrier when they could pay their own soft currency rubles for an Aeroflot flight between the countries.

Suspension of the New York-Moscow flights is part of a major Pan Am withdrawal from East Bloc countries this fall. By the end of the month, there will be direct U.S. carrier scheduled flights available on Pan Am only between the United States and Warsaw. Pan Am service to Belgrade, Bucharest, Budapest and Prague has been called off.

West Bank Peace Talk Turns Sour

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israel-Egyptian peace drive was shaken anew today when Israel announced it is strengthening existing Jewish settlements in the West Bank in apparent pique at the United States — while Egypt said it may recall its Washington peace negotiators for consultations.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan acknowledged that the settlements decision may "make it more difficult" to reach final agreement with Egypt on a peace treaty.

And Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said in Cairo a recall of the Egyptian negotiators was possible. A recall would rule out the scheduled resumption of the peace talks Friday in Washington.

Khalil did not explain why the Egyptian team might be called home for further discussions, telling reporters simply, "I am in consultation with the president (Anwar Sadat) about the possibility of asking them to come to Cairo for consultations."

But he said the possible recall was "not in reaction" to Israel's West Bank decision.

Israeli government officials said the decision to expand Jewish settlements in the West Bank of the Jordan River was made in angry reaction to statements made privately by U.S. assistant state secretary Harold Saunders over the future of the Palestinian-populated zone.

In a closed meeting with West Bank Palestinian leaders last week, Saunders hinted that Israel might evacuate its West Bank enclaves at the end of the five-year transition period envisioned by the Camp David agreements. He also reaffirmed the U.S. position that Arab East Jerusalem, annexed by Israel after the 1967 war, is considered by Washington to be occupied territory.

In Washington, State Secretary Cyrus Vance said the Carter administration is deeply disturbed by the deci-

PILOTS SET STRIKE DATE

TORONTO (CP) — CP Air pilots set a Nov. 4 strike deadline Wednesday after announcing they had reached an impasse in contract negotiations following 11 months of bargaining with Canada's second largest airline.

Don Brown, chairman of the CP Air pilots' negotiating committee, said the two sides are deadlocked on pensions. Eighty-three per cent of the 545 pilots voted in favor of strike action.

It is the first time the pilots, members of the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, have set a strike deadline against the airline.

Postal Workers Back on Job, Leaders In Court

Parrot (centre) is escorted to Supreme Court in Ottawa

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union president Jean-Claude Parrot was ordered today publicly to declare invalid all former strike authorizations to union members or he would be held in jail.

Mr. Justice D. F. O'Leary of Ontario Supreme Court, where Parrot and four others were charged with disobeying federal back-to-work legislation passed last week, said Parrot had shown contempt of Parliament by ordering union members to stay off the job.

Parrot, who announced an end to the illegal strike Wednesday night, was taken to Ontario Supreme Court in a paddy wagon.

Meanwhile, the post office announced that 93 per cent of the 23,000 CUPW members were back on the job. It said embargoes on international surface mail and air mail to the United States are lifted. The embargo on international air mail would last until Saturday.

In Victoria all employees returned to work but tension remained high.

Post office public relations officer Buz Sawyer said postamsters and supervisors have been told to avoid confrontations with employees.

He said priority is being given to several hundred thousand government cheques, the bulk of which will be delivered by Friday.

Although the backlog of mail at the Glanford sorting station is less than 100,000 pieces — a very low volume — Sawyer asked persons with non-urgent mail to wait until Friday to post their letters so government and business mail can be processed first.

On Wednesday night more than half the evening shift at the Glanford station went home after punching in for work.

"They were just in no mood to work," Daniel Stewart, Victoria local union vice president said.

"There was a lot of tension on the floor. Some of the supervisors tried to rub it in that we forced back to work."

But nothing serious developed.

A CUPW member at the main post office on Government said today members are extremely bitter about the outcome of the week-long strike.

"We feel we've been betrayed," he said.

Stewart accused the government of irresponsibility in handling the dispute.

"All the government has done is guarantee the perpetuation of all the problems in the post office," he said.

"They had the opportunity to change conditions and give the postal workers a fair contract. But instead they've

Music Money Assured For Now

Within hours of taking office, Victoria Symphony president Dorothy Frost came through with $49,000 in emergency financing Wednesday.

The amount was guaranteed by her employer, Richardson Securities of Canada, against expected federal and provincial cultural grants.

The orchestra has a $160,000 deficit.

Frost became president of the symphony society Tuesday, and shortly after was on her way to Richardson's head office in Winnipeg. News of the $49,000 guarantee was telephoned here Wednesday afternoon.

Symphony manager Jean Hunter said earlier Wednesday the society could not make its next payroll of about $24,000 due this month.

The symphony is to get a Canada Council grant in November and additional funding is expected from the B.C. Cultural Development Fund.

Hunter said the guarantee will be a psychological turning point for the financially-pressed orchestra.

Taxes Up or Teachers Cut Options For School Board

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Greater Victoria School District's operating budget will increase by at least $1.13 million next year and that means either higher taxes or fewer teachers.

The budget is going up even though the district will lose 1,200 students and cut a minimum of 65 teaching positions.

Salary increases have been temporarily omitted from a $42-million 1979 provisional budget discussed by the school board for the first time Wednesday.

The 1979 provisional budget as it now stands has not increased over this year's operating budget.

When the blanks are filled in, the budget could increase by $3 million or even more, school board chairman Susan Brice said today.

A district staff raise of three per cent this year would mean a budget increase of $1.13 million.

If the salary increase is eight per cent the budget will go up $3 million — a five mill hike for local taxpayers.

And if salary increases now being negotiated with the Greater Victoria Teachers Association (GVTA) and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) exceed eight per cent, the mill rate increase will be even higher.

Trustees will decide in camera on a figure to include in the provisional budget due Nov. 15.

The figure will be adjusted in January after contract settlements have been reached with the GVTA and CUPE.

But she said even with fewer students, the district will never defeat inflation.

"It's like the hounds chasing the electric rabbit: the faster you go toward it the faster it's snatched away from you."

Elimination of the 65 teaching positions from the present teaching staff of 1,289 will be accomplished mainly through attrition.

But she said the staff reductions have been going on for years and will soon reach the point where they can no longer be achieved through attrition.

"We're getting to the point where we are going to have to — as many districts have already had to — get into the area of releasing teachers with tenure," said Brice.

She said in Toronto, school districts are holding lotteries to determine which teachers will be dismissed.

Declining enrolment will be a problem facing Victoria for another 10 years, Brice estimated.

GVTA president Trevor Calkins said today the problem of fewer students and spiralling costs has placed the district in a dilemma.

But he said increasing class sizes will reduce the quality of education.

Some of the best and most experienced teachers in the province will be sacrificed, Calkins said.

The best way to fight the problem of declining enrolment is to decrease class size, he said, even though it will mean higher taxes.

"It seems to me if the board wanted to make a committment to reducing class size slightly to even approach the provincial average, attrition would solve the problem and you wouldn't have any teachers on unemployment."

Calkins also said the provincial educaton ministry should pick up a larger share of public school system costs.

Taxpayers contributed 55 per cent of the school district operating budgets in 1977 and 60 per cent in 1978.

The slice of the education pie given to the public school system has dropped from 20 to 15 per cent since 1964, Calkins charged.

Hydro Salaries Okayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salary increases for the top 45 executives of British Columbia Hydro have been approved by the federal anti-inflation board.

The board examined the increases after newspaper reports said executives' wages and expense lists for the year ended March 31 increased an average of 25 per cent.

The information, released in Hydro's B.C. Public Bodies Financial Information Act Return showed that senior management were paid a total of $2.278 million, not including expenses, for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Hydro said some of the pay increases included retroactive adjustments as far back as two years that had been waiting for anti-inflation board approval.

The Hydro figures were for a 13-month period rather than a 12-month-pay period and did not give wages for the actual year separate from any retroactive adjustments.

In a news release, the board said it makes decisions on average compensation for a group, rather than individuals.

"In this respect then, an employee, or several employees may get larger increases while others get little or none. It is the group average with which the board is concerned."

GRANDPA PORTRAIT VALUED AT $40,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — To John Napier-Hemy it was an old oil painting of his stern-looking grandfather that had been in his family's home as long as he could remember.

He was shocked to learn this week that a local art gallery had appraised its value at $40,000.

Neil MacMillan, who appraised the painting, said the portrait's whereabouts had not been known since the painting was exhibited at the Royal Gallery in London in 1927.

Napier-Hemy said he realized the painting was valuable but had no idea it was worth $40,000. It was appraised at $10,000 three years ago in Victoria.

He plans to keep it in the family and pass it on to his 20-year-old son, who he says looks much like his great-grandfather. Selling it is out of the question, although he would like to share it with others.

More ICBC Rivals

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least nine private automobile insurance companies will be permitted to compete next year against the Insurance Corporation of B.C. for such things as comprehensive, theft, collision and additional liability coverage, an ICBC spokesman said Wednesday.

Don Anderson, acting deputy superintendent of insurance, said the number allowed to compete with ICBC could increase by even more by the end of the year.

The nine firms include Royal — in competition with ICBC last year — Fireman's Fund, Zurich, Commercial Union and All-State which decided to enter the market this spring.

Anderson said another firm is the Guardian Insurance Co. of Canada but he could not name the other three because his secretary is on holidays and those replacing her are not familiar with the files.

Hydro Corridor Chosen

B.C.Hydro has decided on the final route for a $315 million power line link between Vancouver Island and the Mainland's Cheekye substation.

The transmission corridor, selected from six possible routes, will see overhead and submarine cables reach the island at Dunsmuir, a site north of Qualicum Beach, via the Sechelt Peninsula, Nelson Island, Malaspina Strait, Texada Island and the Strait of Georgia.

The lines will miss Lasqueti and Hornby Islands, where residents were in an uproar over the possibility of transmission corridors passing near their homes.

Another controversial area was on the Sechelt Peninsula, where residents formed vocal protest groups.

A Hydro map showing the final route choice has a bulge in the Sechelt area indicating that the corridor placement in that region has not been fully worked out.

A Hydro press release states a broader range of route options should be maintained in that area until more- detailed studies can be completed.

The first circuit of of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line is scheduled to be in service by 1983, with the second circuit to be completed three years later.

Construction has already begun on a multi-million dollar 'backbone' line that will link Victoria to the Dunsmuir substantion, via Duncan and Nanaimo. That line will be in service by 1979 with a parallel set of transmission lines to be built on the same right-of-way during the 1980s.

Crackdown Following UIC Mess

OTTAWA (CP) — In the wake of a report citing $142 million in undetected unemployment insurance overpayments last year, the government plans new measures to crack down on error and fraud.

Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell said in a report Wednesday that he estimates the government did not detect $142 million paid to claimants who were not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits.

In response, senior officials announced plans to examine company rolls and establish a country-wide hiring registration program in a new effort to deter and detect abuse, error and fraud.

In the annual report of the employment and immigration department, Macdonell said his $142 million overpayment estimate was based on reviewing a small sample of the 2.5 million persons who received about $3.9 billion in benefits in 1977.

Macdonell's estimate was in addition to $67.8 million over-payments which the government did detect. All but $6 million of that was recovered.

Also, his estimate was higher than the $95 million in undetected 1976 over-payments he unearthed last year, blaming inadequate accuracy and security in the government's computer system.

Larry St.-Laurent, director of the unemployment insurance program, said the following measures will be implemented at a cost of about $3 million to reduce over-payments by $15 million in the coming year:

—Through an agreement with the revenue department, unemployment insurance investigators will get access to company payroll information. These facts will be cross-checked with information supplied by employees and employers to unemployment insurance officials processing benefit claims.

The main aim will be to verify employment records — to catch employees or employers who falsify insured earnings or length of work. Training of investigators to use the payrolls in suspicious cases will start next Tuesday and the measure is to come into effect on Nov. 30.

—A country-wide hiring registration program will be established midway through the 1978-1979 fiscal year. About 600,000 employers would register with government computer centres the name, social insurance num-

'You have, what you say, a little bit dizzy when you go high?' asked the concerned Portuguese officer

Rookie in the Rigging

By PAUL NICHOLSON
Times Staff

FIRST Lieutenant Joao Martins peers down at me from the second crowsnest platform and warns me to be more careful now because the next stage of the rigging ladder will move a bit.

I take a breather and glance down to the rolling deck of the Portuguese sail training vessel Sagres II some 30 metres below.

That was a big mistake. So I look up again where the toes of Joao's running shoes peek over the edge of the solid platform, a tantalizing three metres further up the foremast.

But what an infinitely long three metres.

To get there I have to negotiate a rope ladder which runs from the mast to the outside edge of the overhead platform putting the angle of the climb well past the vertical.

Until that point, the climb hadn't been too difficult.

"You have, what you say, a little bit dizzy when you go high?" Joao had asked me earlier.

"Nope," I had replied confidently, probably because of the lingering effects of an after-lunch bagaco, a liquor distilled from the bottom of a wine cask after the wine is siphoned off.

It also produces fire in the belly and stokes up courage.

So Joao and I mounted the rail of the 90-metre barque and began clawing our way up the rigging to the first station of the 45-metre foremast.

It was easy going. The angle of the climb couldn't have been any more than 60 degrees, the cable rigging firm and the wooden rungs solid.

We rested about 15 metres above the water, surveying the sparkling clean ship below.

After a few minutes Joao began ascending the second and much steeper set of rigging. I followed another 15 or so metres to the point where I came to grips (no pun intended) with that overhead dangling ladder that was my ticket off the rigging to the second platform.

And although hard-pressed to exactly describe how it was accomplished, a few seconds later I was somehow standing on the tiny crowsnest beside Joao.

Joao saved me the agony of deciding whether to go to the very top of the mast by saying it is not permitted.

Joao is not usually at sea. He is a physical education instructor at the Portuguese Naval Academy in Lisbon — a job to which he will likely return once the 10-month around the world cruise of the Sagres — pronounced SHARGH-rays — is finished next April.

The visit of the Sagres last week to Victoria and Vancouver marked the end of the tall ships that came to help B.C. with the Capt. Cook bicentennial festivities. She was the first Portuguese naval vessel to visit B.C.

After a couple of days in Victoria she sailed on the 24-hour run to Vancouver.

The skipper of the Sagres, Capitao de Fragata Jose Fernandes Martins e Silva, who has served on the vessel three times with three different ranks over the past 15 years, says a sail vessel is the best possible training for officer cadets.

About two days out of Acapulco, the Sagres encounterd Hurricane Norman with 80-knot winds.

She was outfitted with a single Man diesel engine that became an important training ground itself.

The between-war German navy was not allowed to build diesel powered ships, but the rule was ignored for the seemingly harmless cadet sail trainers.

But the Man diesel was to be the one that powered the German submarines a few years later. Many a U-boat engineer received his training in the engine room of the Sagres and her sister ships.

So well-built and looked after, the original engine still punches the Sagres along at nine knots.

(And if further testimony to the sunny Mediterranean clime is necessary, the 41-year-old sails are all originals, too. Eat your hearts out, mildew-plagued West Coast sailors.)

After the war the Sagres went to Brazil before being purchased by Portugal in 1962.

But because the Brazilian navy is dry, the first thing the Portuguese navy did was to install a 17,000-litre wine tank in the hold.

Officer and regular seaman alike are treated to wine at every meal in the Portuguese navy.

And although only a vin ordinaire in the home country, the full-bodied dry red from the Lisbon area would be a special treat on a B.C. dinner table.

The officers in the wardroom were as willing to share with us their special supplies of bagaco as they were their stories of their part in the 1974 socialist military coup that overthrew the 42-year dictatorship of Antonio Salazar.

Tuesday the Sagres II sailed for Hawaii and the Orient. Because of the cost of such voyages Capt. e Silva says it is unlikely she will ever sail to the north Pacific again.

Victoria and Vancouver residents who thrilled at the sight of her sparkling white hull and majestic superstructure will miss her.

Crow Shooting to Backfire, Says Sam

Shoot crows and look for woes.

Sam told the Times today bad luck will dog the killers of crows after a Saanich council bylaw enforcement committee recommended a controlled shoot be held to rid the municipality of surplus crows.

Sam said as an environmentalist he sees the crow population increase as part of a normal cycle.

Sam said the the fish crow — the local species — has co-existed with man since the beginning of time.

"I feel quite certain when the crow goes, so will man," he added.

Another band member, Dave Elliot, said native people never harmed crows.

"They have as much right to live as we do," he said.

Ald. Ian Cass told a committee meeting that anyone with a sincere interest in the environment has to be concerned with the crow population.

"They have been responsible for decimating the song bird population in Greater Victoria," he claimed.

Mayor Mel Couvelier said he welcomes any approach to reduce the crow population.

New Harbor Plan Includes Room For Conventions

The provincial government's plans for the Reid site have been substantially overhauled to make room for limited convention facilities and a new Maritime Museum building, Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf announced Wednesday.

The government originally wanted to have a large food retail centre on the site, but that plan has now been abandoned apparently because private developers wouldn't get behind the scheme.

The food retail building was to have been constructed by the private sector, but after months of advertising the government had no satisfactory offers.

At a press conference Bawlf said that after getting input from the business community and other sources it was decided to suspend the original proposal to revise the plans.

The entire project will cost $5 million or more.

The new Reid site proposition calls for:

— A 16,000-square-foot trade and exhibit centre which will be capable of holding up to 1,800 people and could be used for conventions, concerts and trade shows. (The space will be leased for five-year terms by the yet-to-be-formed Victoria Trade and Convention Bureau.)

— Some 45,000 square feet of retail space in which seafood, fresh produce, and specialty food stores will be located. (This was the focus of the original proposal.)

— A 250-car underground parking garage to be built at a cost of about $1 million and operated by the city.

— A separate 1,800-square-foot building on the south end of the site to house the Maritime Museum, now in Bastion Square.

Bawlf said that after Victoria's city council has endorsed the proposal the plans will be tendered for bids from private developers.

"It will be up to the developer to finance, build, and manage the complex except for the city's parkade and the museum premises, which will be purchased from the developer upon completion at a pre-negotiated price," said the minister.

Bawlf said the province's contribution to the multi-million dollar development will be the land and the old Maritime Museum quarters which is to be redeveloped for commercial use.

Asked if he thought the private sector would respond favorably to the revised proposal Bawlf said: "I certainly hope so. I've put a lot of time into this."

He added that the main problem with the orignal plan was a shortage of parking space. Initially, room was to be left for only 170 cars.

"This proposal has a lot of merit," said Young. "The uses are in my opinon acceptable."

Cleaner Saves Hotel

An alert cleaning woman early today averted what could have been a serious fire at the Tudor Hotel, 533 Admirals.

An Esquimalt fire department spokesman said the woman spotted smoke coming from an electrical outlet at 4:21 a.m. and turned in the alarm.

When firemen arrived they cut open the wall near the plug and flames burst out. The fire, caused by faulty wiring, was quickly extinguished.

Student Fizzle on Quiz Biz Shatters Their Professor

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

One student in four couldn't name all 10 provinces.

More than 60 per cent couldn't identify the head of state of Canada.

And well over 70 per cent hadn't a clue what level of government has the power to levy income taxes.

An elementary school grade? A class of new Canadians?

In a recent general knowledge quiz, more than three quarters of the students flunked, unable to answer what Morley considers fundamental questions about how government, mainly in Canada, works.

Not once in the past four years have his students achieved an average passing grade in the quiz he gives his class prior to starting the course.

The results this year were the poorest yet.

The class average was 35 per cent, ranging from a low of 12 to a high of 69. Last year the average was 38 per cent.

Morley says he isn't really surprised by the results.

But he thinks some of the students should have done better, particularly since his seven-year-old son took the test and got a 33 per cent score.

Morley said he doesn't expect everyone to get 100, but a grade of 60 to 70 per cent wouldn't be unreasonable.

The test showed a number of students had never heard of Stalin and some of those who had, confused him with Lenin. Hitler was better known but one student put him down as a former communist leader of Germany.

Morley said the most shocking revelations were on matters pertaining to Canadian history.

Only 72.5 per cent of the students could name all 10 provinces and only two of the 70 who wrote the test could name them in the order they came into Confederation.

A lot of students thought the North West Territories and the Yukon were provinces.

"I can see an American not being able to provide the names of all 50 states, but here we are in Canada with only 10 provinces and more than a quarter of the students can't name them all. It's really quite shocking."

He said he was equally aghast that only 39 per cent of the students were able to name the Queen as the head of state of Canada. Some thought the answer was the Prime Minister; others the Governor-General.

Morley said well over 70 per cent of the students didn't know the federal and provincial governments both have the power to levy income tax, a basic question for which he felt every person who has the vote should know.

Morley said half the students couldn't name more than three of the nine prime ministers in this century.

And fewer than five per cent understood the formal procedure for amending the Canadian constitution.

Only a handful of students were able to come up with Stuart Smith's name as the leader of the opposition in Ontario. A few got Claude Ryan as the leader of the Liberal party in Quebec but practically no one named Michael Cassidy as the leader of the New Democratic Party in Ontario.

Another question asking for the names of two justices of the Supreme Court in Canada and the United States was a complete disaster, Morley said. In past year students have generally known more U.S. justices than Canadian ones but this year students drew a blank on both.

"Clearly the basic information is being neglected in the high school system," he said.

"It's a problem for us in university. We're taking in students as bright if not brighter than ever before but what they've been exposed to in the way of challenges has been really pretty feeble."

He said the test results point out a lack of interest among young people in history or current affairs. More than 70 per cent of the students never read newspapers and even those who watch television do not follow the news regularly, he said.

West Bank Peace Talk Turns Sour

TEL AVIV (AP) — The Israel-Egyptian peace drive was shaken anew today when Israel announced it is strengthening existing Jewish settlements in the West Bank in apparent pique at the United States — while Egypt said it may recall its Washington peace negotiators for consultations.

Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan acknowledged that the settlements decision may "make it more difficult" to reach final agreement with Egypt on a peace treaty.

And Egyptian Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil said in Cairo a recall of the Egyptian negotiators was possible. A recall would rule out the scheduled resumption of the peace talks Friday in Washington.

Khalil did not explain why the Egyptian team might be called home for further discussions, telling reporters simply, "I am in consultation with the president (Anwar Sadat) about the possibility of asking them to come to Cairo for consultations."

But he said the possible recall was "not in reaction" to Israel's West Bank decision.

Israeli government officials said the decision to expand Jewish settlements in the West Bank of the Jordan River was made in angry reaction to statements made privately by U.S. assistant state secretary Harold Saunders over the future of the Palestinian-populated zone.

In a closed meeting with West Bank Palestinian leaders last week, Saunders hinted that Israel might evacuate its West Bank enclaves at the end of the five-year transition period envisioned by the Camp David agreements. He also reaffirmed the U.S. position that Arab East Jerusalem, annexed by Israel after the 1967 war, is considered by Washington to be occupied territory.

In Washington, State Secretary Cyrus Vance said the Carter administration is deeply disturbed by the deci-

PILOTS SET STRIKE DATE

TORONTO (CP) — CP Air pilots set a Nov. 4 strike deadline Wednesday after announcing they had reached an impasse in contract negotiations following 11 months of bargaining with Canada's second largest airline.

Don Brown, chairman of the CP Air pilots' negotiating committee, said the two sides are deadlocked on pensions. Eighty-three per cent of the 545 pilots voted in favor of strike action.

It is the first time the pilots, members of the Canadian Air Line Pilots' Association, have set a strike deadline against the airline.

Parrot Ordered To Retract All Strike Calls

Parrot (centre) is escorted to Supreme Court in Ottawa

Times News Services

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal union president Jean-Claude Parrot was ordered today publicly to declare invalid all former strike authorizations to union members or he would be held in jail.

Mr. Justice D. F. O'Leary of Ontario Supreme Court, where Parrot and four others were charged with disobeying federal back-to-work legislation passed last week, said Parrot had shown contempt of Parliament by ordering union members to stay off the job.

Parrot, who announced an end to the illegal strike Wednesday night, was taken to Ontario Supreme Court in a paddy wagon.

Parrot later bowed before the judge's ultimatum.

He said he would issue the declaration before midnight tonight, the deadline set by the court.

O'Leary made the public declaration a condition for releasing Parrot and the four other union leaders from custody of the RCMP.

He said in addition that the five must agree to stand trial later for violating the law and encourage union members to continue working.

O'Leary said Parrot had shown contempt of Parliament's law and of the courts by ordering union members to stay off the job and by referring to the back-to-work law and injunctions against picket lines as illegal.

The judge rejected the union lawyer's arguments that the conditions were an attempt to humiliate and embarrass Parrot and to score a political victory that should be none of the court's business.

Meanwhile, the post office announced that 93 per cent of the 23,000 CUPW members were back on the job. It said embargoes on international surface mail and air mail to the United States are lifted. The embargo on international air mail would last until Saturday.

In Victoria all employees returned to work but tension remained high.

Post office public relations officer Buz Sawyer said postamsters and supervisors have been told to avoid confrontations with employees.

He said priority is being given to several hundred thousand government cheques, the bulk of which will be delivered by Friday.

Although the backlog of mail at the Glanford sorting station is less than 100,000 pieces — a very low volume — Sawyer asked persons with non-urgent mail to wait until Friday to post their letters so government and business mail can be processed first.

On Wednesday night more than half the evening shift at the Glanford station went home after punching in for work.

Music Money Assured For Now

Within hours of taking office, Victoria Symphony president Dorothy Frost came through with $49,000 in emergency financing Wednesday.

The amount was guaranteed by her employer, Richardson Securities of Canada, against expected federal and provincial cultural grants.

The orchestra has a $160,000 deficit.

Frost became president of the symphony society Tuesday, and shortly after was on her way to Richardson's head office in Winnipeg. News of the $49,000 guarantee was telephoned here Wednesday afternoon.

Symphony manager Jean Hunter said earlier Wednesday the society could not make its next payroll of about $24,000 due this month.

The symphony is to get a Canada Council grant in November and additional funding is expected from the B.C. Cultural Development Fund.

Hunter said the guarantee will be a psychological turning point for the financially-pressed orchestra.

Taxes Up or Teachers Cut Options For School Board

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY
Times Staff

Greater Victoria School District's operating budget will increase by at least $1.13 million next year and that means either higher taxes or fewer teachers.

The budget is going up even though the district will lose 1,200 students and cut a minimum of 65 teaching positions.

Salary increases have been temporarily omitted from a $42-million 1979 provisional budget discussed by the school board for the first time Wednesday.

The 1979 provisional budget as it now stands has not increased over this year's operating budget.

When the blanks are filled in, the budget could increase by $3 million or even more, school board chairman Susan Brice said today.

A district staff raise of three per cent this year would mean a budget increase of $1.13 million.

If the salary increase is eight per cent the budget will go up $3 million — a five mill hike for local taxpayers.

And if salary increases now being negotiated with the Greater Victoria Teachers Association (GVTA) and the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE) exceed eight per cent, the mill rate increase will be even higher.

Trustees will decide in camera on a figure to include in the provisional budget due Nov. 15.

The figure will be adjusted in January after contract settlements have been reached with the GVTA and CUPE.

But she said even with fewer students, the district will never defeat inflation.

"It's like the hounds chasing the electric rabbit: the faster you go toward it the faster it's snatched away from you."

Elimination of the 65 teaching positions from the present teaching staff of 1,289 will be accomplished mainly through attrition.

But she said the staff reductions have been going on for years and will soon reach the point where they can no longer be achieved through attrition.

"We're getting to the point where we are going to have to — as many districts have already had to — get into the area of releasing teachers with tenure," said Brice.

She said in Toronto, school districts are holding lotteries to determine which teachers will be dismissed.

Declining enrolment will be a problem facing Victoria for another 10 years, Brice estimated.

GVTA president Trevor Calkins said today the problem of fewer students and spiralling costs has placed the district in a dilemma.

But he said increasing class sizes will reduce the quality of education.

Some of the best and most experienced teachers in the province will be sacrificed, Calkins said.

The best way to fight the problem of declining enrolment is to decrease class size, he said, even though it will mean higher taxes.

"It seems to me if the board wanted to make a committment to reducing class size slightly to even approach the provincial average, attrition would solve the problem and you wouldn't have any teachers on unemployment."

Calkins also said the provincial educaton ministry should pick up a larger share of public school system costs.

Taxpayers contributed 55 per cent of the school district operating budgets in 1977 and 60 per cent in 1978.

The slice of the education pie given to the public school system has dropped from 20 to 15 per cent since 1964, Calkins charged.

Hydro Salaries Okayed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salary increases for the top 45 executives of British Columbia Hydro have been approved by the federal anti-inflation board.

The board examined the increases after newspaper reports said executives' wages and expense lists for the year ended March 31 increased an average of 25 per cent.

The information, released in Hydro's B.C. Public Bodies Financial Information Act Return showed that senior management were paid a total of $2.278 million, not including expenses, for the fiscal year ending March 31.

Hydro said some of the pay increases included retroactive adjustments as far back as two years that had been waiting for anti-inflation board approval.

The Hydro figures were for a 13-month period rather than a 12-month-pay period and did not give wages for the actual year separate from any retroactive adjustments.

In a news release, the board said it makes decisions on average compensation for a group, rather than individuals.

"In this respect then, an employee or several employees may get larger increases while others get little or none. It is the group average with which the board is concerned."

GRANDPA PORTRAIT VALUED AT $40,000

VANCOUVER (CP) — To John Napier-Hemy it was an old oil painting of his stern-looking grandfather that had been in his family's home as long as he could remember.

He was shocked to learn this week that a local art gallery had appraised its value at $40,000.

Neil MacMillan, who appraised the painting, said the portrait's whereabouts had not been known since the painting was exhibited at the Royal Gallery in London in 1927.

Napier-Hemy said he realized the painting was valuable but had no idea it was worth $40,000. It was appraised at $10,000 three years ago in Victoria.

He plans to keep it in the family and pass it on to his 20-year-old son, who he says looks much like his great-grandfather. Selling it is out of the question, although he would like to share it with others.

More ICBC Rivals

VANCOUVER (CP) — At least nine private automobile insurance companies will be permitted to compete next year against the Insurance Corporation of B.C. for such things as comprehensive, theft, collision and additional liability coverage, an ICBC spokesman said Wednesday.

Don Anderson, acting deputy superintendent of insurance, said the number allowed to compete with ICBC could increase by even more by the end of [illegible]

The nine firms include Royal — in competition with ICBC last year — Fireman's Fund, Zurich, Commercial Union and All-State which decided to enter the market this spring.

Anderson said another firm is the Guardian Insurance Co. of Canada but he could not name the other three because his secretary is on holidays and those replacing her are not familiar with the files.

Hydro Corridor Chosen

B.C.Hydro has decided on the final route for a $315 million power line link between Vancouver Island and the Mainland's Cheekye substation.

The transmission corridor, selected from six possible routes, will see overhead and submarine cables reach the island at Dunsmuir, a site north of Qualicum Beach, via the Sechelt Peninsula, Nelson Island, Malaspina Strait, Texada Island and the Strait of Georgia.

The lines will miss Lasqueti and Hornby Islands, where residents were in an uproar over the possibility of transmission corridors passing near their homes.

Another controversial area was on the Sechelt Peninsula, where residents formed vocal protest groups.

A Hydro map showing the final route choice has a bulge in the Sechelt area indicating that the corridor placement in that region has not been fully worked out.

A Hydro press release states a broader range of route options should be maintained in that area until more detailed studies can be completed.

The first circuit off of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line is scheduled to be in service by 1983, with the second circuit to be completed three years later.

Construction has already begun on a multi-million dollar 'backbone' line that will link Victoria to the Dunsmuir substantion, via Duncan and Nanaimo. That line will be in service by 1979 with a parallel set of transmission lines to be built on the same right-of-way during the 1980s.

Crackdown Following UIC Mess

OTTAWA (CP) — In the wake of a report citing $142 million in undetected unemployment insurance overpayments last year, the government plans new measures to crack down on error and fraud.

Auditor-General J. J. Macdonell said in a report Wednesday that he estimates the government did not detect $142 million paid to claimants who were not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits.

In response, senior officials announced plans to examine company rolls and establish a country-wide hiring registration program in a new effort to deter and detect abuse, error and fraud.

In the annual report of the employment and immigration department, Macdonell said his $142 million overpayment estimate was based on reviewing a small sample of the 2.5 million persons who received about $3.9 billion in benefits in 1977.

Macdonell's estimate was in addition to $67.8 million over-payments which the government did detect. All but $6 million of that was recovered.

Also, his estimate was higher than the $95 million in undetected 1976 over-payments he unearthed last year, blaming inadequate accuracy and security in the government's computer system.

Larry St.-Laurent, director of the unemployment insurance program, said the following measures will be implemented at a cost of about $3 million to reduce over-payments by $15 million in the coming year:

—Through an agreement with the revenue department, unemployment insurance investigators will get access to company payroll information. These facts will be cross-checked with information supplied by employees and employers to unemployment insurance officials processing benefit claims.

The main aim will be to verify employment records — to catch employees or employers who falsify insured earnings or length of work. Training of investigators to use the payrolls in suspicious cases will start next Tuesday and the measure is to come into effect on Nov. 30.

—A country-wide hiring registration program will be established midway through the 1978-1979 fiscal year. About 600,000 employers would register with government computer centres the name, social insurance num-

HBMS Merger Plan

TORONTO (CP) — A merger plan has been proposed that would give Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. of Toronto and Minerals and Resources Corp. Ltd. of Bermuda full control of a United States copper mining operation.

If approved, the plan would result in the merger of Inspiration Consolidated Copper Co. of Morristown, N.J., with its holding company, Inspiration Holdings Inc. Inspiration operates a major, open-pit mine in Arizona.

The U.S. company is wholly-owned by Hudson Bay Mining and the Bermuda company. Inspiration shareholders will be asked to vote for the merger at a meeting of stockholders Dec. 14.

Hudson Bay Mining and Minerals and Resources currently hold about 75 per cent interest in Inspiration. About 20 per cent of the shares are held by Atlantic Richfield Co. of California.

The merger will be sought largely through an exchange of shares. However, Hudson Bay Mining and Minerals and Resources have the option to redeem class A preferred stock it does not own at $33 a share by Feb. 1 or March 1, 1979.

Unemployed Cost $3.9B

OTTAWA (CP) — The annual report of the ministry of employment and immigration, tabled Wednesday in the Commons by minister Bud Cullen, says unemployment benefits in 1977 cost the government $1.7 billion.

The remainder of the $3.9 billion outlay was paid through contributions from employees and employers who pay premiums based on salary levels.

The report said benefits increased in every province and in the Northwest Territories but decreased in the Yukon to $6.7 million from $7.3 million.

A regional breakdown of benefits paid in order of amounts: $1.482 billion in Quebec; $1.011 billion in Ontario; $448 million in British Columbia; $216.8 million in Newfoundland; $192.9 million in Nova Scotia; $113.7 million in Alberta; $99.1 million in Manitoba; $71.5 million in Saskatchewan; $38.4 million in Prince Edward Island; $6.7 million in the Yukon; $3.8 million in the Northwest Territories.

About $3.4 billion was paid because of regular unemployment circumstances while the rest was paid in training, fishing, sickness, maternity, and retirement benefits.

Other highlights in the report:

—In the 1977-1978 fiscal year, $570 million was spent under the manpower training program, providing industrial and institutional training for about 300,000 adults.

—About $335 million was spent creating jobs for 75,200 persons in Canada Works projects. In the similar youth program, Young Canada Works, $46 million was spent creating 30,500 jobs. The majority of these jobs are temporary but some lead to permanent positions.

—The summer job corps program cost $8.5 million for 5,300 jobs. About $532,000 was spent in five communities under the emergency-response program to prevent dislocation because of massive layoffs.

—About $10.5 million was spent on mobility grants for nearly 50,000 persons moving to search for work or to take jobs.

—Immigration decreased by 23 per cent over 1976. Last year, 109,274 immigrants were admitted and 45,045 of them joined the labor force.

ber and hiring date of all new employees. It would amount to between six million and seven million registrations annually.

This program has been tested since last February in six cities and officials say only one or two of up to 300 employers who participated opposed the plan. It is aimed at deferring abuse by showing persons who are claiming benefits while working. It will require the government to hire about 175 new computer operators.

—Officials who process insurance claims will be under closer supervision so computer errors, mistaken judgements and sloppy work will be caught.

—The government will continue other controls, including comparison of new and old claims from the same persons, random interviews of claimants, reviews of individual cases and special investigations into certain industries or regions.

In addition, St.-Laurent estimated that unemployment insurance benefits paid in 1978 will total $4.7 billion.

CUPW WORKERS RETURN

to work," Daniel Stewart, Victoria local union vice president said.

"There was a lot of tension on the floor. Some of the supervisors tried to rub it in that we forced back to work."

But nothing serious developed.

A CUPW member at the main post office on Government said today members are extremely bitter about the outcome of the week-long strike.

"We feel we've been betrayed," he said.

Stewart accused the government of irresponsibility in handling the dispute.

"All the government has done is guarantee the perpetuation of all the problems in the post office," he said.

"They had the opportunity to change conditions and give the postal workers a fair contract. But instead they've done everything they could to crush the union. They've made more enemies than friends. The staff relations are worse now than ever were before."

Stewart said the union agreed to order the members back to work because it became obvious the government was willing to go to any extreme to defeat it.

He said the union could not win its struggle with the government without massive support from the labor movement.

"We got a lot of verbal support, donations and encouraging words," Stewart said.

"But that wasn't enough. We had to have other unions prepared to take job action."

He said the Canadian Labor Congress will have to answer why it wasn't more supportive.

Stewart warned there could be further job action if the government proceeds with charges against the five union executive members charged Wednesday.

"We're not ready to stand by and see our national president go to jail. That would be pushing us a bit too far."

The union and its leaders were charged under a section of the Criminal Code making it an offence to disobey an act of Parliament, in this case the back-to-work legislation passed a week ago.

As Parrot was making his back-to-work order public at an Ottawa news conference, it was announced that 31 union members had been charged in provincial court in Vancouver for contravening back-to-work legislation passed last week in Parliament.

They were charged with committing an offence under the Public Servant's Staff Relations Act, a court spokesman said.

The Vancouver union members charged are to appear in court on various dates next month.

It was the threat of mass firings in the post office, rather than the back-to-work legislation, which persuaded the union to return, Parrot said.

Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne had said that workers not returning to their jobs by 12:01 a.m. today would be be fired and unable to appeal the action.
